The Graduate Student — A Little Older, A Little Wiser

If you ask a Syracuse University student whether he's a freshman, sophomore, junior or senior, you might get a no answer on all four counts. In that case, he's one of Syracuse's 7,400 graduate students.

The number of graduate students enrolled at the University this year is greater than that of all of the graduate students in the United States in 1900. James W. Harrison, executive assistant to the dean of the Graduate School, said: "Preparation for many of today's careers takes more than the traditional four years. With the expansion of our educational facilities, there is also a great need to prepare teachers."

The graduate student population of 7,400, like the undergraduate enrollment of 10,000, is comprised of students from nearly every state in the Union and many countries throughout the world.

Many of the grad students are continuing their studies on fellowships or research grants.

Dave Warner, of Fairfield, Conn., who has a Herbert H. Lehman Fellowship, is seeking a Ph. D. in economics, which he expects to receive in two years. Like 82 per cent of the graduate students, he did not do his undergraduate work at Syracuse University.

Warner, a Princeton graduate, has a master's degree in public administration from Syracuse University's Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. He spent a year in India working for the United States Agency for International Development. He plans a career in government service.

A bachelor, he lives with two other graduate students. He spends 40 to 50 hours a week studying.

Miss Andrea Jensen, a teaching assistant in the Romance languages department, teaches beginning French and pursues her own studies for a master's degree.

Miss Judy Lund, seated, center, is a head resident at Geneva Cottage and a candidate for a master's degree in student personnel administration.

Many graduate students are teaching assistants, who teach courses while they complete their own studies. Andrea Jensen of Grand Island, N. Y., is a teaching assistant in the Romance languages department. Miss Jensen teaches six hours of beginning French and carries a class load of nine hours.

Miss Jensen, a 1966 graduate of Syracuse University, wants to continue teaching on the college level. She said: "I'm a people watcher and can't study in libraries." She does all of her studying in her apartment, and is often up until 2 a.m. except when she has an 8 o'clock class to teach, which she does on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Some students, like Michael Lazar, combine studies with research. Lazar does part-time work at the Syracuse University Research Corporation while studying for a Ph. D. in electrical engineering, which he hopes to receive by 1969. A 1965 graduate of Syracuse University, he has a master's degree in electrical engineering. Lazar, who has an NDEA (National Defense Education Act) Fellowship, is doing research in infrared communications.

He and his wife Abby, an elementary school teacher in the North Syracuse Central School system, live in married students housing at Slocum Heights. Michael rides a motor scooter to classes and to the Research Corporation.

Judy Lund of Tonasket, Wash. is one of about 200 graduate students who are resident advisers in University living centers. Miss Lund, a graduate of the University of Washington, is head resident of Geneva Cottage, home for 25 freshman women. She and other advisers are responsible for maintaining an atmosphere conducive to learning.

She is enrolled in the Student Personnel Administration program on the college level, which consists of two years of study, leading to a master's degree. Miss Lund plans to seek a doctorate. She is particularly interested in the academic life of foreign students.

Another segment of the graduate student population includes those who hold full-time jobs and study part-time. Nick Muto, principal of the Manlius Elementary School and father of two children, is completing his dissertation for a doctorate in the School of Education.

Muto, a graduate of Auburn University and formerly a graduate assistant in the Central New York School Study Council, hopes to receive his doctorate next year. He plans to remain in the field of education in Central New York.

To use a phrase from a Broadway musical, graduate students are "a little older, a little wiser."

One Battle the Indians Have to Win

SINCE today's game matches Saltine Warriors against Seminoles, this is one battle the Indians have to win. The question remaining to be answered is which tribe—the Syracuse variety or the Florida State species?

This is the initial meeting so there is no past performance on which to base indications but for those who like to toss around facts here is one interesting sequence: Florida State defeated Miami (Florida) which in turn stopped Southern California which in turn edged Washington which just last Saturday upended unbeaten UCLA. And back in September right here in Archbold the Uclans. . .

That was September and there is little resemblance between the Orange of today and the Orange of September. The Orangemen of September lost back to back decisions to Baylor and UCLA and allowed 66 points in the process. In six games since, SU hasn't lost and its stubborn defenders have given up but 44 points.

With Larry Csonka bowling over everybody in sight, Capt. Floyd Little again healthy, and with its defensive claws sharpened for battle, the Orangemen of Ben Schwartzwalder hope they have the weapons to blunt the wide open, imaginative offense served up by Seminole chief Bill Peterson.

