Inside Tribe Tonight

by Mark Carlson FSU Sports Information Director

lorida State vs. Southern Mississippi.

It has been a long time since Seminole fans had such an interesting matchup for their opening game. If you don't believe that, listen to Southern Mississippi head coach Bobby Collins.

"I don't know of any team with a tougher opening game than we have September 8 at Florida State... unless it is Florida State," the Golden Eagle mentor said recently.

You can bet our Seminoles are going to have their share of problems tonight when the visitors appear on the lush Doak Campbell Stadium turf.

Everything seems to be in Southern Mississippi's favor . . .

- (1) The Golden Eagles are seeking revenge. They haven't beaten FSU since 1961 and after last season's 38-16 Tribe victory, USM now trails the series for the first time ever.
- 2) USM can gain itself instant recognition with a win. That is what would come the Golden Eagles' way if they could KO the nationally-ranked (15th United Press and 19th Associated Press) Seminoles.
- (3) In addition to the above-mentioned motives, USM's roster will include at least a dozen players who are returning to their native Florida soil. They would like nothing more than to score an upset in their home state.

Don't, however, think the Seminoles won't have plenty to gain from a victory.

It has been a long time since Garnet and Gold fans were so pumped up about a season. And, with 44 lettermen returning from last season and 18 starters also back, there is reason for optimism.

"Yes," says head coach Bobby Bowden when confronted with the facts, "on paper, this could be the best team we've had. But, for us to improve on the record we'll have to do two things.

"Our defense will have to play more consistently. We shut out seven teams in the second half last year.

"And, we'll have to add running punch to make our acknowledged good passing game go. That may be why we went six games last year before we scored in the first quarter. Our running backs lacked and we were getting all those crazy coverages for our passing we had to solve."

The Seminole team has already established its goal for 1979. Nobody knows what those goals are, but everyone has some pretty good guesses.

One would certainly be to improve on last year's 8-3 record. And, in turn that should bring the bowl bid that somehow eluded last year's squad plus the recognition that would come from the team and individuals with that sort of record.

The Seminoles have already made their mark in the south among the independents. Last season five Seminoles were named first team All-South Independent and two more earned second team recognition. No other independent could come close to those figures. In fact, of the other 14 independents no other school had more than three individuals place with the first unit.

"Our success this season depends more on the players than it has in the previous three years I've been here," says Bowden. "Their attitude and personal desire to improve will be key factors in determining our final 1979 record."

Ivory Joe Hunter, who is the first player in FSU history elected captain twice was very popular with the fans on Press/Photo Day.

Ivory Joe's Able To Weather Any Storm

by Glenn Greenspan, FSU Sports Information

n sports, things have a way of evening out.

It always seems that the baseball player who makes a great play in the field also hits the game-winning home run, or the basketball player that makes the key steal connects on the winning jump shot. Well, for Florida State cornerback Ivory Joe Hunter, hard work, leadership and dedication have paid off in another year of eligibility.

"I'm looking forward to this year very much," said Hunter who missed all but one game last season after suffering a broken ankle. "I look at this year as a gift from God because He has given me the opportunity to finish my education and a chance to prove myself again."

The decision to return to football seems almost minor when you consider Hunter almost did not play at all. Following his final season at Tallahassee's Leon High School, Hunter's mother died and less than three years later, tragedy struck again, claiming the life of his father.

"I had a really tough decision about whether to continue playing football or not," recalled Hunter. "I knew I had to play mother and father to the boys, but I also knew I couldn't continue my education without football."

The boys Hunter refers to are his brothers, Leroy (16) and James (13), who along with Ivory Joe comprise the remainder of the Hunter family. Although currently residing with their grandparents, Hunter has not relinquished the job as head of the household.

"I want to finish what my parents began," Hunter said. "What ever it takes . . . that's what I plan to do. When I was young they would punish me and help me learn through adversity. I hope Leroy and James will come through with the same lessons I learned."

Hunter's courage and endurance have not been wasted on the younger members of the family who look up to their older brother as father, mother and guide.

"They look at me more as a mature brother," Hunter reflected. "I'm the one who had to grow up more quickly. They know that if anything has to be accomplished I can take care of it. I can be mother, father, anything. I'm someone to play with, someone to talk religion with or just someone to be there. I'm all different roles put into one."

Hunter's display of responsibility has positively rubbed off for Leroy and James who help their grandparents whenever they are needed.

"I'm really proud of them," Hunter said in the tone of a father. "Leroy has a small car now and drives his grandfather to the store. James helps out grandmother (who is blind after a bout with diabetes) in the kitchen which makes her real happy."

"I guess they boys have learned something through our adversity," Hunter continued. "They've learned to keep on living and to keep on going. They know they can't put their heads down just because our parents have died. We all know we have to stick together to the end."

Hunter arrived on the Florida State campus in the fall of 1975. While at Leon he was an outstanding receiverdefensive back and led the Lions in the glory days of Class 4A football.

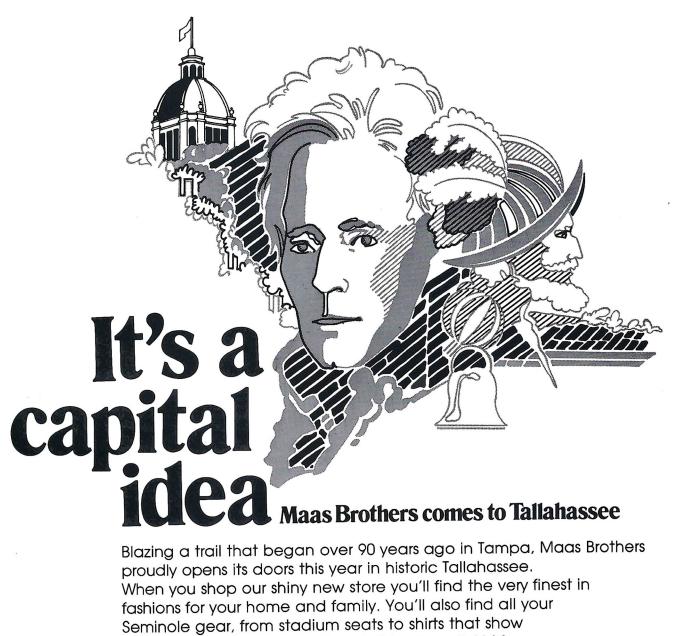

"It was a different experience when I got here (FSU), that's for sure," Hunter smiled. "At Leon I was used to being on a winner. At Florida State there was a losing atmosphere."

Although only a freshman, Hunter tried to change the attitude on the squad with a little extra determination and some plain old-fashioned guts.

"The coaches punished us when we made mistakes and I respected them for that," Hunter recalled. "The other players on the squad wanted to quit but I told them to hang in there—I guess it did some good."

"Now with coach Bowden there is a noticeable difference. It's a lot tougher than it was before but I like it a whole lot more."

Ivory Joe

During his sophomore year Hunter continued to improve and as a junior he led the team in interceptions (4) and blocked a punt against North Texas State, returning the ball 19 yards for a touchdown. Hunter's effort was recognized by his teammates who voted him captain for the 1978 season.

After recording a fine game against Syracuse in the Tribe's opener, Hunter dropped back to receive a punt against Oklahoma State in the season's second game. That play was to be Ivory Joe's last for the '78 campaign.

"The ball bounced at the 15 yard line and I tried to retrieve it before it rolled inside the 10," Hunter explained. "I guess I grabbed it about the same time several Oklahoma State players grabbed me. Even though I had never broken anything before I knew my ankle was broken —it hurt so much."

Expected to return for the final three games of the season, Hunter began the tedious chore of recuperation. After several weeks the ankle refused to come around and Ivory Joe was redshirted for the remainder of the season under an existing NCAA rule that allows a player to participate in only two games before relinquishing his eligibility.

"Sure I was disappointed," Hunter said. "This was supposed to be my year . . . the team's year. I had to sit down and re-evaluate everything I had planned. That certainly was a had time for me."

Lost to the Seminoles was one of the finest defensive backs in the south, but more importantly for the Seminoles, one of their most respected leaders.

"He's a leader, no doubt about it," said FSU defensive coordinator Jack Stanton. "You can tell by the guys electing him captain. They know who they want as a leader."

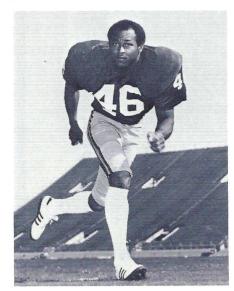

Included in leadership is the ability not to be selfish on the field or off, allowing a parallel to be drawn between Hunter's personal problems and his football experience.

"Ivory Joe is not selfish, not selfish at all," Stanton continued. "His personal life and football career just helped bring out what was always inside him. It takes a special individual at 22 to take over as the head of his family and give up virtually all of his social life. Ivory Joe is a very responsible person and a devoted family man."

Always wishing to remain modest, even Hunter had to admit he was leader on the team.

"Yea, I guess I am one of the leaders," Hunter said. "I've been here five years and I know the feeling of winning and the disappointment of losing. I'm not scared to speak out but I'm not too headstrong or too old to take advice from different people."

