1984 OUTLOOK

What a difference a few weeks of practice can make. A few weeks of practice was all it took for Florida State women's tennis coach Anne Davis to realize that her 1984 team can be just as successful as her 1983 squad. Before beginning practice this fall, Davis described the upcoming 1984 season as a big challenge to her young squad. But after seeing her players work out for a month, Davis says she knows that the 1984 Lady Seminoles can and probably will surpass the achievements of last year's squad.

While that 1983 team was a "blow the opponent off the court" type and was especially strong at the top three positions, Davis says the 1984 group has a more even distribution of talent throughout the lineup. This team, according to Davis, will simply get the job done.

To reach that goal, Florida State will have to at least match the marks set by the 1983 team — one that compiled a 19-8 dual match record and won FSU's second Metro Conference tennis title.

FSU was also ranked 18th in the country by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association and narrowly missed a bid to the NCAA Championships. Two netters, Jaime Kaplan and Lee McGuire, were the first Florida State women ever chosen for NCAA competition as individuals.

The graduation of Kaplan and Suzanne Doumar is one reason that this year's squad sports such a different look. Doumar and Kaplan left the team with a combined eight years of college tennis experience and over 100 singles victories.

"Without Jaime and Suzanne for the first time in three years, the top of our lineup is a big question mark," says Davis. "We're young and inexperienced in certain areas, but we are strong at other positions."

One of the positions Davis will be looking to for a lot of production is the number one slot, where junior Lee McGuire is ready to step in after two years of alternating between the first three positions.

"We're expecting big things from Lee this year," says Davis. "I think she has a good chance to be one of the top 25 players in the country."

After McGuire, Davis expects 1983's number four, five and six players, junior Debbie Pollack, senior Lisa Ehrgott and sophomore Patti Henderson, to again fight it out for starting positions. Ehrgott's 18-5 record was the best on the team last year while Pollack recorded a 14-11 mark. Henderson split playing time at the number six position and won 12 matches.

"We are going to count on Lisa, Debbie and Patti" says Davis. "If they play as well as they can, it will give us experience that we need at those important positions."

Competition among the remaining returning players should be tough. Led by sophomores Jenny Cerino and Claudia Gaughf, five players will battle for a chance to start in the top six. Last year Cerino shared the sixth singles position with Henderson, and Gaughf saw limited action in both singles and doubles.

Those five returning players will not have starting positions locked up among themselves though. They'll be looking over their shoulders at newcomers Darlene Kennedy and Sue Hatch, either one of whom could play in the top six immediately, according to Davis.

Kennedy was ranked among the top five players in her age group in Florida but sat out of competition last season because of a knee injury. Hatch, one of the top players to come out of Canada in recent years, joins fellow Canadian Henderson as a member of the 1984 team. Davis says that Hatch could step into one of the top three positions as a freshman and should be a dominant factor in Florida State tennis in the future.

Probably the biggest question mark for Anne Davis in 1984 is in doubles. FSU returns no established doubles teams so Davis is prepared to spend the fall season looking for three perfect pairs.

"In doubles, we have to start from scratch," she says. "During the fall, we'll spend a lot of time working on doubles, and by spring I think we'll have three solid teams. The talent is here. It's just a matter of putting it together."

Davis has already put together another competitive schedule for her team. The Lady Seminoles will travel to three tournaments in the fall, and in February Florida State will begin another spring season of tough dual matches. FSU will once again host the Lady Seminole Invitational in March and as April comes to a close so will the regular season as FSU will aim for its second consecutive win at the Metro Conference Tournament.

Davis' feelings toward the year are optimistic but also realistic.

"It's a whole different perspective from last year and that's what makes it so exciting," says Davis. "In 1983 we were expected to do well, but this year we are the challengers. The potential is there for us to have a top 20 team but it's going to take a lot of hard work."

"In 1984, we want to continue the tradition of women's tennis success that we've been able to build here at Florida State. It's a big challenge, but we know we can do it."

COACHING STAFF

ANNE DAVIS

Head Coach

Anne Davis' record as FSU women's tennis coach speaks for itself. Davis begins her fifth season at Florida State with an 86-52 career mark. Three of her four teams have passed the 20-win mark and last year's squad finished with an 18-8 record.

Davis has lifted the program to national stature in the past two years. Her 1983 squad was ranked 18th in the nation and two players were chosen to play in the NCAA Championships. Those two players were FSU's first ever women tennis representatives in the NCAA tournament. Davis also won its second Metro Conference crown and Davis earned Metro Coach of the Year honors for the second time.

Davis' success is not surprising; she has a history of accomplishing what she sets out to do. A varsity tennis player for the University of South Florida from 1975-78, Davis played in the top four slots all four years and was one-half of USF's number one doubles unit. In her junior year, the Brahms finished 11th in the nation.

Davis began her coaching career as the assistant tennis coach at USF. In that position she helped guide the team to an 11th place showing nationally.

Davis has held numerous posts in different coaching associations. Currently she serves on the Women's Operating Committee of the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association.