Known for his powerful passing offense, Peterson has added a crunching ground game this fall and the combo has made Florida State more dangerous than ever.

The Seminoles have passed for 1677 yards and eight touchdowns while the ground route has accounted for 996 yards and 13 TDs.

Gary Pajcic (16), only a sophomore, has completed 96 passes for 1181 yards. Both totals earn him the No. 3 spot for passes completed and yards gained passing in a season and he has three games left in '66.

Pajcic has shown no favorites—five players have 11 or more receptions with Ron Sellers, (34), another sophomore, tops with 44 for 656 yards. Bill Moreman (30) is the top rusher with 359 yards on 99 carries.

The home finale brings thousands of parents to campus for the weekend. Florida State brings a potent arsenal of weapons that Indians of another generation would have marveled at. This should be a fitting battle on which to draw the curtain on Archbold for another fall.

College Football—An American Institution

This year, 1966, and the eight-day span of November 12-19, has been officially designated COLLEGE FOOTBALL WEEK by the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the American Football Coaches Association. Many great Americans have referred, some with considerable eloquence, to the place of football in our free society.

When President Lyndon B. Johnson received, in January of this year, the Tuss McLaughry Outstanding American Citizen Award from the American Football Coaches Association, he unmistakably spoke his personal conviction that the game of football and the men who coach it make significant contribution to the strength of this nation and its people. Among the things he said were these:

"Football is really and truly an American institution. It embodies our highest ideals of character and courage . . . Presidents and Cabinet Officers and Justices and leaders in every walk of life have first learned the lessons of discipline, of dedication, out on the athletic fields of the United States

"There is not a day passes that I do not see the results of the training that you have given our young people; first, on the battlefield; second, in our services throughout our installations in the Continental United States; third, in the far-flung corridors of various offices that I attempt to direct and whose personnel I attempt to lead.

"If all nations in the world would conduct their affairs with the same dedication and with the same fair play and with the same friendly competition that the game of football stands for, peace would have been secured a long time ago."

We couldn't agree with President Johnson more. In behalf of those we represent, we are proud to be a part of such a significant activity—a great sport inherent to this nation's system of higher education.

A NUMBER of members of the football coaching fraternity have stated that when the ball goes into the air, three things can happen and two of them are bad—the interception or the incompleteness. Florida State coach Bill Peterson firmly believes in the third factor and as a result his teams put the pigskin into the air and with noticeable success. His 1964 team was 8-1-1 and defeated Oklahoma in the Gator Bowl, 36-19. A graduate of Ohio Northern University, he coached at several Ohio high schools before moving into the college ranks as offensive line coach at Louisiana State. He took over the Seminole controls in 1960 and is finishing his seventh season. He is an active leader in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

FLOYD (BEN) SCHWARTZWALDER coaches football the same way he played it—to win. And he has been doing a pretty good job. Now in his 18th season at Syracuse, Ben's log shows 108 wins, 53 setbacks and two ties. Add his three-year effort at Muhlenberg and the totals read 133-58-2. This brilliant record has earned him the No. 9 spot among all active college coaches. Arriving on Piety Hill in 1949, Ben took over what was left from a 1-8 team and produced a 4-5 show. That was his first and only season on the short side of .500. Since, he has guided the Orange to one national championship, three eastern titles and six bowl appearances. Ben is a graduate of West Virginia where he played under the fabulous Greasey Neale. He coached at several high schools then enlisted in the paratroops after Pearl Harbor. He assumed the head job at Muhlenberg after being separated from the service.

Ernie Davis Leukemia Fund

For the third year in a row, numerous colleges and universities have sponsored various types of programs on their campuses to help raise funds for the Ernie Davis Leukemia Fund. The idea was started three years ago at Brockport State College and has spread all across the country. The eventual goal is to establish a research chair in the name of the former Syracuse All-America. Anyone interested in honoring the memory of Ernie may do so by sending his or her contribution to: Ernie Davis Leukemia Fund, c/o Don Clifford, 20 William St., Auburn, N. Y.

Orange Cagers Prep for Opener

"With the gridders having just two to play,
Can basketball season be far away?"

For head coach Fred Lewis and the 1966-67 edition of the Syracuse basketball team the season is already three weeks old, although the first game is not until December 3rd (at George Washington).