One bit of advice the Seminoles were glad Ivory Joe took was the recommendation to return to Florida State instead of opting for the possible pro career this season.

"A career in the National Football League is a quick way to take care of my family and put food on the table," Hunter reasoned. "A pro career would be nice but it's not everything. Joining the pros would be more for them (Leroy and James) than for me."

"Before the season began I sat down and listed goals for myself, my family and Florida State football," Hunter continued. "First, I want to be a good Christian. Second, I want to be able to set an example for my brothers and to help support them when they need me. Third, I want to bring a winner to Tallahassee."

"My attitude for 1979 is to help the school have a winning football team, not by potential, but by performance. I want to be a great leader and to set examples for the team that will make me respected both on the field and off."

Although football may not be his top priority right now, Hutner has a good chance to join two other Seminole defensive backs who made it to the pros. The two gridders that made the NFL grade were Nat Terry, formerly of the Detroit Lions, and Bobby Jackson, presently with the New York Jets. Both are former teammates of Hunter.

"He's as talented in certain ways as Terry and Jackson," Stanton said. "He may lack certain attributes those men possessed but he has talents they did not have."

Hunter knows the two pros well, having played with both over the course of his career. In fact, in 1977 Hunter and his secondary mates accounted for 11 of the Seminoles' 14 interceptions with Ivory Joe's four leading the club. By a stroke of fate, those four grabs are the only ones he has recorded during his three year, two game career.

With his ankle finally mending properly, Hunter entered spring practice as a converted safety, giving Florida State a chance to shape up a position that was destroyed by injuries in '78. After several weeks of experimentation Stanton decided to return Ivory Joe to cornerback where he began his career.

"Ivory Joe did not have the best of springs, but that's only because he was being tried at a new position," Stanton admitted. "Now that we've returned him to cornerback I think things will be just fine."

In preparation for the upcoming year, Hunter has worked out heavily on the weights both for upper body strength and to improve his rehabilitated ankle. Since spring Hunter has increased his bench strength from 275 to 320 and his lifting over 300 pounds on the Nautilus machines with his weaker ankle.

Along with the additional strength, last season's injury has apparently not slowed him down. Hunter ran an excellent 4.5 in the 40, putting him among the Seminoles' quickest. With the added power and exceptional speed, he looks to be one of the Seminoles' most versatile athletes.

"This year will give me an opportunity to show the pros what I have," Hunter said. "The added strength should benefit both the Seminoles and myself in the future."

Hunter has already shown his strength to a lot of people. His strength in the classroom and his strength of character make him a sure bet to succeed in life.

WELCOME!

Dear Seminole Fans:

Florida State University's thrust for the next several years will be upon increased emphasis toward quality improvement in all of its academic programs. Ever since 1947 when Florida State became coeducational, the University has been hard pressed just to keep up with the rapid growth it experienced. Now, with enrollments leveling off, our faculty and staff are looking forward to stressing quality improvement even more.

The same can now be said for the Florida State Seminole football team. Its growth has been just as rapid, starting from scratch in 1947. During the past two seasons, our Seminoles have had fantastic won-lost records, including one post-season bowl game.

Those of us at Florida State won't be completely satisfied until we make the Top 10 in sports and academics. And when we get into that elite group, we will continue to strive to go even higher, both in the classrooms and on the football field.

I want to take this opportunity to say "thanks" to you, the loyal fans who have supported our Seminoles through the years. Without you, the success we have achieved would not have been possible. With your expected continued support, we have a good shot at reaching that Top 10 position.

On behalf of the students, faculty and staff of Florida State University, "welcome" to our campus. We hope you will come back soon and often. You will always be welcome.

Sincerely,

Bernard J. Sliger

BUNDENS

ow does one describe Florida State head football coach Bobby Bowden?

Bobby Bowden may be one of the original down-home, good old boys, and to hear him tell it he's been a Seminole all his life. He wears a garnet and gold stripe shirt, hits golf balls with an official FSU driver and, if properly motivated, might tell you he bleeds garnet and gold.

He truly enjoys being the head football coach at Florida State University.

And, why shouldn't he?

After all, in three seasons, the Seminoles have compiled a 23-11 record under the guidance of Bowden, who currently ranks 15th on the active list of college coaches in winning percentage (.691).

But, for Bowden it's more than just winning. Being a head football coach at a major university allows him to be out and around, meeting the people. During the month of May, for instance, he normally speaks to a minimum of 25 Seminole Booster Clubs around the state.

Why?

There are two obvious answers: recruiting and fund raising.

But there's more to this man who has turned the fortunes of the Florida

State football program from ashes to a rising star on the national scene. He is more than just a football coach. He is also a deeply religious individual, who when he's not on the road recruiting and raising funds, can often be found at a church podium in Tallahassee or one of the surrounding communities on Sunday mornings.

"I enjoy meeting and talking with people," Bowden explains. "I'm not a preacher. I'm not qualified to preach. I do like to share my experiences with God, though, especially with young people."

"I want to add something to their lives . . . to make them aware of what's going on around them."

"Kids enjoy listening to coaches speak. I know I did when I was growing up. Kind of looked up to them, you know what I mean?"

Bowden certainly has the football buffs of the southeastern United States attention after what has happened in three seasons at Florida State.

Consider these facts . .

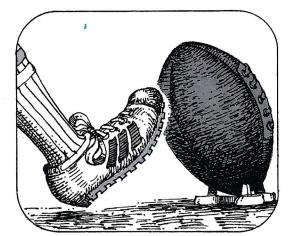

- (1) After going 4-29 in three seasons B.B. (Before Bowden), the Seminoles have now compiled a 23-11 mark with him captaining the ship;
 - (2) The 1977 Seminoles won 10 games enroute to a 10-2 record. Those 10 victories represent the most ever registered by any major (Division I-A) college team now playing football in Florida:

- (3) Florida State's '77 Seminoles finished the season ranked 11th and 14th in the individual wire service polls:
- (4) Bowden took the Seminoles '77 to their first bowl appearance since the 1971 Fiesta Bowl:
- (5) Despite the fact that there were just five seniors on the 1978 squad, it survived a mid-season slump, to manage an 8-3 record. That ledger was not good enough for national ranking or a bowl appearance at the conclusion of the season but it provided momentum for 1979;
- (6) Early in the 1978 campaign, FSU managed to rank ninth and 10th in the wire service polls after three consecutive victories. Those were the highest rankings EVER for a Seminole football squad.
- So... Seminole fans look forward to 1979. It should be an especially pleasing campaign for Bowden, a Birmingham, Ala., native, because unless the Garnet and Gold suffers a complete collapse Bowden will notch his 100th coaching victory at the major college level.

Go Seminoles!

If it's Borden, it's got to be good.

2036 N. MONROE ST. 904/385-1133

Bowden begins 1979 just four wins shy of the 100 victory plateau. His overall report card is 96-43 and includes marks of 31-6 at Samford and 42-26 at West Virginia before joining the Seminole camp.

Bowden began at Florida State with a 5-6 record. But, since that time everything has been on the upward trend. And, despite the disappointment of not receiving a bowl berth or finishing in the prestigious Top 20 Semnole fans remain excited.

That is because of the pass happy offense Bowden has installed since taking over. Last year the Seminoles displayed the 11th best offense (411.1 yards per game) in the country and the third best passing attack (249.9). And, the team averaged 28.4 points a game. The point average included 38 point efforts in three of the final four games.

What is the reason for the Bowden coaching success?

Enthusiasm and discipline are key words which exemplify Bowden's overall attitude, both on and off the field.

"I believe in discipline and enthusiasm in everything you do in life," Bowden says, "and you coach what you believe. If we can be enthusiastic in the little things we do, it will carry over to a winning season."

"But don't get me wrong about discipline. I believe in letting the players know who is boss, and I believe in some sacrifice and devotion. But discipline can only go so far."

"If short hair and perfect manners won football games, the Army-Navy game would be played every year for the national championship."

Bowden's coaching philosophy is quite simple.

"I believe in blocking and tackling," he says. "Everything else in this game is secondary; blocking and tackling will cause wins."

Winning means a lot to Bowden, an avid golfer, who since moving to Tallahassee has improved his game steadily.

"I don't believe in playing without a scorecard," says Bowden. "I don't feel there is any accomplishment with a tie. I think if one of my teams was playing Notre Dame for the national title and I had the choice of winning or losing or going for the tie, I would go for the win."

National championship was not a term mentioned with a great deal of frequency at Florida State until the last two years. Bowden explains it cautiously.

"A national championship is the ultimate in coaching, but I must be realistic," says Bowden. "Every year we set new goals with our team. In 1977 our first objective was landing a spot in the Top 20. Then we wanted a bowl bid."

"Last year we fell short of our goal—gaining a spot in the final Top 10 and going to our second consecutive bowl game. But, that may not have been all that bad. Our players know that to achieve those goals they must do more than step on the field. They realize Florida State needs a consistent winning record to be a legiti-mate contender each year for national honors."

Born on November 8, 1929, Bowden attended Woodlawn High School in Birmingham, Ala., and was a Little All-American quarterback at Samford University. He holds a bachelor's degree from Samford and master's from Peabody College. He married his childhood sweetheart, the former Julia Ann Estock, and they have six children.

