This year, we at Chevrolet are going to prove something very important.

We're going to prove that your faith in American ingenuity, technology and skill has not been misplaced.

In the coming months, you'll see that proof in places you may not have checked lately. In our Chevrolet products.

Take a good hard look, this year especially.

You'll discover a Chevrolet that's much more than simply number one in sales.

You'll discover a Chevrolet that's taking charge in providing better, more exciting, affordable products.

Chevrolets built with higher-quality design and assembly procedures.

Chevrolets built with more state-of-the-art production techniques.

Chevrolets with the most advanced automotive technology ever in our history.

Whether or not we become your next new car, we want to make you proud that we are America's car.

We are USA-1. And USA-1 is taking charge.

Teepee Talk

BY WAYNE HOGAN, SPORTS INFORMATION DIRECTOR

... both gambling men

Perhaps ABC's Jim Lampley said it best. It was shortly after Florida State had polished off Ohio State for the second year in a row in Columbus last Saturday afternoon. Lampley was reading down the scores in the New York studio when he came to that one played at Ohio Stadium.

As he read the 34-17 score on the air for the millions of Saturday college football fans he referred to Florida State coach Bobby Bowden as "The Earl Weaver of College Football."

Weaver, as most know, is the freshly retired manager of the Baltimore Orioles. Just what Lampley meant exactly with his statement about Bowden isn't cut and dried, but it does invite some interesting thoughts.

First, Weaver's record at Baltimore speaks for itself. Winning seasons year-after-year—always a contender. Highly successful. Certainly, there is a comparison to be made here. The victory over Ohio State was Bowden's 53rd since he came to Florida State just more than six seasons ago. With a 53-20 mark in Tallahassee and a winning percentage of .726, Bowden, like Weaver, is without question among the most successful in the business.

Somehow, though, one doesn't think it was a comparison based strictly on the win-loss records of the two men.

Second thought here is that there is a similar propensity for winning the "big one." Weaver's clubs through the years have always played well when the chips were down. Many times—in fact most times—the Orioles struggled through the early months. Like this season, they would commonly find themselves far back in August. But always, there was the inevitable surge in September. When many clubs and managers wilted under the pennant pressure, Weaver's O's were at their best. The wily skipper time and again would win the games they had to have against the teams they had to beat. If you ever needed a giant-killer in the stretch you could count on Baltimore.

Bowden, in a way, has led the Seminoles in similar fashion. Never flashy in the early going and never a finely-honed machine against the lesser opponents, Bowden's Seminoles have thrived on what amounts to "pennant pressure." If the Milwaukee Brewers were on the Florida State schedule this fall you have the feeling they would be in a similar pickle to the one they were in last weekend in Baltimore. One gets the feeling that if Bowden were helping Earl Weaver in the Oriole dugout last Sunday that the latter's announced retirement would have been pushed back until after the playoffs. Baltimore would still be playing.

All of that is well and good, but it seems clear that Lampley's main comparison was one of style. Weaver, you see, has been known to pull every trick in the proverbial book. By all standards, he is baseball's biggest gambler. One gets the idea that Bowden, like Weaver, would put all his earthly possessions on the table even though he had a pair of deuces in his hand.

If Earl Weaver would steal second down by five runs in the ninth inning, Bowden would use a fake field goal in the fourth quarter of a tie game. Both men have been called everything from masterminds to madmen, Modern day Houdinis these guys.

One veteran press box observer was heard to say that "Bobby Bowden gambles more than any religious man I know."

After last Saturday's game at Columbus, many Buckeye fans were believing that Kenny Rogers' famous song was named for Florida State's head coach. He opened with a double reverse on the game's first play and ran nearly every trick play imaginable. When quarterback Kelly Lowrey caught a touchdown pass from fullback Cedric Jones that took the cake. Only Earl Weaver or Bobby Bowden would have called that play. Bowden chuckled after the game when asked about the play. "Cute wasn't it?" he asked.

Bowden himself stole one of Kenny's lines when he discussed an unsuccessful attempt on fourth-and-two at the Ohio State 25. Eschewing the field goal, the coach had called for—of all things—an end-around with freshman Tony Smith carrying the mail.

"You gotta know when to hold 'em and know when to fold 'em," he said in his post-game interview. "I guess we should've folded 'em on that play."

But Earl Weaver would have never folded there and neither would Bobby Bowden. Yes, they are two of a kind, those two. Weaver has, however, folded 'em as far as his career as a manager is concerned. Bowden, hopefully, is many years from that point. There's a case to be made that by the time Florida State's "Houdini" folds 'em some ABC announcer, somewhere, maybe even an older Jim Lampley, will say when remembering the two: "Earl Weaver was the Bobby Bowden of major league baseball."

GAME NOTES: This is the first meeting ever between these two teams and will likely be the last for a while ... Southern Illinois is a member of the Missouri Valley Conference—the Seminoles played Tulsa of that league here two years ago ... Southern Illinois quarterback Rick Johnson is well on his way to breaking many of that school's passing records held by St. Louis Cardinal QB Jim Hart, a former Saluki great ... Southern Illinois got off to a 3-0 start but has lost its last two games to Arkansas State (35-30) and Southwest Louisiana (20-10) ... the Salukis had won seven straight road games prior to last week's loss ... Florida State has two backs that have gone over the 1,000-yard mark in career rushing—Greg Allen has 1,155 yards (8th all-time) and Ricky Williams is at 1,115 (9th on the all-time list) ... Tony Johnson has caught 14 passes for 256 yards in his last two games ... Seminoles are at home again next week against East Carolina.

When Football Started In Florida We Were Starting Our 29th Year.

In 1906, Floridians cheered their first college football game. And Barnett celebrated its 29th year in Florida.

Of course, football's come a long way since those early days.

And, we're happy to say, so have we.

Today, Barnett Banks do business with more people in more places than any other banks in Florida. And the reason is simple.

Because for 103 years, we've made a practice of making our customers #1 at Barnett.

All Barnett Banks are members FDIC.

It's a (Young) Season

BY DAN PEARSON
ASSISTANT SPORTS
INFORMATION DIRECTOR

At any given moment on the football field, two opposing forces are present—one that wants to move the ball forward and one that wants to keep the ball where it's at or move it backward.

It is the team that wants to move the ball forward, the offense, that most young men want to play on. After all, it's the quarterbacks, running backs and wide receivers who score the points, receive most of the glory and are referred to as "skill" position players.

Tommy Young, a native of nearby Lake City, was no different. From the very start of his playing career at Columbia High School, he was a fullback and a starter. So when it came time to select a college, there was no doubt that Young would only go to a place that wanted him as a running back.

"Some schools mentioned using me at other positions, but most said they projected me to play running back," Young says. "The choice came down to Georgia, Florida, Tulane and Florida State. I liked Florida a lot but they were having problems and the morale seemed poor. I also liked Tulane but after talking with Coach Bowden and wanting to stay close to home, I knew Florida State was the right place to me."

The norm in college football is for a school to recruit five or six running backs a year, with full knowledge if one turns out to be a starter somewhere down the line it was an average recruiting class.

Young's first two years were typical. "Everybody wants to be a running back," Young says. "When I came to Tallahassee I was probably like a thousand other high school players and I thought I was on my way to becoming a college star at running back."

After a few short days on campus, Young quickly re-evaluated his goals. "It didn't take long to realize that everybody at this level was just as good," he says. "I changed my goals from wanting to start right away to just making the travel squad."

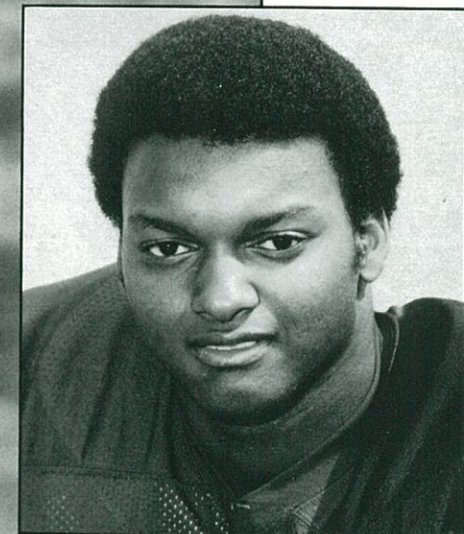

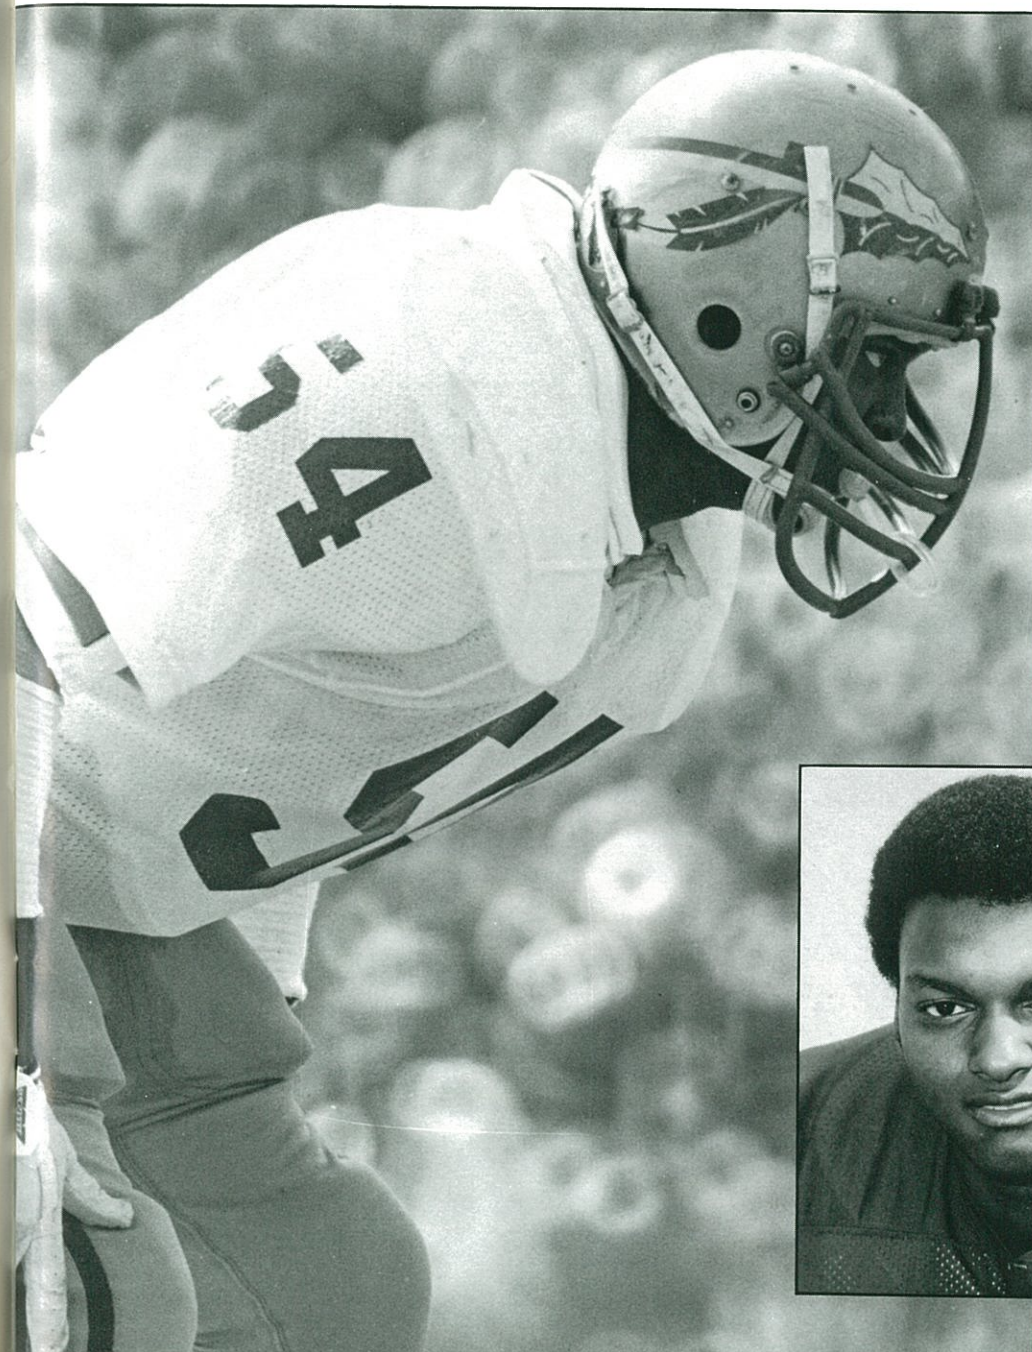

During his first season as a Seminole, Young did not accomplish his goal of making the travel squad but he performed well on the junior varsity squad. During the preseason of his sophomore year, the coaching staff decided to redshirt Young.

"To be redshirted is a weird feeling," Young says. "You practice just as hard but you don't play in any games. It was tough from that standpoint, but knowing that we had great fullbacks like Mark Lyles and Mike Whiting made me realize that playing time would have been limited so the redshirt was easier to take."

When the spring of 1980 came, Young was ready to make his move. When Mike Whiting, the number one fullback, went down with an injury, Young was propelled to the top spot. It was here that the injury bug began to play a role in Tommy's career.

"Everything was going great, I was listed as number one fullback and had three years of eligibility left. I was ready to play and then I tore my knee up before I ever got into a game," Young relates. When he returned from the injury, Young again found himself at the bottom of the depth chart at fullback.

It was during the Seminole's 1981 Orange Bowl preparations that Young started to make the switch from fullback to linebacker. "We were getting ready to play Oklahoma after the 10-1

Head Coach

Bowden . . .
A Most Successful
FSU Institution

When comparing Bobby Bowden's stay at Florida State to the tenure of previous Seminole head football coaches, the current Tribe mentor is a senior citizen.