Reporting back to Lewis for another year of duty are George Hicker, Vaughn Harper, Rick Dean, Richie Cornwall, Steve Ludd, Tom Ringlemann, and Tom Bednark.

Hicker, a junior who averaged 15.9 points last year coming off the bench, is the big question mark. The Franklinville, N. Y. native was involved in a serious auto accident last spring and had to undergo a leg operation. A lot of hopes ride on his return to normal.

Senior co-captains Rick Dean and Vaughn Harper will definitely be back to lead the Orange on its quest to repeat the fine 22-6 record of last year. Rick, at 6-6, and the 6-4 Harper will be counted on to supply the muscle up front.

Junior guard Richie Cornwall (5-11) will be the floor general and his back-court compatriot is yet to be decided.

The biggest problem Lewis has to face is the graduation of seven seniors, among them one Mr. David Bing who had three quite successful seasons at SU before going on to play pro basketball. Also lost was talented Jim Boenheim who provided a lot of outside punch.

The fifth year coach is hopeful the sophomores can pick up some of the slack.

Bob Kouwe, Dave Aldrich and Frank Hamblen lead the newcomers. Aldrich, at 6-7 could help Harper and Dean up front. He rates a "greatly improved" mark so far this year and should see plenty of action.

Kouwe, the leading scorer (19.6 per game) on last year's frosh squad which ran to an 11-5 mark and Hamblen, a fine outside shooter, should also become familiar faces to Orange faithful.

Ray Balukas who averaged 13.1, Tim Mantho and Larry Katz fill out the squad.

The 1965-66 Bing-led squad was SU's finest ever, compiling a record-setting 99.03 point per game average in going to the NCAA Eastern finals.

The Orange, thin on number of personnel this year, will feature a fast breaking, good shooting offense and a rough defense. Hicker, Cornwall, Ludd and Ringlemann are all deadly chuckers, and from in close Dean (who had a record-setting 13 for 13 from the field against Colgate last year) is rough to stop.

Syracuse participates in two tournaments this Christmas. First to Boston and then to Philly for the Quaker City festivities. (First round Palestra opponent — LaSalle.)

Simmie . . . His Years at SU

THE carefully parted, full head of hair is white and the years have added the wrinkles of time but the heart that beats within the man is as full of youthful zest and competitiveness as it was in those days back in the early twenties when he was quarterbacking Orange teams to 22 wins over a three-year span.

The man is Roy Simmons—"Simmie" to his thousands of friends. When the current football season draws to a close, it will mark the end of his active football coaching.

"I'll continue to scout, however, and teach and coach lacrosse," says the man who has been coaching at his alma mater since graduating back in 1925.

Simmie has been associated with three national championship teams while at Syracuse, his boxing teams won 14 Eastern crowns, and he produced an undefeated lacrosse team but his biggest thrill is the culmination of all his years—"my biggest thrill is having worked with and coached so many wonderful young men. This has been the highlight of my life."

Born in Philadelphia 65 years ago, Roy's family moved to Chicago when he was young and he attended grammar and high schools in the Windy City.

Arriving on Piety Hill, he quickly claimed the quarterbacking job in his sophomore year (1922). "We didn't do much passing in those days unless long yardage was needed. The ball was much more rounded in those days than it is now."

In 1922, Syracuse was 6-1-2 and one of the wins was over Nebraska. In 1923, the Orange was 8-1 with Nebraska again feeling the SU sting, 7-0.

"Nebraska was the only team to beat Notre Dame and its famed Four Horsemen, doing it both in 1922 and 1923. And we in turn were the only ones who beat Nebraska," said Simmons with a smile as he filled his favorite pipe. "And you know what? We were invited to the Rose Bowl after the '23 campaign but the chancellor didn't think we should go so we stayed home and Penn State went. We beat them, also, that year, 10-0 as I recall."

How has the game changed and has the change been for the good?

"Well, as I see it, there are several changes. Nowadays teams use 40 or 50 players in the course of an afternoon. When I was an undergraduate, everyone was a 60-minute player. Maybe two or three subs would play a little and that was it.

"Another big change is the variety of defenses. We used to play it pretty honest and straight with a six or seven man line. Now there are all sorts of stunts and red dogs. And on offense there is such a variety of sets today while we were single wing or maybe some double wing.

"But the game today is much more exciting. There are long runs, the home run play—it's just a different game."