Mrs. Bowden is active in the Tallahassee community and recently helped establish the Extra Point Club, a group of women working towards the betterment of FSU football. Steve is studying for the ministry in Louisville, Robyn teaches at Fairmont State College, Tommy is a graduate assistant on the FSU staff, Terry manages the Coble Terrace residence hall which houses many of the Seminole football players, Jeff is a walkon wide receiver at Florida State and Ginger is a freshman at FSU.

Jantzen You know who. So there you have the favorite, the defending champ, the 205-pound scamp who made 20 touchdown trips last year in leading all collegiate rushers. And in doing so, Sims racked the highest rushing average ever for a major college campaigner. His 231 carries from Oklahoma's Wishbone launching pad averaged 7.63 yards, a number that may grow even more amazing with the years.

Then, of course, attention will flip ficklely to Charles White of the supreme Southern Cal stable, the other entry in the so-called match race. This latest in a long line of Trojan land grabbers was the No.4 rusher in the land last season and he has the statistical advantage enjoyed by all Southern Cal tailbacks. They get plenty of work.

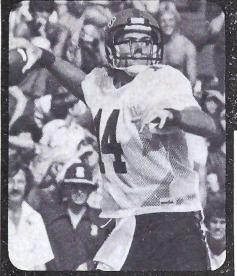

White, for example, carried the ball 111 more times than did Sims last year. His average (5.1) wasn't quite as gaudy, but who knows, perhaps Sims' figures would have shrunk with increased duty.

Still the offensive race, regardless of how the Racing Form dopes it, has more than two entries.

Around North Carolina, natives think Famous Amos Lawrence will claim his share of headlines. The junior dervish, who spins for a 5.3-yard average, passed the halfway point of his college career with more accumulative yardage than any runner except Dorsett and Po James. Especially did the 180-pounder finish strong, topping the 100-yard rush mark in five of his last six games, including a 167-yarder against Duke in the finale.

In the Southwest, there are three runners who have snared fans' fancy, each with a rather distinctive history. Two weeks before Texas Tech opened last season, big James Hadnot was a tight end and happy with his lot. Suddenly he was fullback and a bit uncertain with his lot. A few weeks into the season, and Tech Coach Rex Dockery looked like a genius with his emergency move. Hadnot became the hardest worker in the Southwest, shoving his 236 pounds after the tough yardage between the tackles. "Kong" Hadnot led the conference in rushing and, indeed, finished eighth among the national gainers. He's back for another helping.

At Texas A&M, big strapping Curtis Dickey is sometimes thought of as a track star, a 207-pound sprinter who once finished second in the NCAA 100-meter finals. "Football is my game," says Dickey. "I just ran track for fun. And the Heisman is my goal."

Another highstepper in that region is young Bernard Jackson of North Texas State. He was a wide receiver as a frosh, moved to tailback last season to average 132 yards rushing per game, and finish sixth among the national rushers.

The eleventh ranked runner of last fall, Joe Cribbs of Auburn, is another returnee, and so is stubby (5-9, 195) Allen Harvin of Cincinnati (No. 13) who had a

For sheer drama, although his crowds

For sheer drama, although his crowds aren't Rose Bowl size, Nathan Johnson of Northeast Louisiana is hard to beat. He weighs just 172 pounds, but on his six touchdowns last fall, he averaged 54 yards each.

In that same category, but wider acclaimed, is Darrin Nelson, a scurrying elf from Stanford. His coach, Rod Dowhower, calls him "the most exciting player in the country. He gives us a dimension no college team ever had." The little junior averaged 161 all-purpose yards last fall, rushing, catching, returning kicks. He's the only back ever to rush for 1,000 yards and catch 50 passes the same season, and he's done it twice.

Ralph Clayton, a healthy 210-pound Michigan wingback, is another of those versatile guys, averaging 22 yards for each of his pass receptions and keeping the enemy nervous with his wingback reverses, as does Kenny Brown, the dynamic wingback from Nebraska.

Many of the current crop of roadrunners seem built on a small last, like Leon Walker, the explosive halfback from UN-Las Vegas, and Mickey Collins of Wichita State. But the larger tourist class is still represented by Marion Barber of Minnesota, I.M. Hipp of Neb-

THE LONELY END

by Tim Cohane

hen does a football legend come of age?
At 21? Well, it's 21 years since 1958 when Army's Lonely End first lined up as a far, far, far flanker, almost on the sideline, and did not join the huddle between plays.

He was William Stanley Carpenter, Jr., a 6 foot 1, 205pound second classman (junior) from Springfield, Pennsylvania, and probably the best all-around end in West Point annals. He was a mobile, high-reaching pass receiver, not far below Don Hutson standards, and had he played at a civilian college would no doubt have been an early-round pro draft choice. He was also an outstanding blocker and defender. In 1959, he was named All-America.

Most of all, while outwardly placid and reserved, he burned with intense competitive zeal and had a remarkably low pain threshold.

But Carpenter would have been remembered in football only as an All-America and not as a legend, had he not become The Lonely End. On the other hand, there would have been no Lonely End without Carpenter.

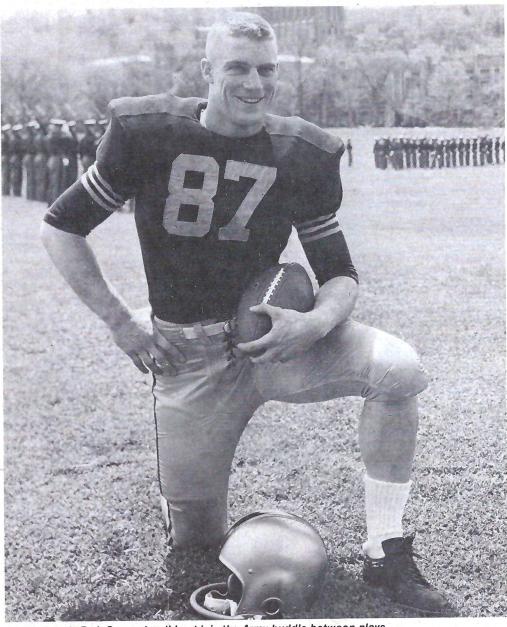

It was essential to the legend that it enjoy a background of victory, and the 1958 Army team, Coach Ed Blaik's last, was undefeated, first in the east, and third nationally.

As the season advanced, The Lonely End became a gridiron celebrity. On any team he would have been intriguing. As a Cadet he was even more so because his "loneliness" implied a break with regimentation. He invited anecdotes.

The week of the 14-2 victory at Notre Dame, Coach Terry Brennan of the Irish asked Jack Lavelle, his veteran scout and noted humorist, what The Lonely End did when trainer Ed Pillings came out with the water bucket. Did Carpenter go over for a drink?

"No siree!" replied Lavelle. "He sticks his hands in his pocket and whips out K rations."

The press was ecstatic about him; a typical comment: "Football hasn't seen anything like him since the invention of the forward pass." He even made the editorial page of the New York Times: "Holding aloof from the huddle, presumably getting the signals by radar or through someone twitching an ear, Cadet Carpenter came as close to being the nation's dreamboat as is good for an Army man to be."

As The Lonely End, Carpenter did not join the Army huddle between plays.

It was the mystery surrounding The Lonely End, of course, that accounted for much, perhaps most, of his charisma. Army fielded other exceptional people in 1958. Halfbacks Bob Anderson and Pete Dawkins, and guard Bob Novogratz all made All-America. Scrawny, freckled Joe (The Urchin) Caldwell was West Point's greatest passer. Then there were Don Usry (The Sociable or Gregarious End), center Bill Rowe, guard Chuck Lyttle, fullback Harry Walkers, and others. To the opposition they posed problems. But Carpenter also posed a mystery, to the foes, to the fans, to the press.

How did he get his signals? How did he know whether the play would be a run or a pass? If a run, who was he to block. If a pass, what route was he to run? And as receiver or decoy? At the end of each play, how did he know which far side of the field to flank for the next one? Questions, twisters to pique Inspector Clouseau himself. (We shall give you the answers presently.)

Why was the Lonely End conceived and who gave him the name?

While in Chicago for the All Star game in early August of 1958, Coach Blaik was outlining his far-flanking attack to Coach Andy Gustafson, his former Army the Southern Cal powerhouse. But he is a rapidly improving passer himself, just in case he wants to diversify the Trojan attack. In one late-season stretch of six straight wins, McDonald completed 64 percent of his passes, with 12 touchdowns as a result.

SMU's big Mike Ford, No. 1 in total offense last fall, will face somewhat of a transition. Wherein the Mustang attack formerly was mostly limited to Ford throwing to quick little Emanuel Tolbert, the nation's runnerup receiver last season, now Ford will have more tools.

Syracuse thinks it may have the nation's best quarterback in Bill Hurley, who was granted an extra season of eligibility after busting his ribs in last fall's opener. And Arizona State is proud of the run-pass mixture of Mark Malone, of the run-pass mixture of Mark Malone, the same gears that work so well for lean Jimmy Streater of Tennessee, Mike Wright of Bowling Green and Brad Wright of New Mexico.