After all, when FSU kicks off September 4 against Cincinnati it will mark the seventh season Bowden has patrolled the Garnet and Gold sidelines. That may not seem like a whole lot of years to some folks, but a quick check of the record book shows only one previous head coach (Bill Peterson) in Seminole history has lasted more than six seasons.

Thus, the upcoming season will make Bowden second in longevity to only Peterson in the 35-year history of Florida State football.

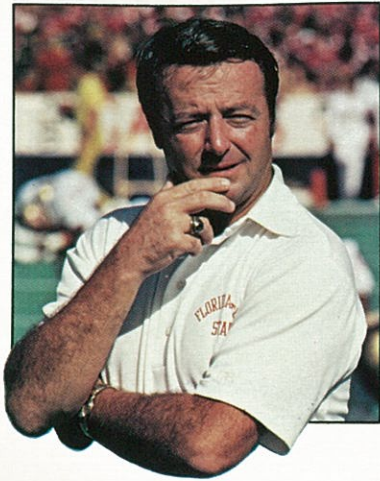

Bowden's success is also reflected in his FSU won-loss record of 50-19. After he picked up that 50th victory last season he became only the second head coach at FSU to reach that figure. Now, he's just 13 shy of becoming the all-time win leader for the Seminoles.

Long time observers of college football aren't surprised by Bowden's success, however. Success is synonymous with Bowden. He has had the same sort of winning record at his previous head coaching stops—Samford and West Virginia.

At Samford, he was 31-6 over four seasons. His teams never lost more than two in a season and twice (1959 & 1960) the clubs lost just once. In six years at West Virginia, he piloted the Mountaineers to a 42-26 record and two Peach Bowl appearances. His 50-19 FSU ledger gives him a career mark of 123-51, a winning percentage of .707.

Bowden has turned the Florida State program around. It's no longer the ugly duckling of the collegiate football scene in the state of Florida when the Seminoles were 0-11, 1-10 and 3-8. Bowden has made Garnet and Gold fans enjoy football again.

He has made the program so successful that he has surprised even himself by staying in Tallahassee despite numerous job offers that have accompanied his success. And, most observers now believe that since he stuck it through what many consider the roughest schedule in the history of college football last fall, he will remain at FSU many more years.

"You know what I figured?" Bowden asked when discussing the 1981 season. "I wouldn't be here. I'd do good and get another job, or if I didn't, I wouldn't be here to face that schedule."

Now, read the analysis of The New York Times' Malcolm Moran, who spent a week with the Tribe and Bowden last fall.

"He became an institution. His speaking delivery combines the drawl of the region and the dramatic effect of a preacher with the timing and wit of a stand-up comic. It is a gift. He has the ability to inspire his players in solemn tones, addressing them as 'men,' and then break bread with the boosters who sit laughing hysterically while the coach talks about his ol' boys."

Bowden committed himself to Florida State following the 1979 season when he signed an automatically renewing five-year contract that contains a clause unique to college athletics—if Bowden elects to resign from his current employer for another coaching position, he must pay FSU for the time remaining on the contract.

"It means we are married and nobody's going to put our marriage assunder," Bowden explained. "I didn't want to go anywhere. I wanted to stay here. I love it here. Florida State and its fans aren't spoiled yet."

Indeed, Bowden seems like the perfect match for the Seminole football program.

The Birmingham, Ala., native has been able to tie together the loose ends of a major college football program with his down-home country, folksy way of getting things done. A city slicker he ain't.

He has the ways of a southern cracker yet the polish of a sophisticated head coach from the eastern establishment thanks to a six-year head coaching stint at West Virginia. Bowden has been able to find the right blend that makes him the second most popular head coach in the south today. Only Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama draws more attention.

Florida State's accomplishments under Bowden have been numerous . . .

(1) A 50-19 record in six seasons compared to a 26-41 log in the six years B.B. (Before Bowden);

(2) Back-to-back Orange Bowl appearances when the school had never previously appeared in a major New Year's Day post-season contest;

(3) Second place spots in both the Associated Press and United Press International Top 20 polls at the close of the 1980 regular season;

(4) Consecutive Top 10 finishes in the final wire service polls of 1979 and 1980 when FSU only once previously since 1947 had finished in the Top 20.

There have been three bowl appearances in six seasons—the 1977 Tangerine and 1980 and 1981 Orange Bowls. And during the 1979 and 1980 seasons the Tribe was consistently ranked among the Top 20.

Bowden has twice been named National Coach of the Year. First the honor was given by ABC-TV and Chevrolet after the 1979 season and at the close of the 1980 campaign, the American Sportsmanship Council named him its "Bobby Dodd Coach of the Year." Twice he has been the Associated Press Southern Independent Coach of the Year.

Despite the numerous coaching accomplishments and victories on the field, Bowden is still a very basic person. He says his life can be divided into four priorities: family, religion, football and golf.

(1) Family—He and wife Ann have raised six children, three of whom have played different roles on Bowden's teams at West Virginia or FSU. The latest to play is wide receiver Jeff, who completes his eligibility at FSU this fall. The senior Bowdens also have five grandchildren.

(2) Religion—Bowden is a born-again Christian who often gives his testimony to church groups. Football, he says, often collides with Christianity.

"I would hope religion would take precedence," he says, "but sometimes, no matter how hard I try, I slip. Christians aren't perfect, but a lot of people don't understand that."

"He became an institution. His speaking delivery combines the drawl of the region and the dramatic effect of a preacher with the timing and wit of a stand-up comic. It is a gift. He has the ability to inspire his players in solemn tones, addressing them as 'men,' and then break bread with the boosters who sit laughing hysterically while the coach talks about his ol' boys."

(3) Football—"I want to keep coaching as long as I'm healthy. I have no interest in being an athletic director because I don't like book work."

Bowden's biggest accomplishment, according to Bowden, is the 10-2 season his Seminoles put together in his second season (1977). His immediate goals are a national championship and major bowl victory.

(4) Golf—Golf is his only recreation. He picked it up when he was coaching at South Georgia and worked in the summer as a lifeguard at the Douglas Country Club. He currently plays in the high 70s/low 80s and can be found almost daily on the course during the off-season.

"Golf has really helped my football," Bowden says. "It's taught me patience and that you're never out of it. I've seen the pressure you can put on somebody by playing well, and that works in football, too."

Born on November 8, 1929, Bowden attended Woodlawn High School in Birmingham. He later became a Little All-American quarterback for Samford University. He holds a bachelor's degree from Samford and a master's from Peabody College. He married his childhood sweetheart, the former Julia Ann Estock, and they have six children.

Doak Has Grounds to Brag On

BY DAN PEARSON
ASSISTANT SPORTS INFORMATION DIRECTOR

Amidst all the color, glamour and pageantry involved with the Seminole football program, it is often easy to overlook certain items that make a game possible at Doak Campbell Stadium.

Have you ever noticed the top quality playing surface at both the football and baseball stadiums? Have you ever noticed how clean and well kept all the athletic and intramural fields are? If you are one of the few that has, or one of the many that never really paid that much attention to it, you may find it interesting to note that few universities and colleges around the country can match the quality of playing and practice facilities that Florida State boasts.

Quality athletic fields have been the norm at Florida State for the past 20 years, thanks to the efforts of Robert Barrett and his crew of 11 workers.

Under the supervision of Barrett, the crew is responsible for the upkeep of all athletic fields, intramural fields and the Florida High field.

It's a big job and it keeps Barrett and his team busy 12 months out of the year. "I guess it would be pretty easy to overlook the amount of time that it takes to get a football field in shape," Barrett says. "People will come to a game and may say the field looks great, but I'm sure most do not realize the tremendous amount of man hours that were required to get that field ready to play on."

The present turf at Doak Campbell Stadium was laid as sod nearly three years ago. The first decision that had to be made was what type of grass should be used.

"It may not sound like a big deal, but the type of grass has got to be suited to the environment you will be planting it in," Barrett says. "Grass used for a golf course is not necessarily suited to football and grass planted for a football field in Pennsylvania would not be the right grass for Doak. We had to take into consideration climate, rainfall, durability and maintenance requirements."

Taking all factors into consideration, Florida State decided on Bermuda Grass-419 for Doak Campbell Stadium. "We studied the situation carefully and decided that the general consensus was that it was the best type of grass available for football," Barrett says.

But the actual laying of the turf was just the first step in the never ending process of ensuring a great playing surface at Florida State. Field maintenance is a job that must go on five days a week from early spring throughout November.

As Barrett says, "we start right after the Garnet and Gold game in the spring. We verti-cut (mowing process where the grass is thinned out) the field and then airify the field. We then top dress the field with over 100 cubic yards of sand. This helps fill in any low spots in the field."

"Following this process, we begin to fertilize the field on a bi-weekly basis. For the football field this means a treatment of about 350-lbs. of Ammonia Nitrate the first week and about 500-lbs. of a different fertilizer 14-days later. We then alternate these two procedures every two weeks from early March into late November or early December."

If this procedure seems complex, it should be remembered that fertilizing is only part of the crew's worries. "Watering is another big area of concern," Barrett says. "Although the amount of watering depends solely on the amount of rainfall, we generally water twice a week. It wouldn't take long for a hot Florida sun to kill the grass if we would forget to water it."

Hot weather in the summer also brings a problem that most would find hard to believe—army worms. "Every July we have to battle the creatures," Barrett says. "Basically the army worm is a defoliating worm like a caterpillar and if we left it unchecked it could literally destroy the grass field in a matter of weeks. I mean strip the field clean."

Other than the natural elements, Barrett must contend with other problems in order to keep all the fields in shape. Proper mowing is an important part in this process. Bermuda grass at the football and baseball stadiums and practice fields is not like a person's front lawn. Barrett notes that in order to maintain properly, it has to be mowed two to three times a week during the growing season. "Properly kept for football and baseball, Bermuda grass should be no more than an inch or so high," Barrett says. "If you see it two or three inches long like at some stadiums, it's a sign that it isn't being maintained properly."

Surprisingly, the actual playing of athletic contests does little to damage the surface. "During the Pitt game we thought the combination of the players movement with all that rain would really rip up the grass surface," Barrett says. "Surprisingly, it held really well with minimal damage."

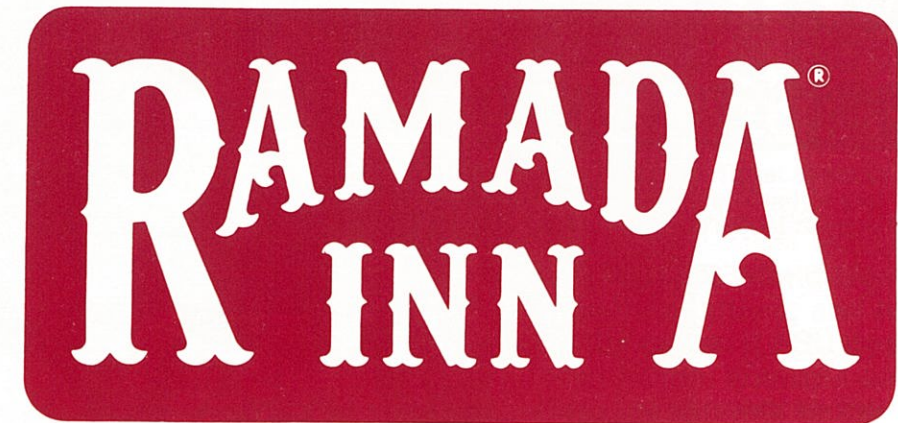

Sources close to athletics have more than once commented on the quality of FSU's fields. Writers from out of state often note that the field looks like artificial turf from a distance. Opposing players and coaches often compliment the field after a game, noting that it looks more like a putting green than football field.

Florida State head coach Bobby Bowden added that "several pros have told me that our field is as fine a surface as any in pro football. As for myself, I firmly believe that our practice and game fields are as good or better than any facility in the country. The crews do a great job with it."

FSU head baseball coach Mike Martin also has strong feelings towards Barrett's crew. "I really would not like to see what our field would be like without Robert Barrett and his crew. No matter what they are doing, professional is the only word to describe it," Martin says. "If everyone in the country had the same pride in their work that Robert's crew has, we'd all be a lot better off."

Rather than grab the credit for the shape of FSU's athletic facilities, Barrett quickly dishes the praise off to his workers. "I think what makes our field a little better than most universities is the people I have working for me. I have 11 guys that take a heck of a lot of pride in what they are doing and take a lot of pride in what the final product looks like," Barrett says. "It's their attitude that makes the difference. We have one guy, Leroy Colston, that has been working for us for over 20 years."

"As a crew leader, Leroy takes a lot of personal satisfaction over what the facilities look like. He wants everything to look great and be right. I think that's real typical for all our workers."

Henry Corners New Position

BY DAN PEARSON
ASSISTANT SPORTS INFORMATION DIRECTOR

When Florida State football coaches met prior to the opening of spring drills last March, one of the primary concerns was how to strengthen the defensive backfield. During the 1980 season, opposing quarterbacks had ravaged the FSU secondary for 2,367 yards and 17 touchdowns in just 11 games.

At that time, the feeling of the defensive back coaches was that with several promising newcomers, along with the return of Gary Henry, the Seminoles would be a much improved defensive team.

It was believed that Henry, who sat out the 1981 season after earning a starting position at safety during spring drills, would again challenge either Larry Harris or Brian McCrary for a slot in the starting lineup.

At any rate, Henry's experience would give the Seminoles at least a fourth dependable safety.

Although the 6-1, 185-lb. Henry was unable to win a starting position in the spring, a freak accident has led to his return as an important factor in the Seminole lineup.