Roy has some illustrious teammates—Pappy Waldorf and Morty Starobin were at tackle, Bill Fivaz was the center, Jack McBride was the fullback, and Chet Bowman was a halfback.

"These were great guys," said Roy. "Bowman made the 1924 Olympic Team and finished second in the 100-meter run. And Vic Hanson made our '24 club as a sophomore. He was a great competitor.

The spring found Roy turning his talent to lacrosse—"I never saw a game of lacrosse until I came to Syracuse"—and he sparked the Orange to back-to-back national championships in 1924-25.

Following his graduation, Roy was appointed to the coaching staff as defensive backfield coach, a position he has held for 41 years. In the winter of 1925 he organized a boxing team. He guided SU pugilists for the next three decades and during this time won 14 Eastern titles, the national championship in 1936, took his teams to four Orange Bowl and four Sugar Bowl tournaments and watched his young men win more than 100 individual championship titles.

He has coached the Orange lacrosse team since 1931 and has produced many All-Americans including the fabulous Jim Brown, still regarded by most lacrosse experts as the greatest player in the history of the sport. Jim led SU to a 10-0 record in 1957.

Simmie was inducted into the lacrosse Hall of Fame a year ago.

His third national championship was the 1959 football forces that swept everything in sight.

A Marine in World War I, Simmie was commissioned in the Navy shortly after the outbreak of World War II and was a leading figure in the Pre-Flight training program. He recently retired from the Naval Reserve with the rank of Commander.

Although without a political background, Simmie was urged to run for office in 1949 and has been active in the local government of Syracuse since. He is presently serving his third term as president of the Common Council.

Roy's contributions as a player, coach and teacher have been many. Whereas his chief thrill was "in working with so many wonderful kids," countless former athletes today count as their greatest thrill having been coached by Roy D. Simmons. "Simmie's legions would make an army."

W. H. Davis (left), Alcoa's General Manager—Industrial Relations, says: "We've found that Army ROTC graduates with active duty experience as officers possess better than average initiative, foresight, and responsibility. These are qualities we rate very highly, and we gladly pay a premium to get them."

Why did Alcoa hire Rod Wilson?

Because Alcoa needs men to fill key positions—men capable of moving to the top; men who seek and measure up to responsibility. Rod Wilson is that kind of man. An Army ROTC Distinguished Military Graduate at Colorado State University, Rod won an officer's commission in the Regular Army along with his degree. Forty-four months of active duty, including 16 months overseas as an artillery commander, earned Rod Wilson 24-carat credentials as a leader, a man schooled in the demanding disciplines of command, the kind of man Alcoa looks for.

If you're this kind of man, prove it to yourself, and to the companies like Alcoa who are looking for you. How? Get in Army ROTC. Stay with Army ROTC, all the way to success.

"OFFICIAL WATCH FOR THIS GAME — LONGINES — THE WORLD'S MOST HONORED WATCH"

The Rocket Action Cars are out front again!

After you've walked off with all the honors, what do you do for an encore?

Meet Olds Toronado—'67 edition.

Awards for this. Awards for that. Awards for just about everything. But rest on its laurels? Not Toronado. Swinging new look outside. Posh new detailing inside. Doors with torsion-bar spring assists that open easier than ever to the flat-floored, room-for-six interior. Even that fabulous front-wheel-drive ride is smoother and quieter for '67. And front disc brakes and radial ply tires are available. Trend-setting Toronado: Proved and applauded by tens of thousands of satisfied owners. Greater than ever the second time around!

OBEY

Olds thinks of your safety, too, with the GM-developed energy-absorbing steering column that can compress on severe impact up to 8¼ inches, with four-way hazard warning flasher, outside rearview mirror, dual master cylinder brake system, plus many other safety features—all standard for '67.

Engineered for excitement . . . Toronado-style!

Have astronauts made pilots old hat?

Sure, the boys who go off the "pads" get the big, bold headlines. But if you want to fly, the big opportunities are still with the aircraft that take off and land on several thousand feet of runway.

Who needs pilots? TAC does. And MAC. And SAC. And ADC.

There's a real future in Air Force flying. In years to come aircraft may fly higher, faster, and further than we dare dream of. But they'll be flying, with men who've had Air Force flight training at the controls. Of course the Air Force also has plenty of jobs for those who won't be flying. As one of the world's largest and most advanced research and development organizations, we have a continuing need for scientists and engineers.