The college countryside seems overrun with undersized receivers who have cunningly concealed springs in their breeches and seem entirely capable of clearing tall buildings in a single bound, catching footballs in the process. Tolbert, the aforementioned SMU whirlygig, is one. He can walk under anything 5-10 off the ground. Gerald Harp of Western Carolina, who tied Tolbert for No. 2 receiving rank last year, is another. He's 5-7, for heaven's sakes. Felix Wilson of Kentucky, Brad Reid of Iowa, Carlos Carson of LSU, Kevin Williams of Southern Cal are others of stunted growth save when they punch their elevators for passes.

Prominent among the nation's receivers also are Lindsay Scott, a Georgia soph of amazing quickness and elusiveness, and Eugene Goodlow of Kansas State, whose touchdown catches included distances of 87, 68, 63 and 50 yards.

Florida thinks there is no catcher better than Cris Collinsworth, a stringy junior nicknamed "Cadillac," presumably for his long, comfortable trips. Like, a 97-yard kickoff return against LSU and touchdown journeys of 63 and 52 yards on pass receptions against Mississippi State.

Lam Jones, the Olympic sprinter, returns to Texas for his senior season and his worth, says Coach Fred Akers, is not limited to his catches and his reverses, but includes the acute worry he inflicts on opposing secondaries.

A familiar name—Dave Shula—is rewriting the Dartmouth pass receiving records (his dad coaches the Dolphins). Mardye McDole of Mississippi State led the SEC in receiving last season but doesn't know his new role in the Wishbone attack being installed by new Coach Emory Bellard. Steve Bogan, a Northwestern fuzzcheek, caught six touchdown passes last season, most ever by a Big Ten freshman.

This year, for some strange reason, centers have become praiseworthy objects. Bo Rein at North Carolina State thinks he may have the best player "at his position" who ever played in the Atlantic Coast Conference—Jim Richter, 6-3, 245 pounds.

Georgia Coach Vince Dooley says his Ray Donaldson is "the best I ever had."

Fred Akers at Texas says his best offensive lineman is 6-4, 250-pound Wes Hubert, a three-vear starter at center. UCLA welcomes back Brent Boyd, "one of our best centers in 15 years" according to Coach Terry Donahue. Boyd missed all of last season with a broken foot. Nebraska expects center Kelly Saalfeld to hold together a green young offensive line. Tony Mason thinks his Arizona center Norm Katnik is the top Pac 10 player at that position. Iowa puts the major offensive responsibility on center Jay Hilgenberg, whose father was an All-America center there a generation ago.

Dwight Stephenson of Alabama doesn't have great size (6-3, 230) but he's been all-conference center as a sophomore and junior and is called one of the best blockers in Crimson Tide history.

Other than centers, offensive linemen getting advance notice include tackle Anthony Munoz and guard Brad Budde of Southern Cal; Ken Fritz, Ohio State's heralded guard; Pete Inge, a short but very wide guard at San Diego State; John Sinnott, a 270-pound tackle at Brown. And then there's Greg Kolenda, an Arkansas senior tackle who, according to Lou Holtz, "is no better than your everyday, run-of-the-mill All-American" and Melvin Jones, another 270-pound bulk from Houston. Navy decorates a brace of guards, Frank McCallister and Tom Feldman.

Greg Kolenda, tackle Arkansas

Ford, like his passing rival, Mark Herrmann of Purdue, is but a junior. But then so are many of the country's headline quarterbacks—Phil Bradley of Missouri, who led the Big Eight in total offense; Mark Halda of San Diego State, last season's No. 3 thrower; Randy Hertel, the Rice aviator with a 56 percent gunsight; John Hall of Western Ken-his is about defensive ends, and if you're looking for something light and funny, buzz off.

People in college football joke about a lot of things, but seldom about defensive ends.

Why? Why don't rolling heads look up and smile at the guillotine? Football games are won and lost at defensive end, that's why.

Behind many of the most spectacular offensive plays in football history have been gaffes on the part of defensive ends. And in front of the most gummed-up offenses you've ever seen are usually defensive ends doing themselves proud.

Modern offenses are designed to turn the defensive end into a fool. They often put him squarely at the point of attack, banging him hard physically and challenging him to make the right one of several possible decisions on many different plays.

To excel at defensive end, a player must be a super athlete embodying qualities rare among men.

A young Southwest assistant coach making a name for himself through the success of his defensive ends says he needs merely the best athletes on the defensive unit.

"It takes a special player," he said. "They see so much thrown at them, I frankly don't know how they ever learn it all. You used to just get a big, muscular guy and tell him to go get the quarterback, but not any more. In fact, you can be too big. I don't like to have them taller than 6 feet 3 or heavier than 220. Any bigger and they're not mobile enough."

You don't find such athletes in bunches, most coaches agree. "When I came here, we didn't have a single player able to play the position," the coach said. "It took three years to develop two of them."

The defensive end must be strong enough to fend off blocks by huge tackles and tight ends, and quick enough to avoid blocks by speedy, agile running backs who have a five-to-seven yard head of steam before they take their best shots.

He also must be smart enough not to take the bait in the cat-and-mouse game forced on him by the quarterback option play. And, increasingly, he has to be agile enough to play pass defense in the zone near the line of scrimmage—all without losing what the coaches call "containment."

By "containment," coaches mean it is the defensive end's responsibility to continued

never, ever, let the ball get outside him and into that sideline groove to touchdown glory.

If he loses containment, it's all over but the shouting," said a veteran Midwestern head coach. "That's the basic thing he has to do—contain."

When the play is run toward the outside, making the tackle is NOT the defensive end's primary job. If he can make it, fine, and it's usually for a substantial, sensational loss. But his main job is to force the runner back inside where pursuing linebackers or linemen can cut him down.

It is the defensive end's cardinal sin to be cut down himself, because that usually means containment is lost.

On many outside running plays, the defensive end is first hit by a straightup block by the tight end or an offensive tackle. Those folks usually weigh in the 240-250-pound range and stand well over six feet tall.

Then, to try to turn the defensive end inside and keep him from doing his job, many offenses are designed to send a halfback or fullback out to block him.

Defensive ends have traditionally guessed wrong so often on quarterback option plays that the option has become a trademark of college football.

What happens on the option, pointed out a Southeastern offensive coordinator, is: "Our quarterback tries to fool the defensive end. His job is to make the end commit himself, then do the opposite—either keep the ball and run with it, or pitch to a trailing running back, or stop and throw a pass."

Forcing the runner inside is the main job of the defensive end.

To put the end even more on the spot, blockers try to seal off any help he could expect from the tackle alongside him or from the linebackers behind him.

On the off-tackle running play, a staple of any good offensive team, the end must quickly determine that he can abandon his responsibility to contain, then crash down the line and help the tackle who is usually being double-teamed. Of course, the offense tries to stop the defensive end from doing this by trying to block him away from the play—"kick him outside," in the vernacular—with a running back, and some college fullbacks weigh in the 220-240-pound range.

On plays which go to the opposite side of the field, the good defensive end doesn't just run helter-skelter for the ball. He first determines there aren't any potential pass receivers in his area (and covers them if there are), then he watches for reverse (or misdirection) plays coming back his way.

The Southwest coach whose ends have drawn national attention asks his charges to play pass defense every time the tight end angles to the outside—but to never, ever, sacrifice containment to follow the tight end.

Because few college teams have more than one man capable of playing defensive end well, many coaches have begun flip-flopping them—playing the bigger, stronger one across from the offense's tight end and putting the lighter, quicker one across from the offense's wide receiver.

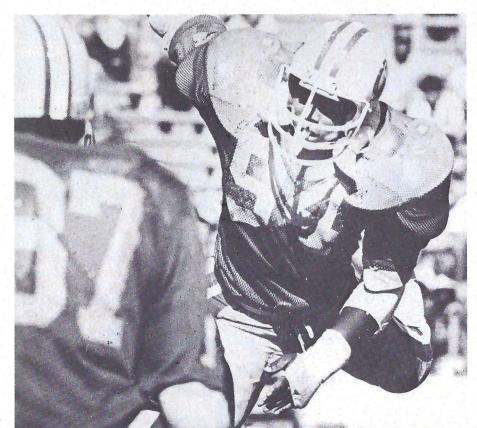

There's a cat-and-mouse game for that situation, too. Offenses often shift the tight end from one side of the line to the other just before the snap, or send backs and-or wide receivers into motion to disrupt the defense.

It's all part of the evolution of the game. For a time, the wishbone offense was murder on defensive ends, but offensive coaches learned its best features could be preserved in the veer offense while improving the passing attack. Veer coaches soon learned the offense was too risky, producing too many fumbles to permit sound sleep. So many have gone to the "I" formation. They still have the option and passing capabilities, but the turnover risk is less.

"Everything is based on beating the defensive end," said the Midwestern coach. "If you can beat his containment, either by running outside or with the option, you're in good shape. If you can double-team the tackle and kick the defensive end out, you can run up the middle. If you can give your quarterback time to throw, you're okay, too.

"But a good defensive end can wreak havoc on you."

Either way, to a coach, it just ain't funny.