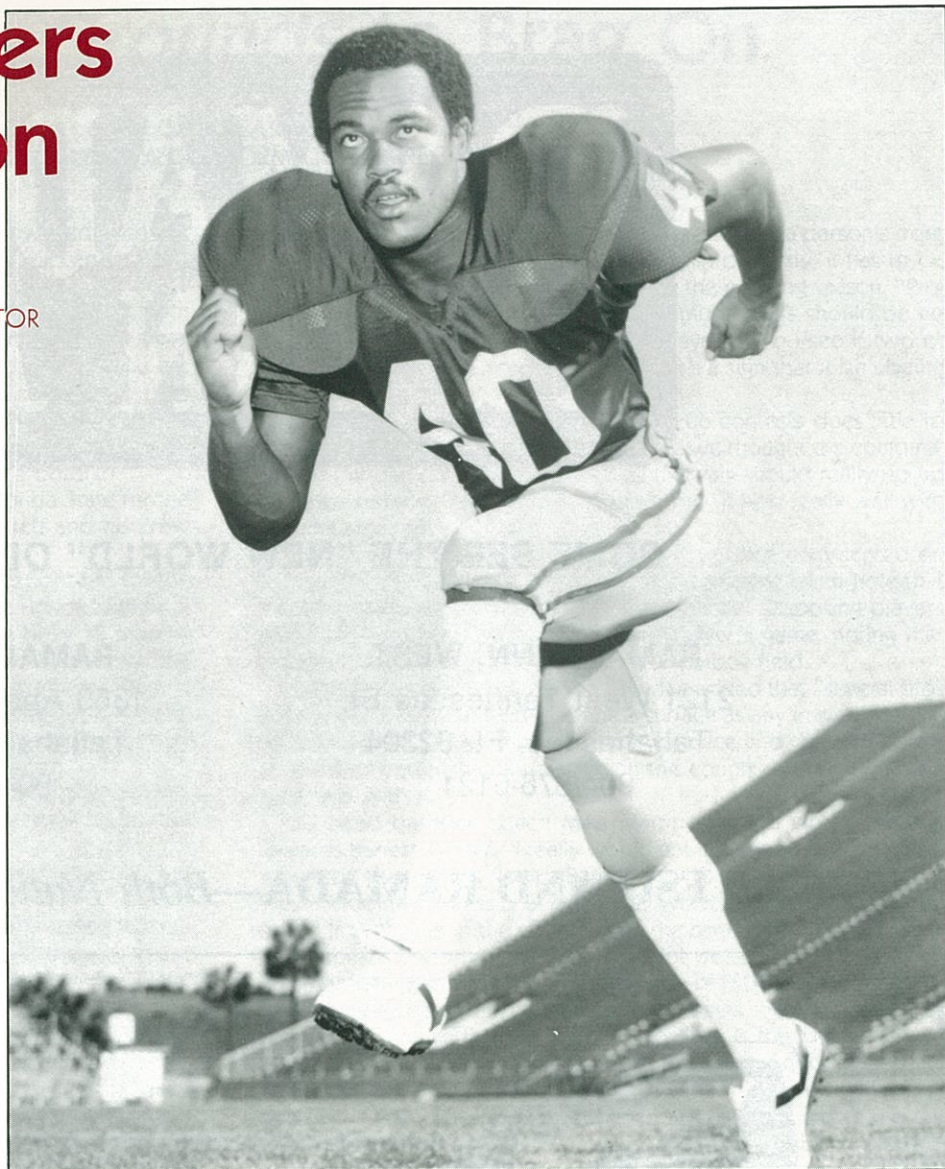

During the Tribe's 37-31 win over Cincinnati in the opening game, starting cornerback Warren Hanna went down with a knee injury. When diagnosed by head trainer Don Pauls as being serious enough to keep Hanna out of action for at least a month, it became apparent that a replacement had to be found quickly.

After several days, it was decided that Henry would be switched to cornerback to replace Hanna. It was not an easy transition according to Monk Bonasorte, part-time defensive back coach.

"To switch from safety to cornerback is one of the toughest things to ask a defensive back to do," the former FSU All-American safety says. "The responsibilities are totally different and quarterbacks tend to pick on corners more."

Henry concurs with Bonasorte's opinion. "It wasn't an easy adjustment by any means. I had difficulty remembering what a corner had to do on every play and would often make mistakes. What made the change a little easier was that I realized that this was a unique opportunity for me to help my team and I wanted to do that more than anything."

Pittsburgh and Southern Mississippi were difficult first games for Henry at the new position. Although a driving rain storm kept Pitt quarterback Danny Marino from throwing a lot and Southern Mississippi mainly kept the ball on the ground, Henry did not grade well on the films.

"We grade all defensive backs after each game. Regardless of whether the play is a pass or run, each back has a certain responsibility and we grade a plus or minus for that play," Bonasorte says. "Gary Henry did not play great in those first two games because of little things like failing to hit the wide receiver on every play. But all that could be attributed to his being new at the position."

As each week passes, Henry becomes better and better at the corner position. During the Ohio State game, he was selected as a Golden Chief—an honor bestowed on any defensive player who grades out above a specific percentage.

"Gary graded out at better than 70% which is required for defensive backs to make the Golden Chiefs against Ohio State," Bonasorte says. "I think it's a real credit to Gary to earn the honor after just three games at cornerback and I also think it's a good sign of things to come from Gary."

Although Henry has improved with each game, he is the first to admit that he has a long way to go before becoming a good cornerback for a major college football team. "I was really encouraged when I was told I made Golden Chiefs for the Ohio State game," the Orlando native says. "But at the same time I know that I have a lot to learn. The longer I play the position the better I will become."

Gary's development at cornerback and the entire defensive backfield's improvement are often listed as keys to Florida State's chances at becoming a good football team.

Bonasorte believes in this strongly. "Last year we got beat deep constantly and I think it embarrassed our defensive backs a little," he says. "We seemed to have everything set in the defensive backfield this year until Warren got hurt. Gary has done a good job filling in and as he plays that position more, I believe that our backfield will become better and better. We have the potential to be a good secondary."

Henry also sees the defensive backfield as a key to the Seminoles success. "The defensive backs have to play better if we're going to win," Henry says. "We can't afford to let quarterbacks throw on us like they did last year. Although we're still making mistakes, I think the whole secondary is working hard and improving each week."

ALMA MATER

High o'er the towering pines our voices swell,
Praising those Gothic spires we love so well,
Here sons and daughters stand, faithful and true.
Hailing our ALMA MATER, FSU.

FIGHT SONG

©Music by Thomas Wright
Words by Doug Alley
You've got to fight, fight, fight, for FSU.
You've got to scalp 'em Seminoles.
You've got to win, win, win, win this game and roll on down to make those goals.
For FSU is on the warpath now and at the battle's end, she's great
So fight, fight, fight to victory, our Seminoles from Florida State.
(Yell) F-L-O-R-I-D-A S-T-A-T-E
Florida State! Florida State!
Florida State!
(Repeat song)

FLORIDA STATE VICTORY SONG

We are on the warpath tonight.
Onward, Florida State.
Show all the world the spirit and might that the Seminoles create.
Stand up for the Garnet and Gold.
Ever loyal we shall be.
We are proud to shout,
"The Warriors are out." And they will lead us to victory.

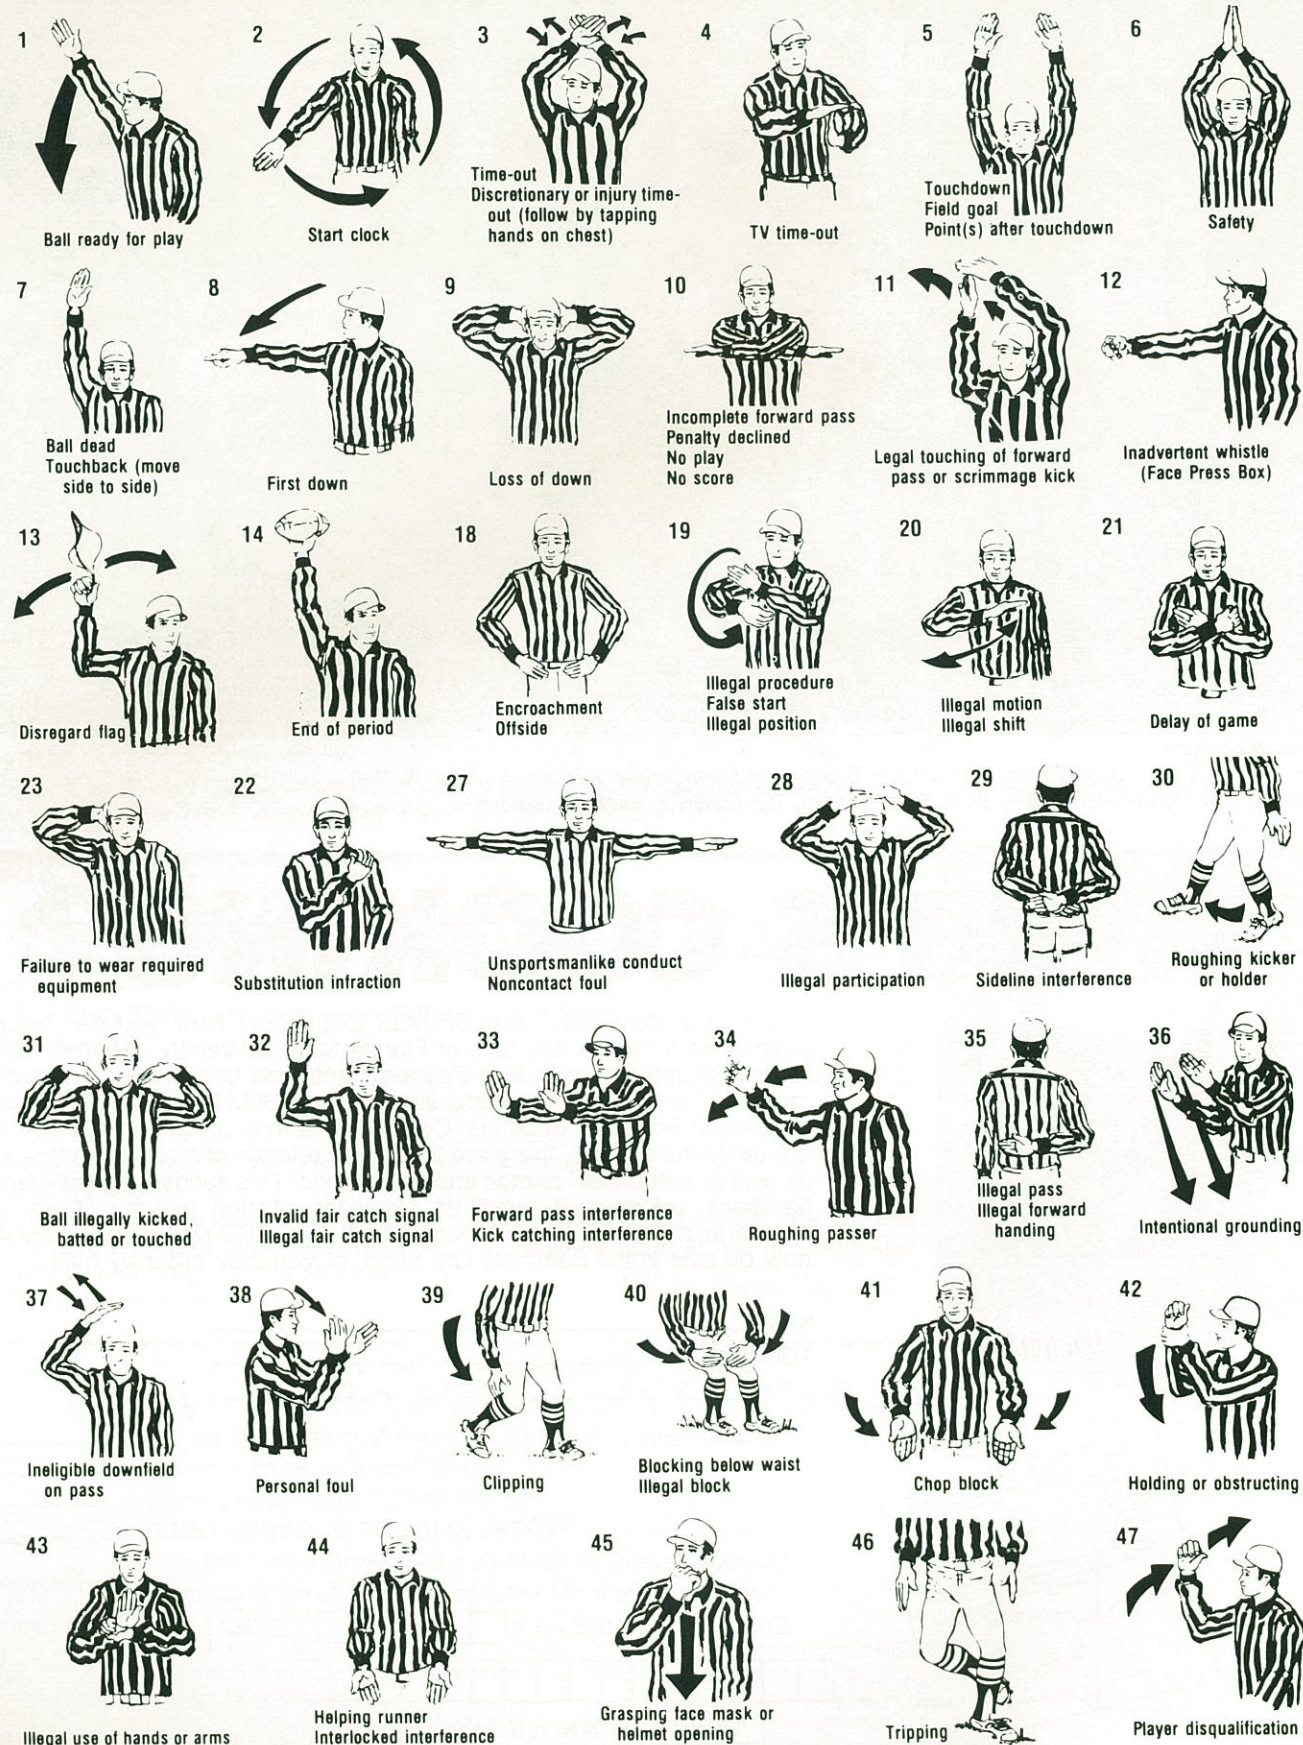

HYMN TO THE GARNET AND GOLD

Here's a hymn to the GARNET and GOLD ringing to the sky.
Here's a song for our men and women bold, sing with heads held high.
Striving ere to seek to know, fight for victory.
Alma Mater, this song to you,
Echoes, FSU.