Young college graduates in these fields will find that they'll have the opportunity to do work that is both interesting and important. The fact is, nowhere will you have greater latitude or responsibility right from the start than on the Aerospace Team — the U.S. Air Force!

Interested? The place to find out more is at the office of the Professor of Aerospace Studies, if there is an Air Force ROTC unit on your campus. Ask about the new 2-year AFROTC program available at many colleges and universities. If you prefer, mail the coupon below.

The College Game Is Best

by JOHN UNDERWOOD

Sports Illustrated

Condensed from SPORTS ILLUSTRATED, Sept. 20, 1965, by Time, Inc. by permission of the publisher

COLLEGE football is a better game than professional football. Better esthetically because there is more art and imagination to it, better technically because it is better coached, more entertaining, certainly more inspiring, more meaningful, more colorful.

Pro football is for fat linemen, quarterbacks who cannot run and coaches who never vary an offense. It is a pale imitation of the college brand.

Almost every pro team runs from what is known as the pro-slot offense (two running backs, a split end and a flanker) but what in reality is pass, pass, pass, ad nauseam. And they all at least begin with a 4-3 defense. Where is the diversity in that? The pros are stereotyped. Exchange the jerseys before almost any game and you would not be able to tell the difference.

The college coaches will try anything—single wing, double wing, spreads, I formation with motion, I with a shift, V, split-T, short-T, tackle-eligible passes, double flankers, scatbacks, pilot-backs, ratbacks, coonskin-hatbacks. When one mode of attack phases out they quickly go to another. Each team has a personality. College coaches learn to adjust to the players on hand. The pros pick through that talent and make it adjust. The pros will not change because they cannot afford to risk an image of failure. It's box office, brother, box office.

How many college coaches would put up with all that whale fat you see running loose on pro fields? At Alabama, Paul Bryant would exile the offender to another country.

There is furthermore a myth that pro ends and flankers have a unique, secret understanding of how to run a pass pattern. Television's isolated camera took care of that. It always shows the familiar tableau. An end runs downfield, cut in, or out, or slants, or buttonhooks or does something else that he first learned in high school—and the quarterback throws him the ball. As simple as that. No mystery.

"The good run is still the most exciting play in football."

The good run is still the most exciting play in football. Interesting, too, is how things open up for you when you run the ball better. The most effective quarterback in pro football last year was Bart Starr of Green Bay—a "running" team. The pros have great running backs. They get the best the colleges can offer. They just do not have great running attacks. No self-respecting college coach would prepare an offense that did not include a reverse trap or two, a few counters, a bootleg, a scissors, some rollouts. You see sucker traps in the pros but you seldom see effective two-on-one blocking. There is little faking. You almost never see a sustained drive, the kind that takes the heart out of a defense. The line play is not crisp, it is just violently heavy.

The pros don't block. Jimmy Brown may be the best running back in the history of pro football but he wouldn't play first team for a lot of college coaches unless he learned to block. A college player blocks, gets up and blocks again. I once saw an LSU lineman block four different men on one play. The college player is reckless and daring and unconcerned about his personal safety. Football is not his life's work, it is his sport.

Red Blaik of Army believed that the extra weight and attitude of the professional combine to work against him when he is called on to go beyond his immediate responsibility—pursuing a fleeing ballcarrier or blocking downfield. College teams thrive on going beyond.

You cannot go to a pro park and see the kind of team Notre Dame had last year with that splendid blend of running and passing, that defensive team that did not eat meat all week so it would have an appetite for Saturdays.

Pro coaches are faceless. With the exception of Vince Lombardi, there has not been a real innovator, an iconoclast in pro football since Paul Brown. Of the present group only Mike Holovak could be called a successful college coach: he won 49 and lost 29 in nine years at Boston College. I do not mean to discredit these men. I just say they do not measure up to the giants of college football—the original thinkers like Bryant, Wilkinson, Tatum, Dodd and Leahy.

College football is Mormon schools, Quaker schools, Baptist, Catholic, neoatheistic schools, poor-boy and rich-boy schools. It is a game for towns like Austin, Tex., Boulder, Colo., South Bend, Ind., Fayetteville, Ark.—or away from the blackened cities and the skinned infields of baseball parks, up where you can see Mt. Rainier in the background, or look out over Lake Cayuga. There is a spirit about it, a drawing together. People identify with a college team and it is totally unlike that tenuous identification a pro fan may feel for two hours on a Sunday afternoon. A pro fan would never understand that.