To excel at his position, the defensive end should be strong, agile, quick and smart.

and Dartmouth assistant, but then head coach at Miami (Fla.). At that point, Blaik, who had installed the formation in spring practice, planned to keep Carpenter in the huddle. But Gustafson warned Blaik that if Carpenter had to commute continually between his outpost and the huddle, he'd be used up physically.

This criticism made sense to Blaik. So he decided to keep Carpenter out of the huddle. It would conserve Bill's energy, and it would permit Army to run off more plays. But, most important, it would force a vital part of the defense to commit its intentions immediately. This in turn would give Caldwell a chance, much earlier in the 25 seconds allotted to put the ball in play, to assay the defense and call the proper play to negate it.

As to the name, The Lonely End, it was coined by the late Stanley Woodward, redoubtable sports editor of the New York Herald Tribune, and a long time friend of Blaik.

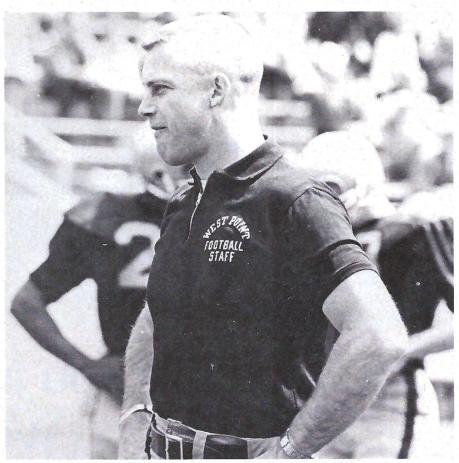

First to confront The Lonely End that rainy September 27, Saturday in Michie Stadium 21 years ago was South Carolina, coached by Warren Giese. Called by Giese his most experienced team, the Gamecocks had beaten Duke the week before, would beat Georgia the week after, had a 7-3 record, and came to West Point expecting to win.

They were destroyed, 45-8. Before they ever got over midfield, Army had 38 points. The Cadets made 344 yards running and 185 passing. While South Carolina was debating how to cover the far-flanking Carpenter on his lightning-quick and diverse downfield patterns, Caldwell and Anderson were completing passes not only to The Lonely End but to Dawkins and Usry. They put on a show that dazzled not only South Carolina but the crowd and the press.

They were even more spectacular in the first half against Penn State in Michie the next week, scoring all the points in a 26-0 victory. They completed nine of 11 passes for 258 yards, and gained 93 yards running.

The second touchdown, a one-yard smash by Anderson, was set up by a 33-yard pass from Caldwell to Carpenter, on which The Lonely End went high into the air to steal the ball out of the hands of a defender, a regular trick of his. He also scored the third touchdown by racing 23 yards with a long pass from Caldwell, who had somehow eluded a Penn State posse.

Carpenter put on his greatest show his senior year, 1959, when Army lost at Oklahoma, 28-20. He had a bad left shoulder that required his left elbow be taped to his side. He was catching the ball literally with one arm, and was seemingly oblivious to pain when tackled. Yet, he ran his patterns perfectly. Against double-coverage most of the time, he still worked his way into the open, caught six passes, and threw a touchdown block. Oklahoma rooters, waiting to shake his hand outside Army's dressing room, said: "If this is the kind of man West Point is turning out, we are assured good military leadership."

As a soldier, Captain Carpenter won the Distinguished Service Cross in Vietnam by calling down napalm and artillery fire on his own men "because it was available, because the enemy was overrunning us, and because retreating and leaving our wounded behind was out of the question."

When Captain Carpenter later took his wounded to a landing strip to be airlifted out of battle, he was greeted by Lt. Col Harry Emerson. Glassy-eyed from fatigue and smeared with mud, Carpenter spoke unhappily of his decision to call in the air attack: "I lost a lot of people in that strike." "But," Emerson interjected, "you saved the company." Later, when they pinned the DSC on him, Bill said: "It was the company that earned it."

You are still wondering, I hope, how

The Lonely End and the huddle communicated? Red Blaik, who authored the plot, came clean the other day:

"When Caldwell stood in the huddle, if his feet were squared, it was a run. If either foot was advanced, it was a pass.

"If it was a run, there were five different fundamental blocking assignments for Carpenter to choose from. If it was a pass, he followed one of the same routes as if he were going to block.

"He knew which one of the five on a signal flashed to him by Dawkins as Pete moved from the huddle to his position as wingback.

"Thus, Carpenter knew precisely which route to take, and either blocked in the secondary or was in a position to take a pass. And, on either run or pass, the defense was forced to cover him.

"The Lonely End formation was fundamentally to the right. So, when Carpenter, after a play, saw that the team would have to line up too close to the right hash mark for him to set the distance required by The Lonely End, he would, prior to the huddle, automatically post himself as a far flanker to the left. This signaled Caldwell to call formation left."

And, there, Inspector Clouseau, you have it, I hope.

With our nonstop service from Tallahassee to Atlanta you can make convenient connections to St. Louis, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Omaha, Seattle and Portland. And late in 1979, we'll be adding more cities in the West. You'll be able to go to Albuquerque, Denver, Phoenix, Reno and Tucson.

While Eastern's schedules save you time, our Super Saver fares save you money. From 40% to 50%.* No matter where we fly in the continental U.S.

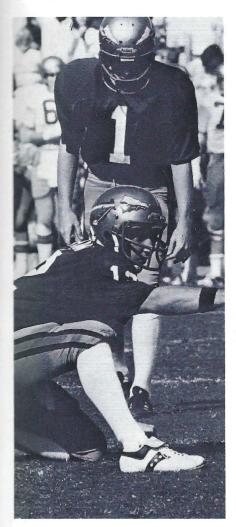

Eastern's the way to go West. For reservations and fare requirements, see your travel agent, or call Eastern at 224-4121 in Tallahassee.

*Based on comparison to regular daycoach fare. Super Saver fares have advance reservation and ticket purchase requirements, minimum and maximum length of stay requirements, limited seats and are not available on every flight or certain holiday periods.

50% savings applies to midweek Night Coach service where available.

T is impossible to pinpoint the exact date, football game and campus the first person decided to pull out some med chicken and a jug of iced tea and se his car trunk lid as a table. In fact, it s highly likely that on a Saturday many decades ago, baskets of goodies were being hauled simultaneously not to Grandma's house but to the peripheries of football stadiums all over the country.

Tailgating is too good an idea to have been the inspiration of a single person.

Whether the first tailgaters used what metal there was on a Model T or on a sleek Packard Coupe, it is safe to say the sport" (although some call it an art) of tailgating blossomed into full fruition after World War II. Automobiles, even among students, became the rule on college campuses rather than the exception. And where there are automobiles and football games to be viewed, there most necessarily are tailgating parties.

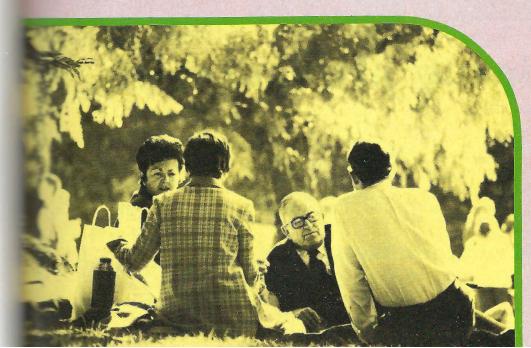

The pioneer tailgaters would be amazed to see what a phenomenon the activity has turned into. With the increased number of recreational vehicles on the road these days, many stadium parking lots and grounds take on the appearance of a mobile home park each Saturday afternoon. Not to mention the proliferation of station wagons, hatchbacks and anything else that will open up and imitate a dining room

Any college or university that has a football team and a few acres of land near the field is a prime spot for tailgating. For that matter, all it really requires is a football team. At one large Eastern university that has only sidewalks, stores and the typical trappings of urban life for a campus, people tailgate without tail or gate. Picnic baskets and little folding trays go right into the stands on game day. By 10 a.m., most of the spectators are already in their seats, helping themselves to the repast of their choice, be it a half dozen cheeseburgers procured at the local junk shop on the way to the game or a four-course luncheon prepared with Mom's loving care.

Ah, but true tailgating should involve some moving vehicle. It doesn't have to be a van or station wagon as several enterprising students at a Southern California school showed not long ago when they set up motorcycles and bikes in pairs and stretched plywood planks across to make their tables.

The opposite end of that sort of approach is done early by alumni of a large Southern university for the game with the long-time conference rival. Several years ago the organizing couple purchased a gigantic Winnebago and began outfitting it with the ultimate in tailgating. Not only is the machine done in the school colors, inside and out, but its owners have installed a rather sophisticated sound system that is programmed months ahead of time for the day of the big game.

Dramatic recordings of previous triumphs, complete with narration and crowd noises are played from the time the group leaves the Winnebagoowners' driveway until each member heads to the stadium to find his seat for the current contest. The alums hire a sympathetic but less enthusiastic man to drive so they may be free to toast each and every play—past, present or future—that strikes their fancy.

When the outcome of the game is upon them, its spirit goes right back into the Winnebago, either to be toasted anew or to be grieved over during the long ride home.