The Presidents Club

Florida State has served Florida and the nation throughout the twentieth century under the institutional titles of Florida State College for Women and Florida State University. Under the guidance of a succession of truly outstanding presidents, it has achieved its present position as one of the finest universities in the country. The name THE PRESIDENTS CLUB is attached to this FUND to not only recognize these distinguished presidents but to focus attention upon the critical importance of the academic assistance we provide through this CLUB.

Florida State has become a fine university because of the strength of its academic programs and the importance its leadership has always placed upon the examination of proposals which had a potential for the development of still greater academic strength. The resources of THE PRESIDENTS CLUB are focused upon this insistence that the academic programs in a fine university such as Florida State can be improved.

Ideally, those universities aspiring to be leaders in developing new ideas will always have the resources for testing and development. The economic realities are such, however, that the present austerity in university budgeting will continue. The ability of our President to exercise leadership in testing ideas for academic improvements will be lessened.

That is why THE PRESIDENTS CLUB—A FUND FOR ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE is devoted to the support of academic programs. That is why a contribution to THE PRESIDENTS CLUB is never used for anything but enhancement of an academic program.

What it means to be a breed apart.

Merrill Lynch is the largest investment firm in Florida. But being a breed apart is more than just size; it's offering the service, convenience and versatility needed to satisfy the investment needs of all Floridians.

Service. Behind the scenes, the largest research department of any investment firm covers all the major industries, issuing fundamental opinions on more than 1400 widely traded issues. And it is all available to you through your personal account executive. Merrill Lynch has more than 700 account executives in Florida alone, so your representatives will have the time to discuss your finances, your goals and your opportunities.

Convenience. There are many times when a transaction can be completed by a simple phone call. But there are other times when you want to sit down and talk to your account executive, to thoroughly plan your next investment move. At those times, it's good to know there's a Merrill Lynch office nearby. In fact, we have 45 offices located throughout Florida.

Versatility. Floridians have special investment needs, and Merrill Lynch has the resources to meet them. We can help you reach your personal financial goals, despite a rapidly changing economy. For instance, if you're living on a fixed income, you'll be happy to know that Merrill Lynch is one of Florida's largest marketers of bond funds and annuities.

How can Merrill Lynch's unmatched resources benefit you? Look in your white pages for your nearest Merrill Lynch office or call toll-free, 1-800-526-3030, Ext. 904.

NCAA: Serving Higher Education

Now in its 77th year of service, the National Collegiate Athletic Association continues to meet the demands of its member institutions. While serving the nation's colleges and universities, the NCAA is the voice of intercollegiate athletics.

A call for stricter control of college football by President Theodore Roosevelt because of the violence in the game brought together 13 institutions in 1905, formulating the original communications base for college athletics.

This initial body called itself the Intercollegiate Athletic Association and was officially constituted March 31, 1906. In 1910, the name was changed to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

More than seven progressive decades have molded this original 13-member body into a membership today of more than 900 colleges, universities, conferences and affiliated organizations.

Administration and rules interpretation occupied early efforts of the organization. Shortly after World War II, the NCAA adopted legislative and executive powers, changing its function into one dealing with virtually all issues concerned with intercollegiate athletics.

Many things have become associated with the NCAA during its colorful history. Highest priority goes to the service it provides to its members, acting as the true "voice" of college athletics today.

Each January the NCAA membership comes together at the annual Convention to review, propose and amend legislation. The Convention presents the opportunity for the nation's institutions of higher learning to speak and act on athletic matters on the national level.

Acting in the best interests of its membership, the NCAA strives to perform these specific functions among its many other responsibilities:

- Conducts 42 annual National Collegiate Championships in 19 men's sports for three separate divisions. Three championships (Division I, Division II and Division III) are held in baseball, basketball, cross country, golf, soccer, swimming, tennis, outdoor track and wrestling. Two championships are staged in gymnastics, lacrosse and ice hockey. Fencing, rifle, skiing, indoor track, volleyball and water polo hold single National Collegiate Championships, while football is contested in Divisions I-AA, II and III. The NCAA is conducting 31 women's championships in the 1982-83 academic year in addition to the 42 held for men. Women's championships will be held in all three divisions in basketball, cross country, field hockey, softball, swimming, tennis, outdoor track and volleyball. Two championships (Division I and Division II) will be staged in gymnastics, while fencing, golf, lacrosse, soccer and indoor track will hold single National Collegiate Championships. The National Collegiate Championship dates back to 1883 in tennis; and during this 100-year history, more than 13,000 student-athletes have earned the coveted title of "National Collegiate Champion."

- Maintains 23 men's sports committees, including 14 men's rules committees to formulate, copyright and publish rules of play for the government of collegiate sports. Members of these and many other committees, including 16 women's sports/rules committees, are elected by representatives of member institutions at the annual Convention.

- Publishes a tabloid newspaper 46 times per year, rules books in 12 sports, record books in football and basketball and various other publications.

- Collects, compiles and distributes the official statistics of college football, basketball and baseball in men's sports, and basketball and softball in women's sports.

- Conducts studies as a means of developing solutions to athletic problems.

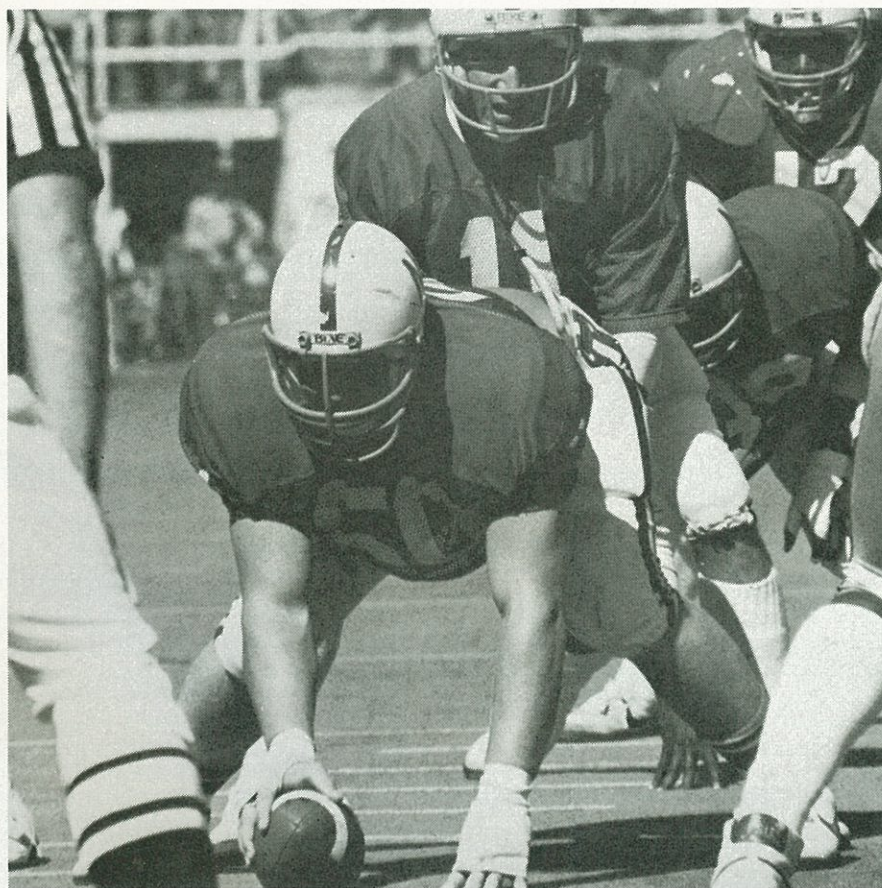

- Represents the membership in legislative and regulatory matters on the state and Federal levels.

- Annually selects the College Athletics Top Ten and the Theodore Roosevelt ("Teddy") Award—the Association's highest honor.

- Administers an honors program which annually awards 90 postgraduate scholarships to recognize outstanding senior student-athletes who have excelled in the classroom as well as athletics. This scholarship is for $2,000. The program has provided $1,784,000 to 1,354 recipients since its inception in the 1964-65 academic year.

- Promotes and participates in international sports planning and competition through membership in the United States Olympic Committee, Amateur Basketball Association of the USA, Track and Field Association of the USA, and the United States Baseball, Gymnastics and Wrestling Federations.

- Maintains more than 80 full-time staff members at its national headquarters in Mission, Kansas, under the supervision of Executive Director Walter Byers.

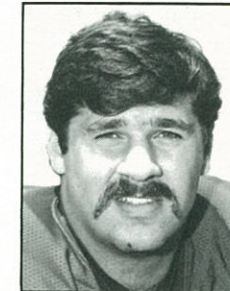

Seminole Scoop: Ask Them Yourself

Compiled by Dan Pearson

For center Sam Restivo

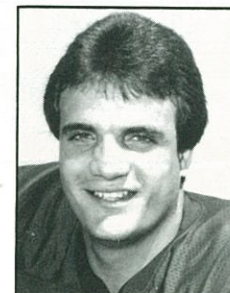

Q: In the past several years, there have been several problems with the snaps on punts with defensive players slapping at the ball. Usually the penalty is on us. What's happening?
Jimmy Hogan, Jacksonville

A: When I go to snap the ball, I hitch (lift the ball onto the nose) the ball and then as I prepare to snap I lift it a little to help give the snap some zip. Technically if you lift the ball totally off the ground it's a dead ball penalty. Most of the time it is never called. But in games when opponents slap at the ball they seem to call the penalty. At Southern Miss I thought they were reaching over and slapping it illegally but it's a judgement call.

For fullback Manny Carballo

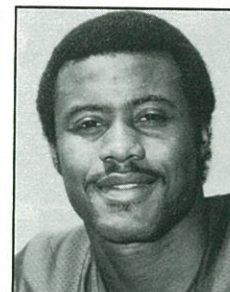

Q: I read where you are one of the strongest players on the team and the strongest on the bench press. How did you build yourself up and how important is the strength program?
Robin Housler, Tallahassee

A: Believe it or not, I was a 130 lb. runt in between my sophomore and junior years in high school. I became interested in lifting in my junior year and built myself up from there. I think the strength program is very valuable; there isn't a top 20 program in the country that doesn't have a solid program.

For wide receiver Tony Johnson

Q: In the Southern Miss game you caught nine passes for over 160 yards. Was it your best game ever and why was it so wide open for you?
John Clark, Tallahassee

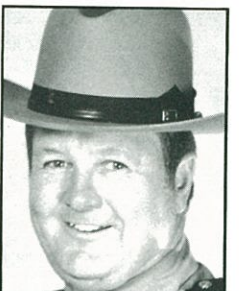

A: Without a question I never had a better night. It was possible for three reasons. One, our offensive line was fantastic in giving Kelly Lowrey time to throw the ball. Secondly, Kelly did a great job in getting me the ball. Lastly, the wide receivers on the opposite side of the field did a super job in clearing my area of defensive backs.

If you have a question that you'd like to ask a Seminole player or coach, write us at the Sports Information Office, P.O. Drawer 2195, Tallahassee, Fla. 32304. You can also call in your question by dialing 904/644-4038

For Sgt. Billy Smith

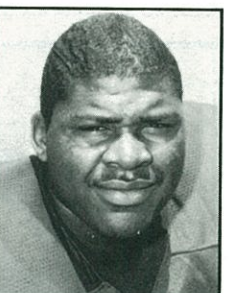

Q: How are team police escorts arranged on the road and for our visitors at home?
Bernie King, Tallahassee

A: We usually call the Highway Patrol director of the state we are visiting and the unit stationed closest to the town we are playing in arranges for an escort to meet us at the airport. We do it on a reciprocal basis for our visitors. Each of the three teams in the state (Miami, Florida, Florida State) are assigned two gentlemen. One takes care of the home team and one the visitors. For instance, at FSU when Pitt came to town I was with the Seminoles from Friday night until the game was over. Bernie Stallworth, another member of the department was assigned to Pitt and he stayed with them from the minute they arrived in town until they left. I might add that this is entirely on a volunteer basis and the highway patrol members do not receive any compensation.

For tight end Orson Mobley

Q: Since you played baseball a little last spring, could you tell me whether it is easier to hit a fastball or catch a pass over the middle?
Phil Silver, Orlando

A: I'd probably have to say hitting the baseball is easier. In baseball, once the pitcher lets go all you have to do is concentrate on the ball. In football, you have to worry about shaking off any initial block, running the proper route and concentrating on catching the ball. While you are doing all this, you have to worry about any linebackers or defensive backs that may want to influence you not to catch the ball by giving you a pretty good rap.

For tackle Orlando Reyes

Q: Has not having an extensive high school football background been a problem for you?
Jim Reed, Tallahassee

A: Well, yes and no. I think it's always a disadvantage not to have a lot of high school playing time but on the other side, college is much more complex than high school anyway. It seems everyone has to start all over again and everyone is in the same boat once they get here.

Even the sound of the door closing is by design.

Our doors speak well of the rest of our car. But their tight, solid sound is no accident.

Before we begin building the car, we engineer the best way to assemble it. Piece by piece.