Davis received her bachelor's degree in marketing from USF in 1978 and also completed her master's degree in guidance and counseling at South Florida. In addition to her coaching duties at Florida State, Davis serves as assistant academic counselor to FSU women athletes.

GRACE BARRIE

Assistant Coach

Vero Beach native Grace Barrie joins the Lady Seminole tennis program this year as assistant coach to Anne Davis. A former All-American tennis player, Barrie comes to Florida State from the University of South Carolina where she served as assistant coach for the past two seasons.

Prior to assuming her coaching duties at USC, Barrie was a standout player for the Gamecocks from 1978-1981. In 1981, she helped lead the team to a 12th place national finish by compiling a 22-8 singles record and a 20-9 doubles mark. At the end of that season, she was awarded All-American status. Over her final three seasons at Carolina, Barrie won 60 singles matches while losing only ten.

"We're fortunate to have someone of Grace's playing ability and coaching experience this year," said head coach Anne Davis. "She will help us a lot with our match play and recruiting because she is so familiar with college tennis."

ATHLETIC STAFF

BARBARA PALMER
Associate Athletic Director

Barbara Palmer has been with the Florida State athletic program since 1977. As associate athletic director, Palmer is in charge of the women's athletic program.

Since her arrival on campus, the FSU women's program has grown to the point where it is now considered among the top five programs in the country.

All eight women's sports have turned in winning records over the past three years. There have been three national championships won, including back-to-back titles by the softball team in 1981 and 1982. In 1982 Florida State sent every team to a national tournament, a feat accomplished by only one other school in the nation.

Simply put, Barbara Palmer has been the energy behind that climb toward national excellence. She was directly responsible for the funding FSU women's athletics receives from the state legislature each year. It was Palmer's lobbying that pushed Title IX legislation through the state government in 1980.

So great has been Palmer's impact on the growth of women's athletics in the state of Florida that she was chosen to the inaugural Women's Florida Hall of Fame by Governor Bob Graham. She was one of just six women elected from a field of 226 candidates.

Palmer joined Florida State after serving four years as executive director of a private leisure and recreation services organization. A long time resident of Tallahassee, Palmer graduated from FSU in 1970 and earned a master's degree in leisure services in 1974.

TRUDY RAYBUN
Coordinator of Student Affairs

A 1977 graduate of Florida State, Trudy Raybun serves as coordinator of student affairs at FSU. In the scholastic side of college life, Raybun is involved with the admission and registration process of all Lady Seminole athletes.

Once the academic year begins, Raybun provides academic counseling and arranges tutors and study halls for athletes as needed.

DONNA MURDOCK
Strength Coach

A graduate of Florida ('81) with a master's degree in exercise physiology, Murdock begins her third year as strength coach of the Lady Seminole program.

As strength coach, Murdock is responsible for designing individual weight conditioning programs for each athlete and assisting coaches with any conditioning problems that arise during the season.

NANCY WATSON
Athletic Trainer

Watson begins her fourth season with the Lady Seminole program. She serves as head women's trainer and helps in the prevention, care and treatment of injuries.

Watson received her bachelor's and master's degrees in sports medicine from Indiana University.

THIS IS FLORIDA STATE

Florida State University, nestled in the center of Florida's capital city, is home to more than 22,000 students from all over the nation and from 115 foreign countries. FSU was founded in 1857 as the Seminary West of the Suwannee. Today, the main campus, with more than 340 green acres, is one of the prettiest in the South. Camellias, azaleas and dogwoods blossom under towering moss-draped oaks from the stately Gothic-styled structures on the eastern end of campus to the contemporary science complex on the west. FSU has grown and changed with the times. Enrollment has quadrupled since the school became coeducational in 1947, following nearly half a century as FSCW — Florida State College for Women.

Today, students at Florida State can choose from more than 100 career options made available by 14 schools and colleges including arts and sciences, business, communication, criminology, education, home economics, law, library science, music, nursing, social sciences, social work, theatre and visual arts. Also, the FAMU/FSU Institute for Engineering began this fall.

The University's location in the capital city of Florida affords excellent study and research opportunities in the areas of government, social sciences and policy sciences. Additionally, the presence of state government provides widespread opportunities for internships and on-the-job study.

In terms of scientific research, FSU excels as a basic research-oriented university. The nuclear physics laboratory is ranked by the National Science Foundation as one of the top four in the nation. FSU also maintains a large marine laboratory on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

Florida State counts among its faculty six members of the National Academy of Sciences, including Paul Dirac, a Nobel Prize winner in physics. Kurt Waldheim, former secretary general of the United Nations, recently joined the university faculty as a distinguished visiting lecturer in international relations and law.

The University is home to the only collegiate circus in the country. The Flying High Circus carries a reputation of quality, professional aerial and stage entertainment for children of all ages.

But it's not just good programs that make the university great. As President Bernard Slinger proclaims, it's the people who make Florida State the successful monument to learning that it is. And he takes special pride in the people — students, faculty, administrators and staff — who are Florida State University.