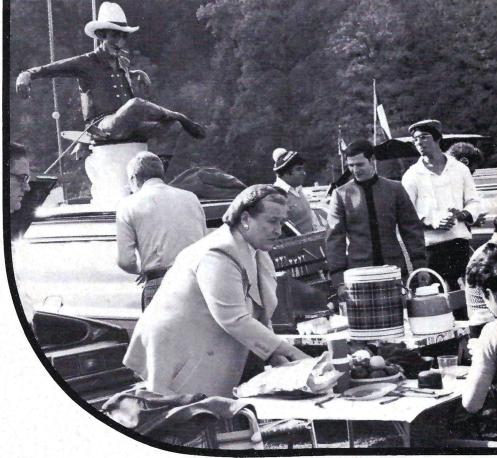

For most tailgaters, however, the Winnebago is in another league. Campers, though, have definitely found their places. One graduating class of the mid-Fifties at a Big Ten school has a half dozen representatives each homecoming game, all driving campers. They arrive in the stadium parking lot the Friday of homecoming weekend, the first on the spot raising the banner of the graduating year. One by one, the others cruise around the lot, looking for their banner and soon join forces. For them, tailgating is like a mini-vacation. Lawn chairs come out of the backs of the vehicles, lanterns are hung from each camper and the adults set about catching up on a year of news while the kids run around the parking lot as though it were a resort.

"My parents took me for so long," says the daughter of one of the "hardcore" attenders, "that my husband and I got our own camper right after we graduated and we've started to go. My kids are out there playing touch football the morning of the game just like I used to do."

Says a recent graduate of the Ivy League, "I've been dragging a barbecue grill to the last couple of big weekends just like my dad did. Nothing's changed, really, the tailgating is still the biggest reason to go to the game. Anyway, it's usually a lot more satisfying."

Speaking of satisfying, a stroll through almost any tailgate area the morning of a game could make the most indifferent eater ravenous. At one of the country's military academies, a special section near the stadium has been set aside for years for season ticket holders to park their various autos and tailgate. Identifying passes are mailed to all those eligible to use the area.

One fellow, who is on the waiting list, says, "Getting into that lot is like trying to get tickets to the last game of the World Series. But at least you can walk through and smell the hamburgers, steaks and hot dogs. Last year I passed a group of people who were barbecuing a whole leg of lamb! It was heavenly."

That brings up the subject of a menu. Perhaps in those early post-war years, it was enough to toss together a few peanut butter sandwiches for a tailgate party. Not anymore. Tailgate menus have graduated, as have the ways of simply putting them on the table.

When several persons meet for a tailgate party, each usually brings a dish or beverage. The more people involved, the more the backs of station wagons begin to look like Thanksgiving.

Yet, three couples who meet annually for a Pacific-10 rivalry have carried tailgating to possibly its most elegant extreme.

"It has escalated every year," says one of the wives, a '68 grad. "Now we're at the place where whoever is in charge one year will try to outdo whatever was done last year. We haven't sat on the ground on a blanket for the past four years. Always a table and chairs and a table cloth."

And, of all things for a fine fall day, lighted candelabra and recorded classical music on a tape deck.

"The gal who did the brunch last year brought pate, endive salad, cold roast duckling and some wonderful asparagus thing," says the woman in charge of next year's feast. "Then, as we were sipping freshly brewed coffee, she whipped up strawberries chantilly. And her husband brought a wine to go with every course. I'm at the place where I think I'll have to get Maxim's to cater or something."

Gourmet brunch or standby fried chicken, one of the common elements of tailgating is the sense of community sharing. Strangers looking for their own parties are forever being asked to sample some food or drink from tailgaters who park in every grove of trees, concrete parking lot or dirt clearing.

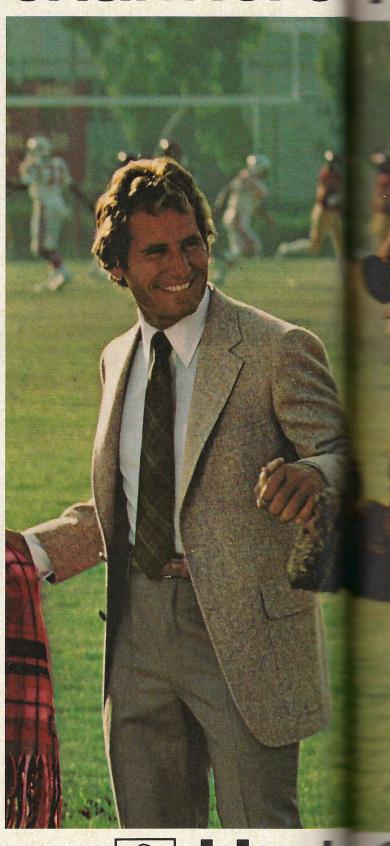

Says the father of a recent Southwest Conference quarterback, "I had such a great time just getting to the stadium, I almost missed my son's first two plays. I never realized a parking lot could offer so much."

Neither did an Atlantic Coast Conference group of alums until last year. "We got smart," says the ringleader, "We brought a TV set, watched the whole game and never had to stop our tailgate party."

Teilgeting Recipes

n England, you'll likely get a summons for tailgating and a stern lecture from the magistrate.

That's because our cousins on the other side of the Atlantic haven't yet discovered that tailgating is actually one of the more delightful forms of partying we erstwhile colonists have perfected.

And in Britain don't call for a hot dog at a sports event. You'll probably get a blank stare. The English are more likely to snack on a Cornish Pastie and a mug of hot tea, or steak and kidney pie, wrapped in pastry, and washed down with barley water or Robinson's squash.

Sporting events in Britain aren't usually a family affair. 'Tis a pity. They never will know the autumnal delights of a tailgate bash—all the color, excitement and glamour of a college football crowd.

If you're looking for something different and very delicious to serve at your next tailgate outing, here are two new ideas from The R.T. French Company Test Kitchens in Rochester, New York, that will pile up a lot of yardage.

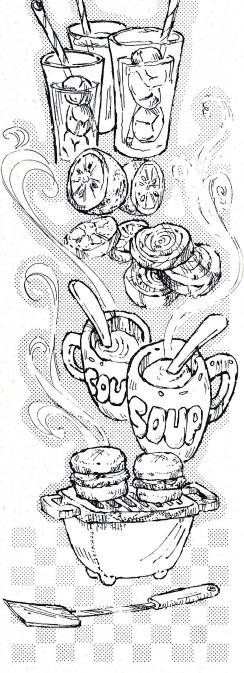

Hamburger Hoagies are spicy good and satisfy outdoor appetites while Lumberjack Soup provides a hot and hearty meal-in-a-bowl that can be made ahead of time at home.

To prepare the Hoagies, you'll need to bring along a small grill or hibachi, but your efforts will be richly rewarded with a juicy concoction easily seasoned with an envelope of chili seasoning mix and topped with tomatoes from your own garden and slices of American cheese. Crusty hero rolls will add a festive touch.

Another weekend serve Lumberjack Soup, which is aptly named. It combines ground beef, macaroni, tomatoes, and onion gravy mix in a thick nourishing soup that will sustain your tailgaters through all the action. Make it at home, place in a thermos, and serve piping hot at your pre-game ritual.

For an extra point with either recipe, serve Bean and Cabbage Slaw, a crisp combination of green beans and shredded cabbage. The zesty dressing is quickly made with prepared yellow mustard, oil and vinegar.

Complete your tailgate meal with fresh fruit and cookies and iced tea or coffee

HAMBURGER HOAGIES

- 2 pounds ground beef
- 1 envelope (1¾-oz.) chili mix
- ½ cup water
- 8 crusty rolls
- 8 slices American cheese
- 2 tomatoes, sliced
- 1 onion, sliced

Combine ground beef, contents of chili envelope, and water; shape 8 patties to fit rolls. Grill over hot coals. Serve on rolls topped with cheese, tomato, and onion.

8 servings.

LUMBERJACK SOUP

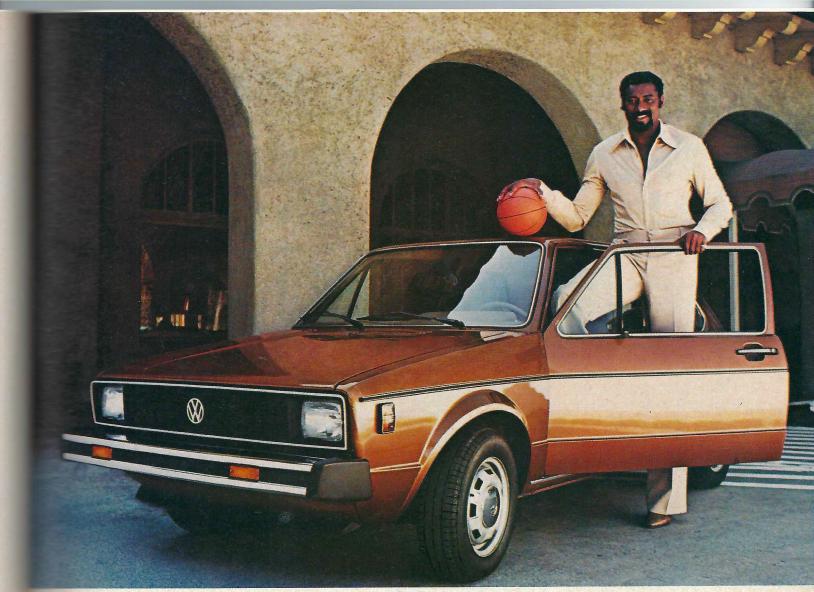

- 1 pound ground beef
- 2 envelopes (%-oz. each) onion gravy mix
- 1 can (16-oz.) tomatoes
- 3 cups water
- 3/4 cup uncooked elbow macaroni

Brown meat in soup kettle or large saucepan. Stir in onion gravy mix. Add tomatoes, water, and macaroni to meat mixture; stir well and bring to a boil. Cover and simmer 15 minutes or until macaroni is tender. Stir occasionally. 6 servings.