Doors, trunk and hood fit the body with close tolerances all around. We align hinges and latches to work freely.

Window glass is held snug. And runs in the window channels smoothly. Triple rubber door seals help reduce outside sounds and wind noise. We've improved the insulation throughout the car.

The Honda Accord 4-Door Sedan is not only quieter, it's also roomier and more comfortable. You'll find it rides and handles better.

And while its many luxurious features are impressive, they are standard equipment. Like cruise control and variable-assist power steering, to name but two.

Honda's simple philosophy of building cars that work the way they were designed to work has made Honda number one in owner loyalty among all leading import cars*.

It has helped Honda cars retain a high resale value, among the best in the automotive industry.

You can fully appreciate how a Honda is made the next time you're in a Honda showroom.

After you kick the tires, listen to the doors.

HONDA

We make it simple.

CIMARRON '83

A NEW KIND OF CADILLAC

Bold new performance.

In '83 Cimarron sports a snappy new 2.0-liter electronically fuel-injected engine with a smooth-shifting five-speed manual transmission. (Three-speed automatic also available.) Cimarron '83 also has an exclusively tuned Touring Suspension, front-wheel drive, power-assisted rack and pinion steering and MacPherson strut front suspension...all standard. Some Cadillacs are equipped with engines produced by other GM divisions, subsidiaries, or affiliated companies worldwide. See your dealer for details.

Bold new look.

Cimarron shines with a distinctive new grille treatment, tungsten halogen fog lamps and a hood medallion. Plus crisp new aluminum alloy wheels for a clean, contemporary look in '83.

Limited edition poster offer.

For your limited edition Cimarron '83 poster on a reflective foil background, send $10 to:

VIEW OF THE VISITORS Salukis Show Aerial Stuff

BY MIKE CHAMNESS

What is a Saluki? An ancient Egyptian hunting dog that flies! Just kidding about the flying dog. But the Southern Illinois University-Carbondale football Salukis definitely have gone airborne this year.

Led by senior quarterback Rick Johnson, who has broken or is approaching virtually every SIU-C passing record held by St. Louis Cardinal quarterback Jim Hart, the Salukis have averaged nearly 40 passes per game in their first five games.

SIU-C has gained acclaim in several sports over the years, perhaps the biggest moment coming in 1967 when the Salukis rose from the small-college basketball ranks to win the then still-prestigious NIT.

Football has stepped to the forefront in the past seven years under Coach Rey Dempsey, who already is the second winningest coach in Saluki history with a 38-33 record. That might be considered modest at many schools, but when Dempsey arrived from the Detroit Lions, where he had been special team's coach, the Salukis had won a grand total of seven games in the previous four years. Rebuilding is not the proper word for the job. CPR is more accurate.

The Salukis have even enjoyed a couple of wins under Dempsey that might fall into the major upset category. In 1977, his Salukis whipped a highly regarded Temple team. Ironically, the Salukis were only 3-8 that year, one of only two losing seasons Dempsey-coached teams have suffered. Last year, the Salukis knocked off perennial Missouri Valley Conference football power Tulsa and narrowly missed winning the title in a 7-4 campaign that saw them win seven of their final eight games.

The Salukis were among the teams reclassified from Division I-A to I-AA by the NCAA last December, and, with several key players returning from last year's team, SIU-C was among those teams mentioned as possible challengers for the I-AA national championships—a realistic yearly goal set by Dempsey.

By getting off to a 3-0 start with wins over Western Illinois, Illinois State, and Drake, the Salukis rose as high as No. 6 in one national I-AA poll before suffering losses the past two weeks to Arkansas State and Southwestern Louisiana.

The 35-30 loss to Arkansas State came in shocking fashion on a 45-yard desperation pass with four seconds left to a receiver that had been bumped out of bounds but recovered to make the catch.

The Salukis passing attack was nearly unstoppable through the first four games as Johnson had hit 84 of 157 (53.5 percent) for 1,007 yards and eight touchdowns to place him among the I-AA national leaders.

Last week's 20-10 loss to Southwestern Louisiana was the result of Johnson's first "off night" of the season as he fumbled twice and was intercepted three times. Wide receiver Marvin Hinton (25 catches—397 yards) and tight end Pierre Pugh (20—196) are Johnson's favorite targets in the Salukis' ball-control, high-percentage passing game that also utilizes tailback Derrick Taylor and fullback Corky Field coming out of the backfield.

In previous years under Dempsey, the Salukis had featured a strong running game, but inexperience on the offensive line as well as a season-ending injury to center Steve Piha have forced the Illinois school to rely on passing more than Dempsey would like.

Except for a nightmarish experience against Arkansas State's wishbone attack, the Saluki defense has been pretty solid. The defense is spearheaded by linebacker John Harper, a player expected to go in the first three rounds of next spring's NFL draft if the strike is settled by then. Harper was an All-American honorable mention as a defensive end (actually an outside linebacker) last year, and has continued to dominate play since being converted to inside linebacker. Cornerback Terry Taylor has four interceptions to lead a veteran secondary.

Tonight's challenge of facing the Florida State Seminoles is the most monumental in Saluki football history. Last week's 34-17 win by the Seminoles over Ohio State at Columbus was not exactly reassuring to Coach Rey Dempsey. (Or to Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce, for that matter.)

"Let's face it, our chances of going in there and beating a team like Florida State are not that great," Dempsey said after last week's disappointing loss. "But our kids will hit them like they would anybody else. We won't play in fear or in awe of them."

"I don't know what the score might be, but I expect us to play much better than we did last week (against Southwestern Louisiana)."

NCAA Honor Roll

Program recognizes past, present student-athletes

Bill Cosby, five current student-athletes and five former student-athletes were honored at this year's NCAA honors luncheon held during the Association's 76th annual Convention in Houston in January.

Cosby received the NCAA's highest honor, the Theodore Roosevelt Award. The award is named for the 26th President of the United States, who was the individual most responsible for implementing the organization of the NCAA.

While attending Temple University, Cosby participated in track and field, basketball and football. Although he was a second-string fullback in football, his best sport was track. A versatile performer, he scored at various times in the high jump, shot put, low hurdles, javelin and discus. He also won the Middle Atlantic Conference high jump title in 1962.

The "Teddy" is presented annually to a prominent American "for whom competitive athletics in college and attention to physical well-being thereafter have been important factors in a distinguished career of national significance and achievement."

Previous winners include former President Dwight D. Eisenhower; Senator Leverett Saltonstall; Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White; Purdue University President Frederick L. Hovde; Jerome H. Holland, ambassador to Sweden and last year's winner, Art Linkletter.

Also honored at the luncheon were five current and past student-athletes.

The NCAA recognized five outstanding student-athletes who completed their college eligibility in 1981. Two football players, two swimmers and a women's basketball player were honored.

Ken Sims, a defensive tackle for the University of Texas, was the winner of the Lombardi Award in 1981, emblematic of the outstanding lineman. Sims also was named to an all-America team for the third straight year.

Oliver Luck, a quarterback at West Virginia University, accumulated 6,150 yards of total offense during his career, a WVU record, and led the Mountaineers to a 9-3 record and Peach Bowl win in 1981. Luck is a two-time academic all-America and a National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athlete.

The two swimmers honored were Par

Arvidsson of the University of California and Rowdy Gaines of Auburn University. Arvidsson captured a gold medal at the 1980 Olympics while competing for his native Sweden and is the world-record holder in the 100-meter butterfly. Gaines was a member of the U.S. Olympic team and won five NCAA individual swimming championships.

The first woman to receive a Today's Top Five award was Lynette Woodard, a basketball standout at the University of Kansas. Woodard set a national career scoring record of 3,646 points during four years as a Jayhawk and was a three-time all-America selection.

Silver Anniversary awards were presented to five former student-athletes who have accomplished distinguished careers. They were honored on their 25th anniversary after college graduation.

All five played football and three of the five also played basketball.

Jimmy Brown is recognized as one of the greatest players in the history of football, but also starred in basketball and lacrosse at Syracuse University. Brown went on to the NFL and since retiring has enjoyed an excellent career in acting.

A two-time captain of the Grambling Tigers, Willie Davis went on to greater fame with the Green Bay Packers. Davis played on five world championship teams and never missed a game. Davis currently owns the Willie Davis Distributing Company and is a member of the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company board of directors.

Jack Kemp was an all-America at Occidental College and went on to quarterback the Buffalo Bills to AFL championships in 1964 and 1965. His jersey—No. 15—is retired in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Kemp is currently a member of the U.S. Congress from the state of New York.

Another Green Bay Packer great, Ron Kramer, was a football and basketball star at the University of Michigan. Kramer caught 53 passes from his tight end position in college and led the Wolverines in scoring in basketball his junior and senior years. Kramer is currently vice-president of Paragon Steel Corporation.

The final honoree was Jim Swink, former Texas Christian University running back. Swink is the only TCU player to rush for over 1,000 yards in a season. Swink also was a two-year letterman in basketball. He is currently an orthopedic surgeon and chief of surgery at All Saints Hospital in Fort Worth.

SEMINOLE BASKETBALL returns to Tallahassee on November 29, as FSU takes on St. Leo at the Tallahassee-Leon County Civic Center.

Mitchell Wiggins, a 1982 All-American and one of the top swingmen in the country, returns to lead the Seminole attack.

With the addition of Reggie Meadows and two other top notch recruits, the 1982-83 edition of the Seminoles promises to be one of the most exciting basketball teams FSU has ever produced.

WILD BLUE YONDER.

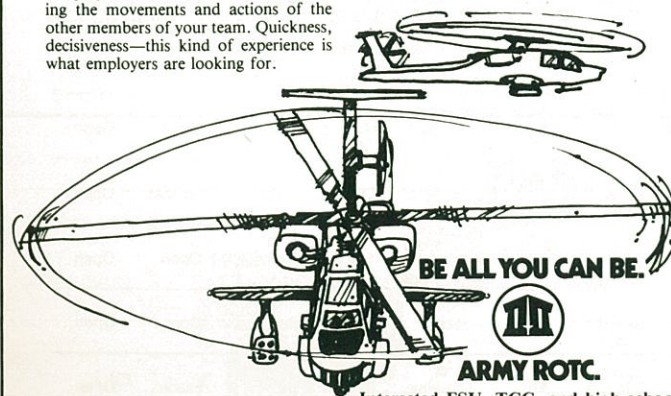

Yes, your Army has more than 8,600 aircraft in its active, reserve and national guard fleet—more aircraft, in fact, than the Air Force!

If you truly want to fly with the brave—seek out the Army's Air Cavalry. Out front, leading the way—flying among the trees, seeing without being seen—at the controls of the world's most sophisticated attack helicopter.

You must possess stamina, agility, and resourcefulness to handle one of these birds. Decisions must be quick when dodging trees at 50 knots and orchestrating the movements and actions of the other members of your team. Quickness, decisiveness—this kind of experience is what employers are looking for.

Seminole Boosters

The Golden Chiefs compose Florida State University's most prestigious donor club. Their $5,000 yearly gift to Seminole athletics makes them the most generous annual donors as well. Organized in 1976 with seventeen charter members, they have grown steadily to over one hundred in 1982.

Some of the most familiar alumni names and faces, like actors Burt Reynolds and Robert Urich and State Attorney General Jim Smith, are Golden Chiefs, as well as non-alumni who are Seminole fans, like Yankees owner George Steinbrenner.

Men and women of the Golden Chiefs play a major role in making Seminole Boosters, Inc. the financial bedrock of the Tribe's future. We take special pleasure in recognizing Florida State's most elite group of donors: the Golden Chiefs.

"The fact is we just couldn't do it without them", said Athletic Director HOOTIE INGRAM about the thousands of loyal fans and alumni who gave nearly two and a half million dollars to Seminole athletics in 1982.

"They" are the Seminole Boosters, the financial cornerstone of the Tribe's athletic program. SEMINOLE BOOSTERS, INC.

is the school's authorized, direct-support athletic fund raising arm.

Florida State's ten million dollar expansion and upgrading of athletic facilities is made possible through a combination of Legislative appropriations, Orange Bowl revenues, and cash from the SEMINOLE BOOSTERS, INC., recognized as one of the college world's leading athletic support groups.

"Of the top sixty 'football schools' in the country, we ranked sixth in athletic fund raising in 1981", reports JOHN OLSON, a Tallahassee insurance executive who serves as Booster president this year. "We were second to South Carolina among the nation's independents, and we raised more than any South-eastern Conference school except the University of Georgia who were National Champions that year."

"The reason for our success—aside from having a great coach like BOBBY BOWDEN—is our tremendous volunteer network and our professional staff. Director ANDY MILLER, and assistants CHARLIE BARNES and DEBORAH MASON are three of the top young fund raisers in the business."

Seminole Boosters

"Seminole Booster clubs now cover the three-state area . . . Our Jacksonville Seminole Booster club is the largest booster club sponsored by any school in any city in the State of Florida. And no university enjoys greater support from its 'hometown' than Florida State. Tallahasseeans account for over half of all athletic donations."

Future plans include a continuing goal of over two million dollars per year in cash contributions, a planned giving program, the establishment of a reserve fund, retention of high quality coaches, and the continued development of 1st class facilities.

Serving with JOHN OLSON in 1982 are Vice-President LOMAX SMITH, president of West Florida Construction Co.; Tallahassee banker CLIFF CHAVEZ who serves as Treasurer; and Jacksonville businessman JIM KING who serves as Secretary. Other members of the Executive Committee include Past-

John Olson

President JIMMY CARTER and Athletic Director HOOTIE INGRAM, as well as the Board of Regents Representative (attorney DUBY AUSLEY), and the University President's Representative (PHIL FORDYCE). Performance Speaks for Itself

BY DONNA TURNER

Margaret Coomber

Sandra Arthurton

If Al Schmidt, the new Florida State women's cross country coach, was asked to name his favorite country, chances are he would say England. That response is not hard to understand upon considering the success that the FSU harriers have enjoyed to date this year, and the primary reasons for that success are Great Britain natives Margaret Coomber and Sandra Arthurton.