BEAN AND CABBAGE SLAW

- 1/4 cup oil
- 2 tablespoons prepared yellow mustard
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 4 cups shredded or chopped cabbage
- 1 to 2 cups cooked chilled green beans (or 16-oz. can, drained)

Briskly stir together oil, mustard, sugar, and vinegar. Combine cabbage and beans in salad bowl; add dressing and toss lightly. 8 servings.

GOOD FEWS If you've always thought a little car meant a lot of crowding, you've obviously never looked into a Volkswagen Rabbit.

There happens to be so much room in a Rabbit that all 7'2" of Wilt Chamberlain can fit comfortably into the driver's seat.

Because the Rabbit has even more headroom than a Rolls-Royce.

As well as more room for people and things than practically every other Including every Datsun. Every Toyota. Every Honda, Mazda, and Renault.

Not to mention every small Ford and Chevy.

And, of course, what's all the more impressive about the room you get in a Rabbit is that it comes surrounded by the Rabbit itself. The car that, according to Car and Driver Magazine, "... does more useful and rewarding things than any other small car in the world..."

So how can you go wrong?

With the Rabbit you not only get the comfort of driving the most copied car in America.

You also get the comfort of driving a very comfortable car.

Because it may look like a rabbit on the outside.

But it's a Rabbit on the inside.

funny thing happened to Keith Kennedy on the way to fall practice.

After three years of coming off be bench, two at Florida State and at West Virginia, Kennedy is now starting tailback. And although it have been chance that got him starting job, hard work and dedication certainly played a role.

Entering the 1979 season, Kennedy as listed in the pre-fall depth chart as Homes Johnson's backup. When Johnson decided to quit the team, Kennedy was thrust into the starting role.

"I didn't even know Homes had quit until I returned to school this summer," Kennedy said. "I knew this meant that I'd be getting more playing time, but I worried about Homes."

Only 5-10 and 180 pounds (which may be a little too much) Kennedy has to fight against players weighing 50-60 pounds more than him. A regular on the special teams, the Red Bay, Ala., senior returned three punts last year for 45 yards.

"Sometimes it bothers me," Kennedy smiled. "My body taking a pounding every game and all. This season I entered drills with the attitude that I'd coast along but the good Lord changed me. I worked real hard in the off-season and had a good spring. I think He helped me to motivate myself."

Kennedy's hard work did not slip by the watchful eye of the Seminole coaches. And while the coaches admit that there are those that are more talented, none work harder.

"He's got a lot of character," said Florida State backfield coach Nick Kish. "He knows the job expected and he gets it done."

While his stature may be small Kennedy makes up for what he lacks in physical size by using his head. "Sometimes I do things that even surprise me," Kennedy said. "I need to work at my technique and work at not making any mental mistakes. I know I need to make up for what I lack physically."

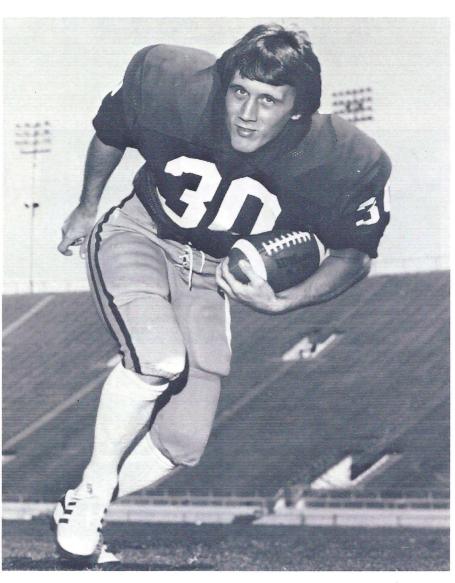

"You can describe Keith in one word...conscientious," added Kish. "He's always hung in there and stuck it out. Keith's an inspiration for anyone on what hard work can bring you. Anywhere else, or even here, he could be third or fourth string but he's intelligent and knows what's expected."

How Kennedy arrived at FSU is almost a story by itself. After being assured a scholarship at Mississippi State, Kennedy politely turned down Alabama and Ole Miss and waited for signing day. When the day neared he found out he didn't have the scholarship.

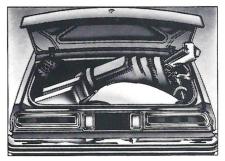

"I didn't know that to do," Kennedy recalled. I had already said no to Ole Miss and Alabama and was caught in the middle."

A friend of Kennedy's recommended Bobby Bowden and West Virginia and a short time later he was in a Mountaineer uniform. At the end of his freshman season Kennedy received a call from Bowden telling him he was moving to Florida State, further complicating his problem.

Six simple ways to get better mileage.

1. REMOVE EXCESS WEIGHT.

Your trunk is an expensive storeroom. Because a loaded trunk will hurt your mileage. In fact, for every 100 pounds removed, the average person can improve mileage enough to drive an extra 200 miles a year.

2. CHECK YOUR TIRES.

Air can save you gas, because too little air in your tires usually means less mileage. Check your owner's manual or tire dealer for the maximum recommended pressure. And always check pressures when your tires are cold. Early morning is best.

If you're buying tires, consider radials. They can be worth an extra mile per gallon.

3. USE A MULTIGRADE OIL.

A 10W/30 or 10W/40 oil causes less drag inside your engine than a regular 30 or 40 weight. This can mean better mileage. So if you're using a single grade oil now, consider switching next time you get an oil change.

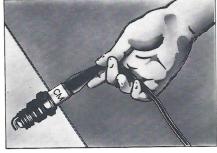

4. CHECK YOUR AIR CLEANER.

A dirty air cleaner hurts mileage, because it prevents your engine from breathing properly. Remember that in dusty or polluted areas, air cleaners should be checked more frequently, and replaced when they're dirty.

5. KEEP YOUR WHEELS IN LINE.

When a wheel is out of line, it hurts both your tires and your mileage. So take a look at your tires. If there is more wear on one side, you should have your alignment checked.

6. CHECK SPARK PLUGS.

Worn or fouled plugs cause hard starting, loss of power, and poor mileage. Plugs should have no rounded electrodes, and the inside should be a light brown to tan color.

Also, check the plug wires. Worn or cracked plug wires can short out and cause missing and fouled plugs.

There's pressure in college footto do well and win which doesn't time to cruise or coast," Kendy added. "I think being No. 1 has the me work harder and in turn the people behind me work there. If they know I'm fighting to the starting position they're just to try that much harder to take away from me."

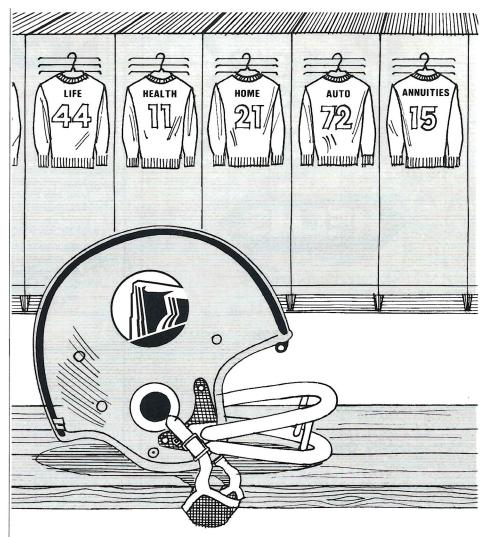

While personal satisfaction remains important, Kennedy puts team shall ahead of personal aspirations.

I want to do well for the team st, then the coaches and finally self," Kennedy added. "I'd really to show the coaches what I can against Southern Mississippi."

An avid golfer, Kennedy began playing this summer with a two hancap and participated in a Seminole Booster tournament in Cairo. Golf, the football, offers Kennedy another cutlet to challenge himself while haven some fun.

"I like doing things that provide positive feedback," Kennedy said, sounding like a scholar. "Golf is just mother release."

Following the 1979 season and a December graduation, Kennedy will return home to his family and take a managerial job with a food processing firm. If Kennedy puts in the effort he has put in the last four years of college football, the company should be in mighty fine shape.

Bowden Ranks 9th

Florida State coach Bobby Bowden again finds his name in select company in the nation's "Top 20 Coaches" this fall.

There among names like Joe Paterno, Bo Schembechler and Bear Bryant is the Seminoles' fourth year coach who currently ranks ninth in winningest percentages among active coaches.