Coomber and Arthurton have led the Seminole runners to the championships of the 1982 Alabama and Lady Seminole Invitationals, Arthurton winning the Alabama Invitational in a time of 17:17.6 while Coomber pulled in right behind her to finish second in 17:23.0. At the Lady Seminole Invitational, the positions were reversed as Coomber was the first FSU runner to cross the finish line, taking second place in the race, and Arthurton followed her to grab the third place ribbon.

"Sandra and Margaret are definitely our top two runners," said Schmidt. "I think they will battle it out all season long to see who is number one."

On the surface, Coomber and Arthurton don't appear to have much in common besides their superior running abilities. Coomber, a member of the 1972 British Olympic team, is a junior majoring in child development who brings extensive international running experience to the squad and provides leadership with an air of quiet self-assurance. Arthurton, on the other hand, is a bouncy freshman full of enthusiasm who has competed for Great Britain's junior team at the last three World Cross Country Championships.

"Margaret is the leader on the team," says Schmidt. "She's so experienced in cross country and track that I really depend on her during workouts. Sandra is just a freshman, but she has fit in very well. If she didn't have an accent, I would not even know she was English."

Although there are differences between the two runners, their similarities are more obvious, particularly in their common attitudes towards their sport. Both women cite the warm climate and the excellent facilities as the major reasons for their choosing Florida State, although they each considered other warm weather American schools including Clemson, Arizona State, Virginia and Tennessee. The pair were also in agreement in their preference for cross country running over track, and for England's cross country courses over American routes.

"I find cross country easier than track," said Arthurton. "It's slower than track. I like running cross country at home better though."

"The courses are more challenging in England," explains Coomber, who at 32 years old is the squad's oldest member. "It's partly because of the weather plus there are more big hills and muddy places to deal with."

Schmidt sees Coomber and Arthurton as sharing a running style which is markedly different than that of their American teammates.

"Margaret especially, and Sandra to some extent, have a much more European approach to racing. They are much more aggressive for one thing and they're used to using racing tactics. They can respond easily to different types of races."

The pair of runners also concur that the decision to attend Florida State and to run was not easily made.

"Leaving all my friends, my family and a steady job was very difficult," admits Coomber. "We're not like most students in that we're so far from home that we just can't go home on weekends."

Arthurton agrees. "It was a terribly hard decision to come to the U.S. I knew that I wanted to come here to run, but it's so hard to give up everything. It helped that Margaret was here, but it's still a risk you have to take and hope that everything works out. I think that I made the right decision though. I'm glad I came."

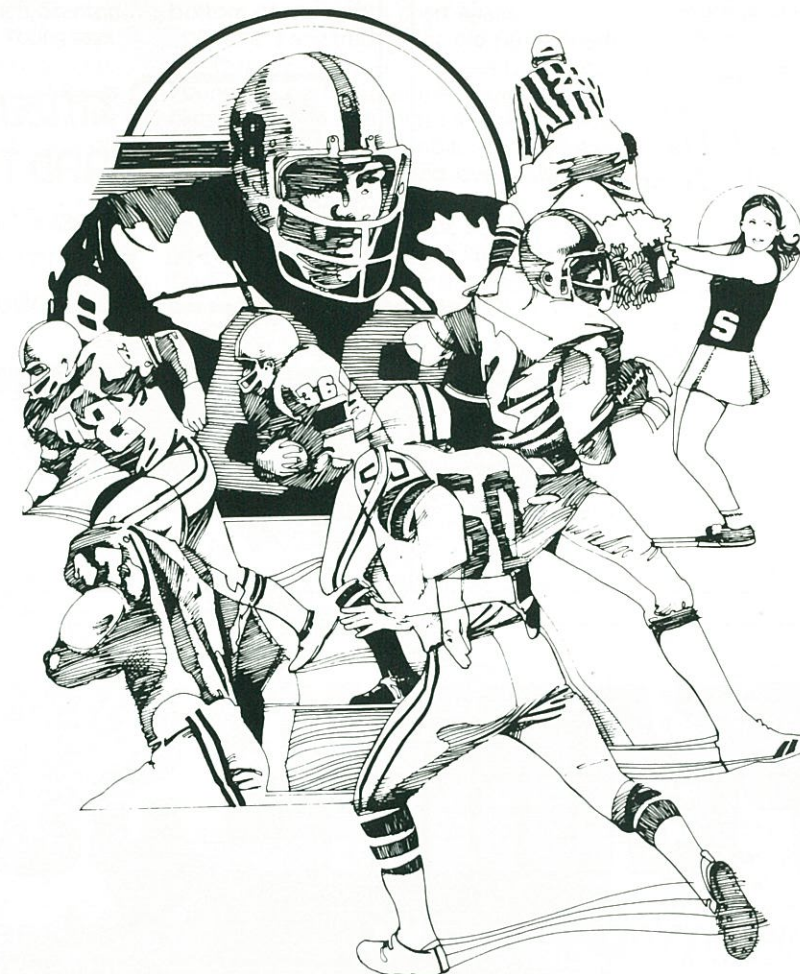

Coach Al Schmidt and his team certainly share Arthurton's view; they are very glad that Sandra Arthurton and countrywoman Margaret Coomber are running in the garnet and gold uniforms of the Florida State Seminoles.

Donna Turner is a student assistant in the Florida State Sports Information Office.

Arthurton leads but Coomber isn't far behind season in 1980," Young says. "Coach Stanton had always been after me to play linebacker but I wanted to be a running back. We were a little short on the scout team one day, so I agreed to go in and play linebacker against our first team offense. I just figured it was a temporary thing."

But in the spring the move became permanent. Although defensive coordinator Stanton continued to talk to Young about switching, it was head coach Bobby Bowden who finally persuaded Young. "Coach Stanton always would joke or tease me," Young says. "He'd say stuff like 'when are you going to come over and play with the men' but it was Coach Bowden who really persuaded me. He said that he thought that I could be a good linebacker, not just a linebacker. When the head guy asks you to do something and says he believes you can do it, the decision becomes a little easier to make."

In the spring of 1981, Young began to learn his new position. While he was making progress, a second serious injury occurred. A dislocated elbow kept Young out the second half of spring practice and sent him to the bottom of the depth chart again.

If there is any truth to the old Farmer's adage that the cream always rises to the top, Young is a perfect example. Going into fall camp, he was listed fourth at one linebacker position. "I was so far back," Young says "I didn't know if I would even make the traveling squad."

By the fourth game of the season, Young was listed as a number one linebacker and was ready to make his first collegiate start ever against nationally-ranked Ohio State.

It was what Young did in the OSU game that firmly established him as a regular. He was credited with an amazing 16 tackles and earned "Southeastern Lineman of the Week" honors from the Associated Press. Young repeated the performance against Notre Dame the next week in leading the Seminoles to back-to-back upset wins. He finished the season with 97 tackles, the third highest total on the team.

Despite a good year personally, Young was not happy with 1981. "We were potentially a great team and we finished 6-5. It was a bitter disappointment for me and I was not all that happy with either the team's or my performance," he says.

Young entered the 1982 season with two goals. He wanted to become more consistent and he wanted to help lead FSU to a bowl at the end of the year. "I played well in spots last season but it wasn't all that consistent," Young says. "I want to be able to say that I played well in every game this year."

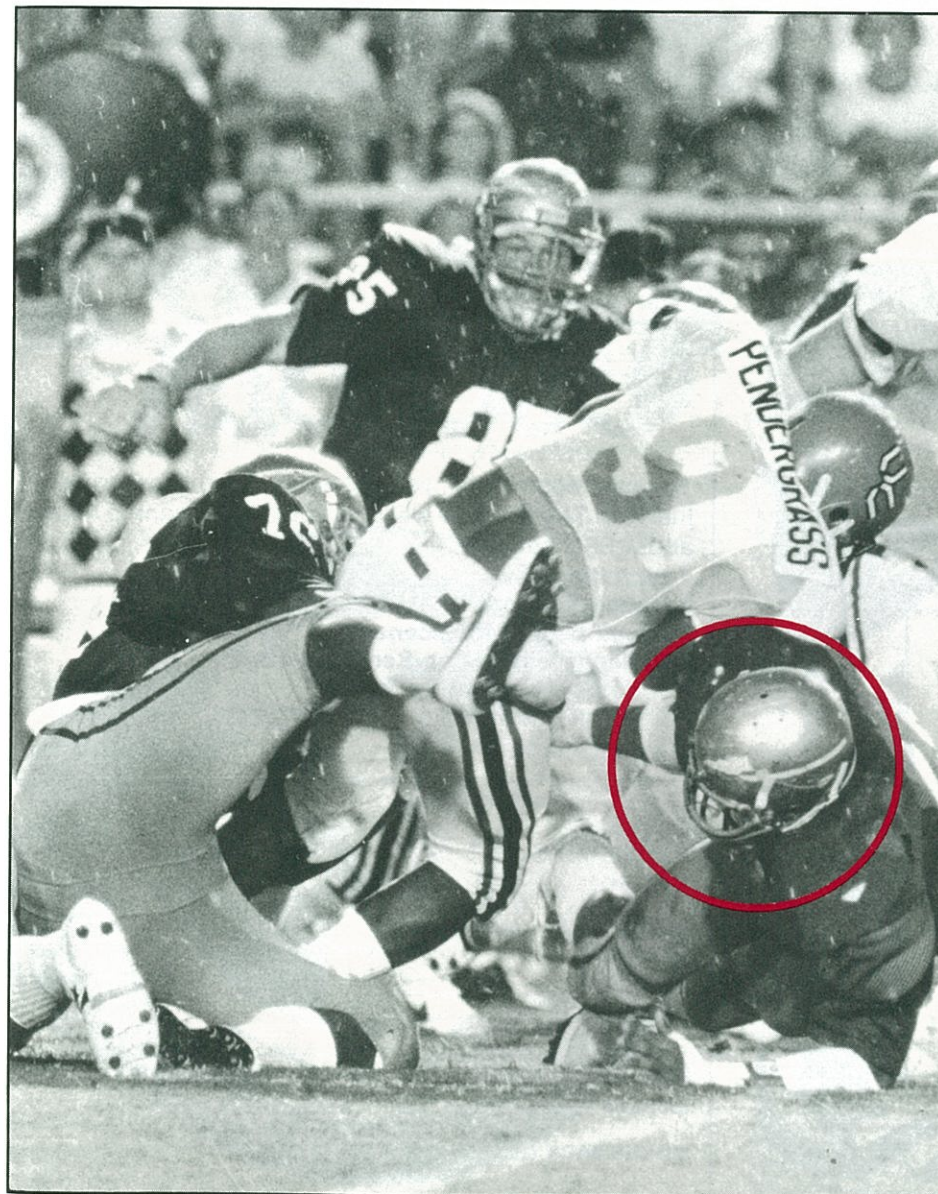

If the first four games are any indication, Young has played well. In addition to being one of the top two tacklers in each game, Young intercepted two passes in FSU's upset of Ohio State last week in Columbus.

As linebacker coach Gene McDowell says, "Tommy has been playing good, hard nosed football for us this year. He has provided not only the great play we need to win but the leadership we need to win. Tommy will definitely leave FSU in style."

Although Young believes that the Seminoles could have a great season in 1982, he says that the future is even brighter for Florida State. "We have some great young players here," he says. "They are talented, tough and hungry. Within a matter of a year or two they could be great."

But it is the current season that most Florida State coaches, players, alumni and fans are worried about and with the help of Young's spectacular play the Seminoles are 3-1 instead of the 1-3 some "experts" predicted.

With players like Tommy Young, 1982 could still be the year of the Seminole. Tommy's reference to future years could hold true for this season. He himself says "A young team can only get better."

Academic All-America

A Very Cherished Award

Individual awards and recognition for an athlete's performance on the field have long been a valued part of college athletics. All-America and all-league honors are something to which each athlete on the field today aspires.

Over the past few years, there has been a growing awareness on the part of today's student-athlete of another type of award, an award that recognizes those individuals who have shown excellence both on the field of competition and in the classroom. To be labeled "Academic All-America" has rightfully come to represent the epitome of achievement for collegiate athletes.

"Like most athletes who have the opportunity to play at the Division I level, I've had my share of individual awards," said Norm Betts, an all-Big 10 tight end at Michigan who was named to the academic all-America first team.

"None of those awards means as much to me, however, as being called an academic all-America. That honor says so much. It says that I've excelled both on the field and in the classroom. That's not easy. The fact that I and others like me have been able to combine academics and athletics successfully shows that you can succeed both on the field and in the classroom if you work hard at both endeavors. It means so much to see that I've been recognized for what college athletics are meant to be. It's an award that will grow in stature as time passes," added Betts, a 3.89 student (on a 4.0 scale) in a premed program. He's now enrolled in Michigan's School of Dentistry.

Since 1954, CoSIDA (College Sports Information Directors of America) has felt much like Norm Betts. Sports information directors have set out each year to select academic all-America teams in football, basketball and baseball. In recent years, women's basketball has been added to the ledger. The NCAA joined CoSIDA in 1980 in its effort to select and recognize those individuals on the national level who have distinguished themselves in both the classroom and in athletics.

"CoSIDA has long recognized the selection of these teams as a top organizational project," said Nick Vista, sports information director at Michigan State University and president of CoSIDA until this past July. "We are very encouraged by the growing attention focused on this award because we feel it is the ultimate award for today's student-athlete. This is a person who is an exemplary by-product of the education process. This is a person who truly represents everything good about college athletics. We are all working very hard to make this the ultimate achievement and award in today's honor system for college athletics."

As befits such an award, the selection process is demanding. CoSIDA has divided the nation into eight geographical districts. Each district has an academic all-America coordinator who stays in touch with the sports information directors in the area. To be nominated for academic all-America honors, a student-athlete must have at least a 3.0 grade-point average (on a 4.0 scale) during the previous semester or on a cumulative basis throughout his/her collegiate career. The student-athlete must have been in residence at his/her current institution for at least a year and must be a starter or key reserve on his/her appropriate squad.

The sports information directors mail their nominations to the district coordinator for inclusion on the university or college division ballots. Updated biographical data (academic and athletic) also are included. The coordinator takes these nominations, prepares a district voting ballot, mails it to the sports information directors in that district and then calculates the votes when they are returned. This "district academic team" then becomes eligible for the national ballot.

The district coordinator sends those results and further updated biographical data of the individuals to a national chair. The results of the eight district teams are compiled into a national voting ballot and sent to all CoSIDA members (over 1,000). They are instructed to vote for a certain number of individuals, depending on the team, and to return the voting ballot to their respective district coordinator. Votes from each of the eight areas are tabulated and sent to the national chair who announces the academic all-America team after final computations. It is a long and demanding process, but the results, in terms of the caliber of the respective teams and the individuals involved, have been quite impressive.

The 1981 football contingent had an average grade-point average for the 24-man team of 3.55. Twelve members of that team participated in postseason bowl games and another five participated in postseason all-star contests. Stanford running back Darrin Nelson, the first player in college football history to rush for more than 1,000 yards and catch 50 passes in a single season (he did it twice), and Nebraska center Dave Rimmington, winner of the Outland Trophy as college football's top lineman, headed the impressive gridiron squad.

Basketball was no different. Seven of the top 10 vote-getters on the men's team and four of the top 10 on the women's contingent played in postseason tournaments. The grade-point average for those squads was an amazing 3.76. Nearly 20 percent of the team had a grade-point average of 3.9 or above.

"The NCAA is very proud of what CoSIDA is doing in regards to publicizing such positive aspects of collegiate athletics," said Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA. "There are many things about college athletics that we can all be proud of and the academic all-Americans definitely fit into that category."

This is FSU

Florida State University, nestled in the center of Florida's capital city, is home to more than 22,000 students from all over the nation and from 115 foreign countries. FSU was founded in 1857 as the Seminary West of the Suwannee. Today, the main campus, with more than 340 green acres, is one of the prettiest in the South. Camellias, azaleas and dogwoods blossom under towering moss-draped oaks. From the state-ly Gothic-styled structures on the eastern end of campus to the contemporary science complex on the west, FSU has grown and changed with the times. Enrollment has quadrupled since the school became coeducational in 1947, following nearly half a century as FSCW—Florida State College for Women.

Today, students at Florida State can choose from more than 100 career options made available by 14 schools and colleges including arts and sciences, business, communication, criminology, education, home economics, law, library science, music, nursing, social sciences, social work, theatre and visual arts. Also, the FAMU/FSU Institute for Engineering began this fall.

The University's location in the capital city of Florida affords excellent study and research opportunities in the areas of government, social sciences and policy sciences. Additionally, the presence of state government provides widespread opportunities for internships and on-the-job study.

However, Florida State students aren't found only in Tallahassee, as the University also maintains a branch campus in Panama City, Florida. In addition, FSU is a member of the "academic common market" and overseas study programs in fields ranging from law to hotel and restaurant administration are offered in Florence, London, Switzerland, Yugoslavia and the Panama Canal Zone.

In terms of scientific research, FSU excels as a basic research-oriented university. The nuclear physics laboratory is ranked by the National Science Foundation as one of the top four in the nation. FSU also maintains a large marine laboratory on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

Florida State counts among its faculty six members of the National Academy of Sciences, including Paul Dirac, a Nobel Prize winner in physics. Kurt Waldheim, former secretary general of the United Nations, recently joined the university faculty as a distinguished visiting lecturer in international relations and law.

When it comes to the performing arts, Florida State ranks among the best schools in the nation.

The School of Theatre is recognized nationally for its leadership and training of talented young people. Burt Reynolds, acclaimed for his work with aspiring theatre professionals at the Reynolds Institute for Theatre Training in Jupiter, Florida, is an adjunct professor of professional and regional theatre at FSU.

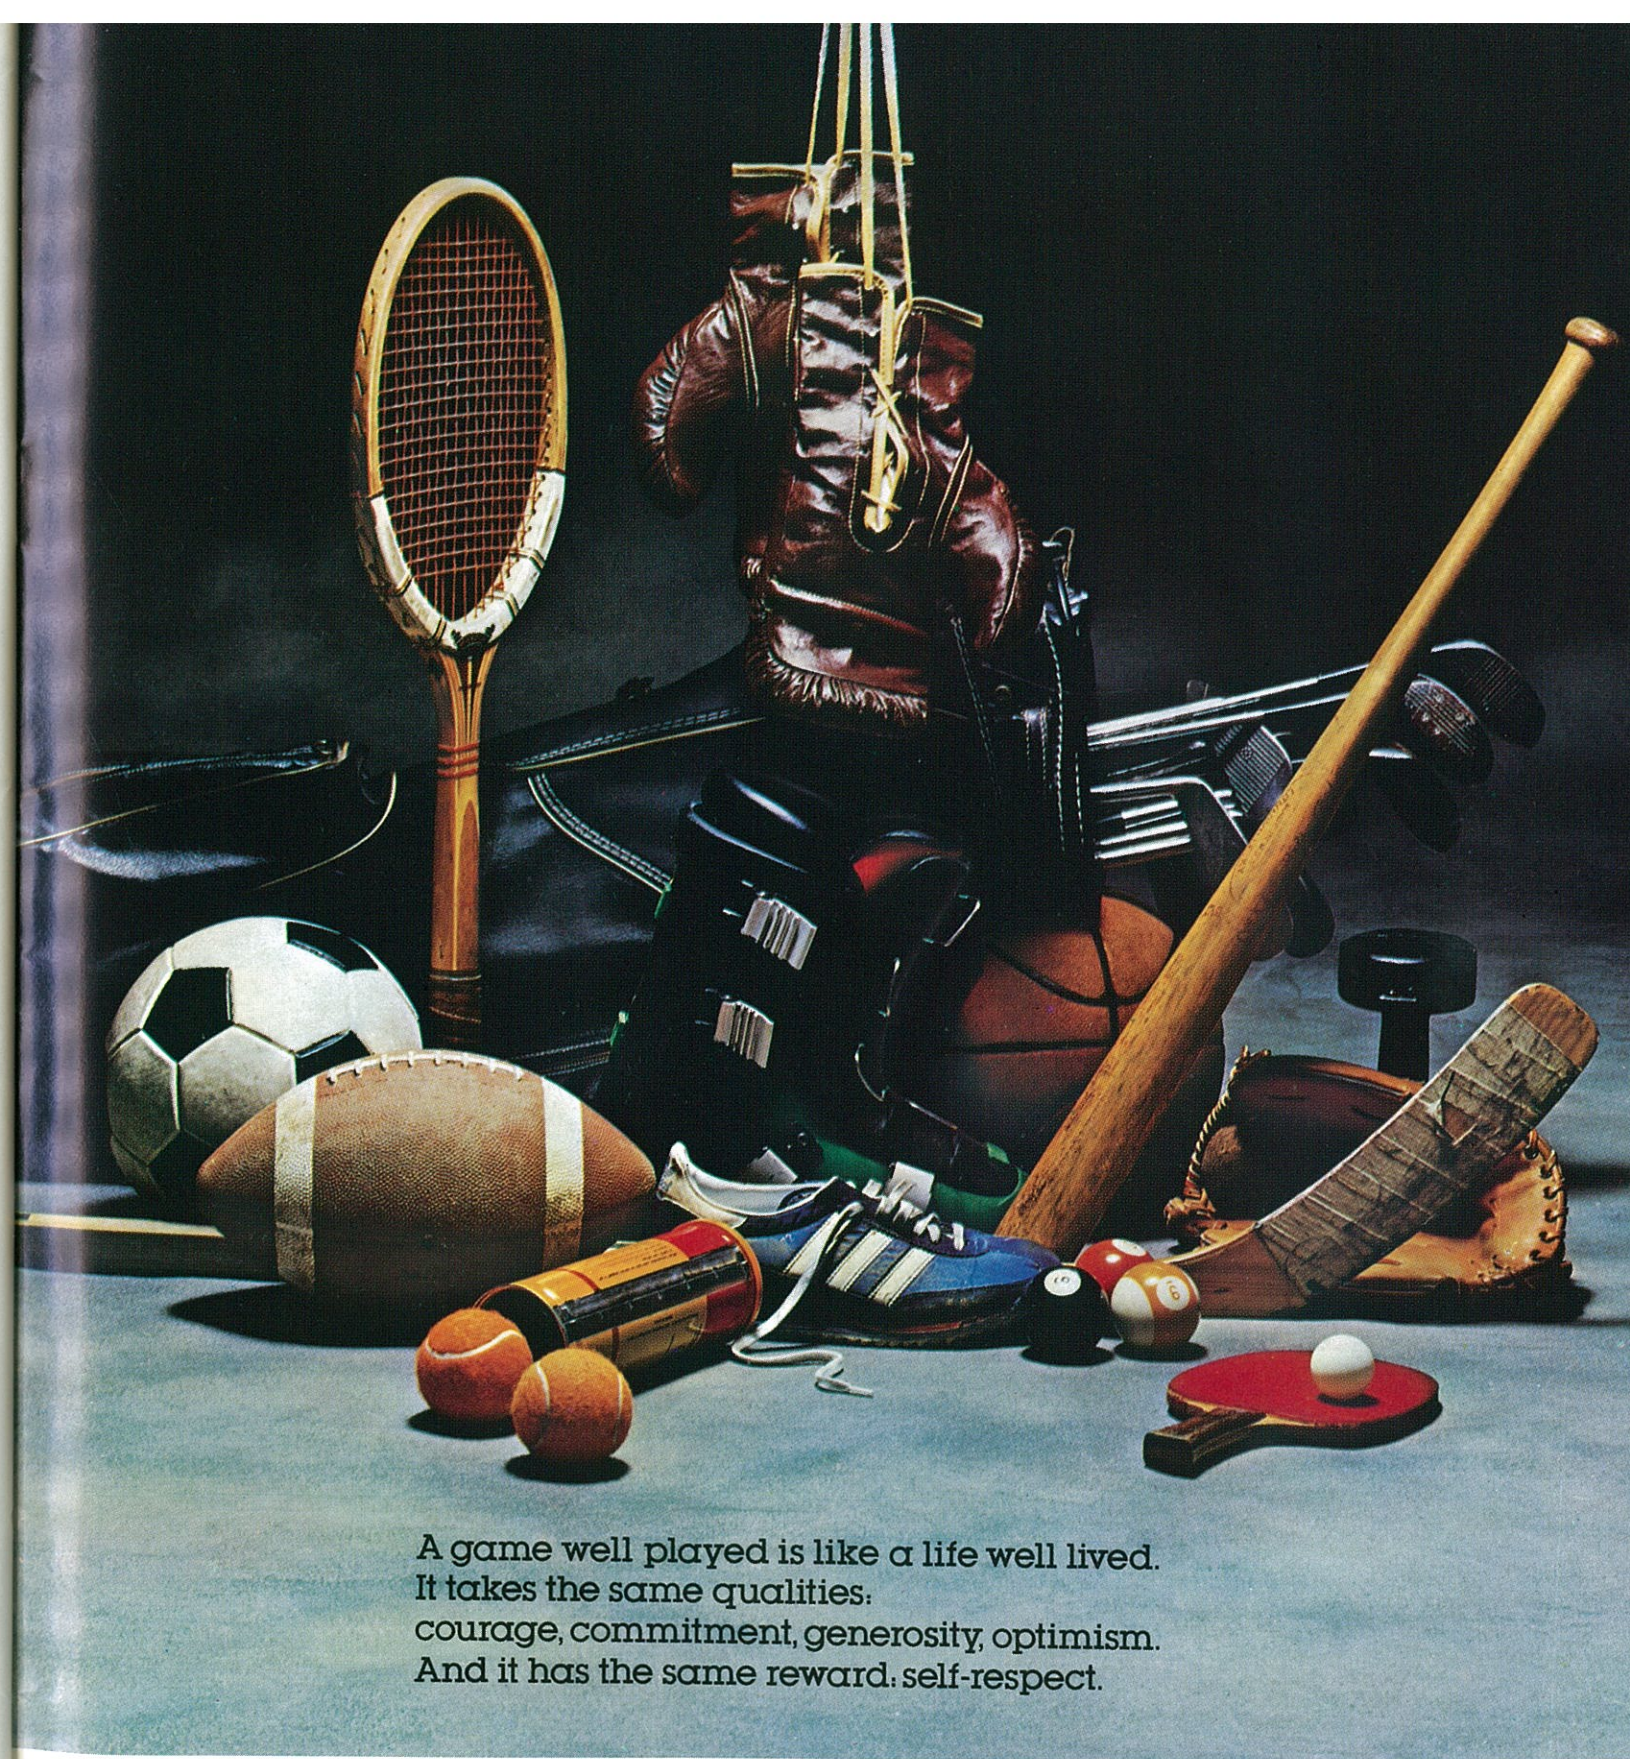

The Department of Dance is ranked as one of the top five in the country.

Florida State also offers many varied activities outside the classroom. The Union Program Office presents concerts, movies, lectures, flea markets and other activities throughout the year. For those with more classical tastes, the University annually presents the Fine Arts Festival, featuring the University's best artists and performers, and the Artist Series, which brings big name entertainment to campus. The intramural office also has much to offer, with year-round sports activities available to students and faculty.

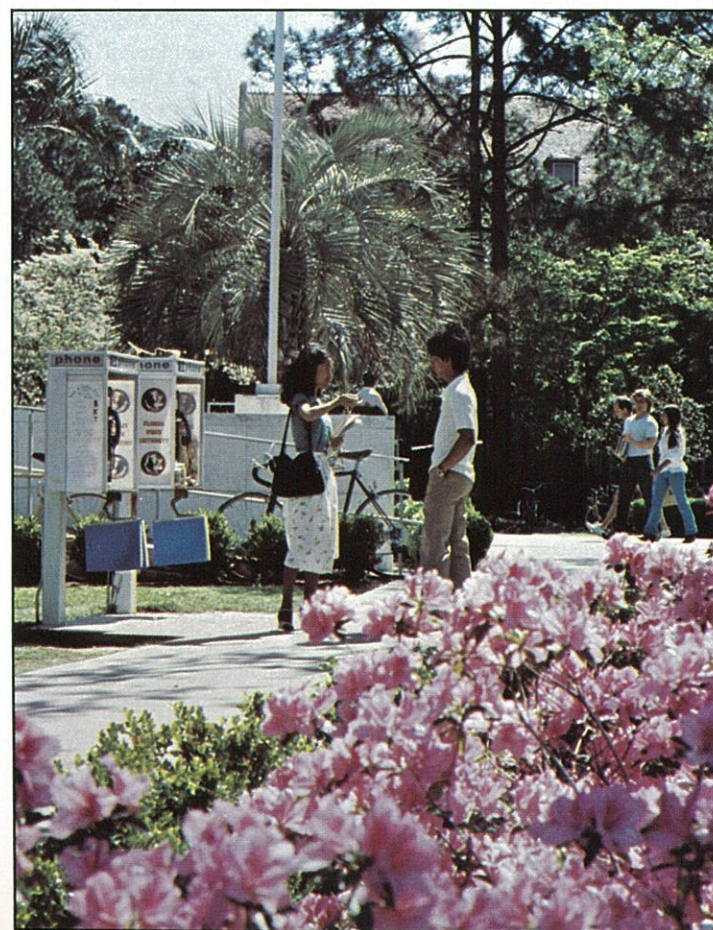

The University is home to the only collegiate circus in the country. The Flying High Circus carries a reputation of quality, professional aerial and stage entertainment for children of all ages.

When it comes to intercollegiate athletics, Florida State has established a winning tradition. The athletic program, including both men's and women's athletics, is among the top 20 in the nation.

But it's not just good programs that make the university great. As President Bernard Sliger proclaims, it is the people who make Florida State the successful monument to learning that it is. And he takes special pride in the people—students, faculty, administrators and staff—who are Florida State University.

A game well played is like a life well lived.
It takes the same qualities:
courage, commitment, generosity, optimism.
And it has the same reward: self-respect.

FSU Lettermen Club

The Florida State University Lettermen Club requests that all Lettermen join in the organization and participate in order to further goals of athletics at Florida State University. As is stated in the Constitution of the Florida State Lettermen's Club, membership is open to "any former student/athlete of Florida State University who shall be eligible for membership in the Club upon acceptance and compliance with the provisions of this Constitution."

TODAY'S ARMY IS NOW TAKING ORDERS FROM HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS.

In today's Army, the best way to get what you want is to give us your order early. And that's what the Delayed Entry Program is all about.

If you qualify, you can join now (even though you're still in school) and choose the training or first duty station you want. Then, we'll guarantee your choice in writing.

Plus, we'll give you up to a year to report for duty. That should give you plenty of time to finish school and maybe take that dream vacation you've been planning.

Marching Chiefs

F-L-O-R-I-D-A S-T-A-T-E. Florida State! Florida State!

The Marching Chiefs, the band behind the Florida State fight song, have a reputation for bringing already fired-up Seminole football fans to the point of frenzy.

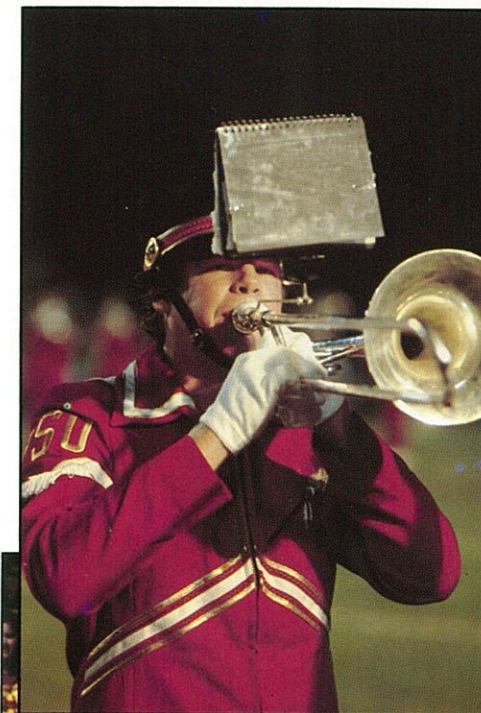

Since the 1950s, the Marching Chiefs have provided Florida State football fans with the best in musical and marching entertainment. Colorful, fast-paced halftime shows satisfy even the hard-to-please with themes ranging from Broadway plays to "Saturday Night Live" and super heroes.

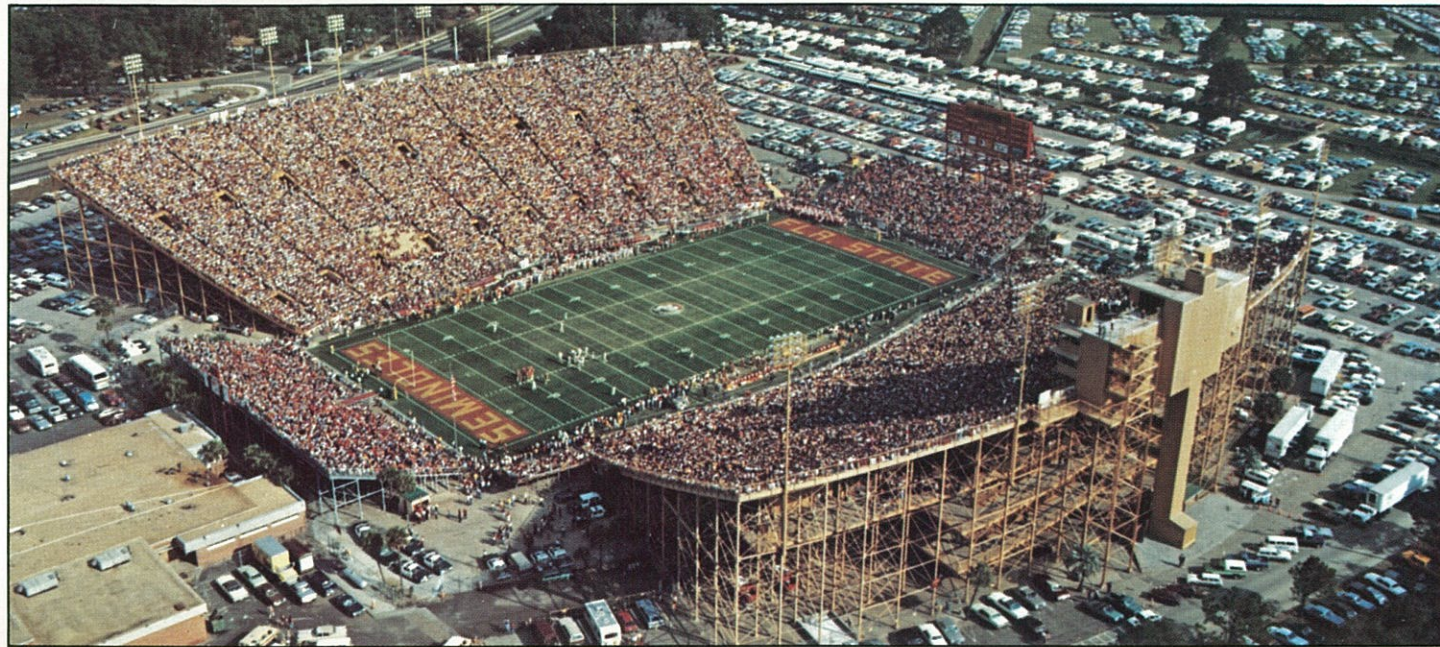

More than 300 band members, including feature twirlers, a corps of majorettes and flag girls, representing every school and college in the University, comprise the "Pride of Florida State."

In addition to the Chiefs' performances at home games and road contests, their past national and regional television appearances have brought them into the homes of millions.

As the Chiefs step out on the field this year, audiences will be greeted by the familiar version of the style that in the past has entertained millions. Under the leadership of Andre Arrouet, director of the Marching Chiefs, Charles Carter, associate director and arranger, and graduate assistant Don McLaurin, the Chiefs will be presenting a style of performance which Seminole fans have seen in the past.

Marching Chiefs—1954

When the Seminary West of the Suwannee River opened its doors 125 years ago, the entire school consisted of one building located on ten acres of land.

Today more than 150 buildings and a main campus of about 345 acres comprise that school, now known as Florida State University.

From the very beginning, theatre has been a part of Florida State.

Records show that the first production, "The Siege of Corinth," was performed as part of the closing exercises of the 1857 school year.

The first yearbook, "The Argo," published in 1901 (the year the seminary became Florida State College), lists an 18-member dramatic club. The organization must have been fairly successful for in 1904, the club produced "Rip Van Winkle" in Tallahassee's Munro Opera House and, according to the program, applied the proceeds "to liquidating the debts of the athletic team."

In 1905, Florida State College became Florida Female College and, in 1909, the school was renamed Florida State College for Women.

While theatre still was a popular part of school life, the change from coed to women-only created an acting dilemma. It was bad enough that male theatrical roles were portrayed by FSCW actresses, but college regulations required students to wear skirts! The solution was to dress the actresses like men from the waist up and then build up a bank of flowers at the front of the stage to hide their skirts from the audience.

By 1933, even though students sometimes still acted the roles of men, more and more townspeople were becoming involved in FSCW productions. In fact, that same year, a Tallahassee boy by the name of LeRoy Collins played the role of Ted Stanhope in the FSCW presentation of "Allison's House," and in the following year, a young Claude Pepper portrayed Gordon Whitehouse in "Dangerous Corner."

By 1947, when FSCW became Florida State University, responsibility for theatre had shifted from the English Department to the Department of Speech. But far greater changes were in store for FSU theatre.

In 1957 the catalyst for those changes appeared on the scene. Richard G. Fallon, former director of the Jacksonville Little Theatre, joined the Florida State faculty as associate director of the theatre. From that point, the changes came quickly.

Fallon was named director of the theatre division in 1960. When the theatre program reached departmental status in 1969, Fallon was chairman. In 1973 the department attained the rank of "school" and the prime mover behind the continuous growth, Richard Fallon, was selected as dean.

F.S.C.W.—1915, Chi Omegas on Kellum's lawn

In January 1982, after a quarter century with Florida State, Fallon was named Dean Emeritus.

But the Fallon story is by no means over. On Sept. 1, Fallon stepped into one of the most prestigious faculty positions anywhere, the Burt Reynolds Chair in Professional and Regional Theatre. Through this position, Fallon will assist in the development of FSU professional training programs at theatres in Florida and elsewhere.

This year, homecoming celebrates the 125th anniversary of Florida State University, a school which has evolved from meager beginnings into one of the finest educational institutions in the country.

During homecoming, Florida State pays its respects to a man who, through his love for the theatre and for FSU, built one of the strongest, most respected theatre programs in the country. Dean Emeritus Richard G. Fallon, homecoming grand marshal and Oglesby Award winner for 1982, truly represents drama at Florida State—its past, its present and its future.

Grads Made Good

What do a television news reporter, a university professor and a member of the Florida House of Representatives have in common? They are all new members of a special group of Florida State University alumni who have earned the title, "Grads Made Good."

The "Grads Made Good" awards, presented annually by Omicron Delta Kappa honorary society at the Homecoming Breakfast, recognize FSU graduates who have made outstanding achievements in their respective fields.

Herbert F. ("Herb") Morgan is a familiar name to most Big Bend residents. A member of the Florida House of Representatives since 1974, Morgan, a 1966 graduate of Florida State, is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and sits on the House Commerce Committee, House Committee on Natural Resources and Legislative Auditing Committee, among others.

Morgan was nominated for "Most Valuable House Member" in 1980, and won the Allen Morris Award for most effective member of the House of Representatives in 1981 and the Allen Morris Award for most effective in committee in 1982.

Arnold Diaz heads the Channel 2 News investigative unit of WCBS-TV in New York City. His investigative reports have earned him many honors including the Associated Press Investigative Reporting Award, two New York area Emmy Awards, the United Press Award, the Salurian Society Award and the New York State Bar Association Award. Diaz, a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, received his bachelors degree in mass communications from Florida State in 1971 and a Master of Science degree from the Northwestern University Medill School of Journalism in 1972.

Mark Stephen Wrighton majored in chemistry, earning a Bachelor of Science with honors from Florida State in 1969. He received a doctorate in chemistry from California Institute of Technology in 1972 and has been professor of chemistry at MIT since 1977.

A specialist in energy related chemistry, Wrighton has been a member of the executive committee of the Electrochemical Society Energy Technology Group and also the editorial review board of "Solar Energy." He serves as a consultant to several large corporations, including General Telephone and Electronics Laboratories, Inc. and General Electric.

Diaz, Wrighton and Morgan all will be present for the Homecoming breakfast Saturday, Oct. 9, at 8:45 a.m. in the University Union Ballrooms. Tickets for the breakfast are $5.50 and may be purchased through the Alumni Affairs Office, 644-2761.

The ODK Alumnus of the Year is Lee Corso, who lettered in football from 1953 through 1956 and graduated from Florida State in 1957. He now is head football coach at Indiana University in Bloomington.