Bowden's 13 year record, which includes coaching stints at Samford, West Virginia and Florida State, is 96-43, or a .691 winning percentage. He needs but four more wins to reach that magic 100 victory plateau.

Bowden had a 31-6 record at Samford, a 42-26 mark at West Virginia and presently owns a 23-11 record at FSU.

Several coaches the Seminoles will be facing this fall are also the elite Top 20. Next week's opponent, Frank Kush of Arizona State, ranks fourth, LSU's Charlie McClendon is eighth, South Carolina's Jim Carlen is 16th and Virginia Tech's Bill Dooley is 20th.

The complete list of Top 20 Coaches, compiled by Scoop Huggins of the SEC office, is:

1) Paterno, Penn State (.829); 2)

Schembechler, Michigan (.799); 3) Bryant, Alabama (.755); 4) Kush, Arizona State (.768); 5) Dan Devine, Notre Dame (.744); 6) Tony Knapp, Nevada-Las Vegas (.739); 7) Carmen Cozza, Yale (.718); 8) McClendon, LSU (.699); 9) Bowden, Florida State (.691); 10) Vince Dooley, Georgia (.680).

11) Jerry Claiborne, Maryland (.654); 12) Bill Yeoman, Houston (.636); 13) Wayne Hardin, Temple (.636); 14) Joe Yukica, Dartmouth (.623); 15) Bob Blackman, Cornell (.622); 16) Carlen, South Carolina (.607); 17) Sarkis Arslanian, Colorado State (.601); 18) Darryl Rogers, Michigan State (.588); 19) Bud Elliott, Texas-Arlington (.572); 20) Bill Dooley, Virginia Tech (.552).

Seminoles Ranked, Too

And speaking of polls, the 1979 edition of the Florida State Seminoles have found their way onto the preseason polls of the two major wire services.

United Press International, in a vote of its board of coaches, has FSU ranked 15th while the Associated Press shows the Seminoles in the 19th position.

In the AP poll, Florida State is behind (in order) Southern Cal, Alabama, Oklahoma, Texas, Penn State, Purdue, Michigan, Nebraska, Notre Dame, Michigan State, Georgia, Missouri, Stanford, Texas A&M, Washington, Houston, Pittsburgh, and Arizona State. Arkansas is ranked 20th.

The UPI poll shows the Seminoles behind Southern Cal, Oklahoma, Alabama, Texas, Penn State, Michigan, Nebraska, Purdue, Notre Dame, Michigan State, Houston, Missouri, Washington and Georgia. Pittsburgh, Arkansas, Ohio State, UCLA and Texas A&M round out the Top 20.

Florida State-Arizona State

One of the college football season's classic early season matchups will feature Florida State facing Arizona State next Saturday night in Tampa.

The contest will pit two of the nation's highest powered offenses in what promises to be a high scoring contest. Both coaches—FSU's Bobby Bowden and ASU's Frank Kush—rank among the Top 10 active coaches and both teams rank in the Associated Press' Top 20 poll.

Tickets to the game still remain on sale in Tallahassee and Tampa. The tickets are priced at $10, $8 and $5. Kickoff is slated for 7 p.m. in Tampa Stadium.

THE FIRST CHEVY OF THE '8Os. CITATION. OUR MOST SUCCESSFUL NEW CAR EVER.

Ever since its introduction, people have been flooding Chevy showrooms across the country to see the 1980 Chevy Citation. And according to Retail Delivery Reports, 33,765 units were sold in its first three weeks, more than any new entry Chevrolet has ever introduced.

MID-SIZE ROOM FOR 5.

Citation's engine is mounted sideways, so the passenger compartment can be bigger. In fact, in EPA interior dimensions, Citation is classified as a mid-size car. With the back seat folded down there's room enough for two adults in front and 30 bags of groceries in back.

0 TO 50 IN 9 SECONDS FLAT WITH THE AVAILABLE V6.

In engineering tests, Citation goes from 0 to 50 in 9 seconds flat. That's with available 2.8 Liter V6 engine and automatic transmission. California figures not available. (Citation is equipped with GM-built engines produced by various divisions. See your dealer for details.)

EASY ON GAS. 24 EPA ESTIMATED MPG. 38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE.

That's with Citation's standard 2.5 Liter 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission. (Manual transmission currently not available in California. Calif. estimates lower.)

Citation's standard 4-speed transmission is made to conserve gas. It's an overdrive. And at cruising speeds the 4th gear lets the engine run slower than with a conventional transmission, helping to get impressive fuel economy.

IMPRESSIVE LONG-RANGE CRUISING ESTIMATES, TOO.

And Citation's long-range cruising estimates are just as impressive. 336 miles based on EPA estimated MPG (city) mileage figures, and 532 miles based on estimated highway MPG. Range figures obtained by multiplying Citation's 14-gallon fuel tank capacity rating by the EPA mileage estimates.

ŘEMEMBER: Compare the circled estimated MPG to the estimated MPG of other cars. You may get different mileage and range depending on your speed, trip length and weather. Your actual city mileage and range will be less in heavy city traffic. Your actual mileage will probably be less than the highway estimate.

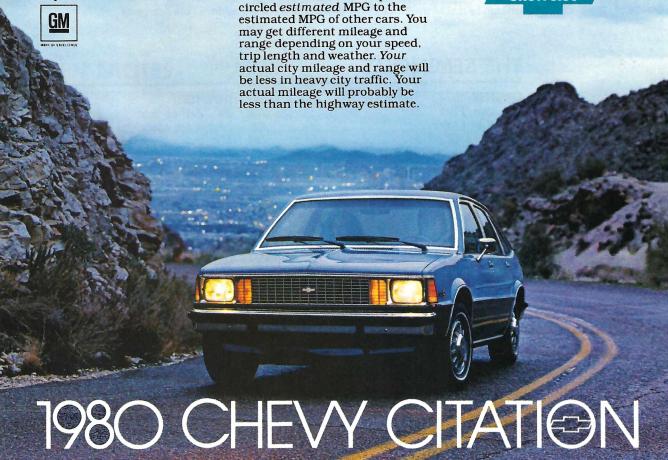

YOU'VE GOT TO DRIVE IT TO BELIEVE IT.

When you drive Citation you'll see what all the excitement is about. The way it feels. The way it maneuvers. The way it rides. And Citation's front wheel drive puts approximately 65% of its weight over the "driving wheels" to give you impressive traction on wet or snowy roads.

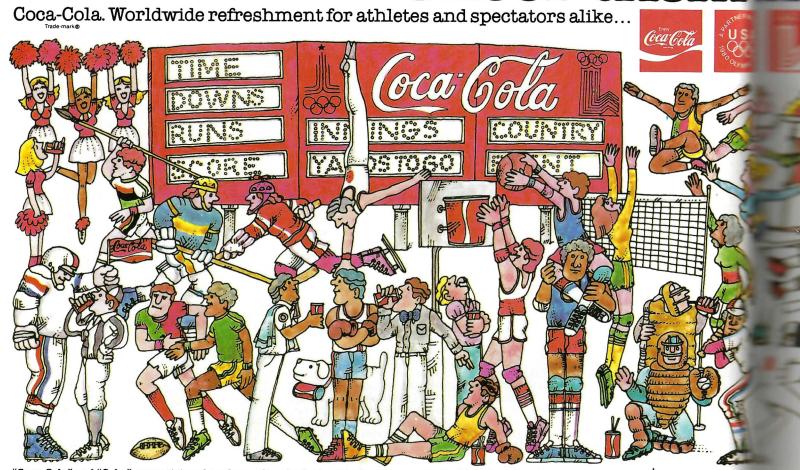

IT'S A WHOLE NEW KIND OF COMPACT CAR.

There's still a lot about Citation that we haven't mentioned. Like slip stream design to cut down on wind resistance and wind noise. The hidden cargo area in all hatchback models, so what's inside is protected from view. A dual diagonal braking system. And much, much more. That's why we encourage you to see your Chevy dealer and test drive the 1980 Chevy Citation today. This could be the car you've had in mind.

New openings from Honda.

At Honda we have never believed in making lots of different types of cars. But 1979 is a different kind of year for Honda. We've introduced two new cars. The Accord 4-Door Sedan and the Honda Prelude. You might say we've opened things up a bit. Literally.

Our new Prelude boasts a power-operated, tinted glass moonroof as standard equipment. The moonroof comes with a manual sunshade, like the window shade on a jetliner.

Not only does our new Accord sedan have four doors, it has a nice, big trunk as well. It also has a lever that allows you to release the lid from the driver's seat.

So if you're thinking about buying a new car, take a close look at our new Hondas. And open the door to simplicity.

We make it simple.

What Do You Want From College?

A Sense Of Purpose? Add It To Your Schedule.

Thousands of Army ROTC graduates, from hundreds of college campuses, have become leaders in our country's volunteer Army.

Some enrolled in ROTC for financial aid to complete college (nearly $2500 during their junior and senior years). Others for the management training and experience offered by Army ROTC courses. Still others for the positions of immediate leadership responsibility following graduation, as officers in the active Army, Reserves, and Army National Guard.

But most enrolled also to serve their country. Men and women from the north, the east, the south, the west... from small rural communities and large urban areas.

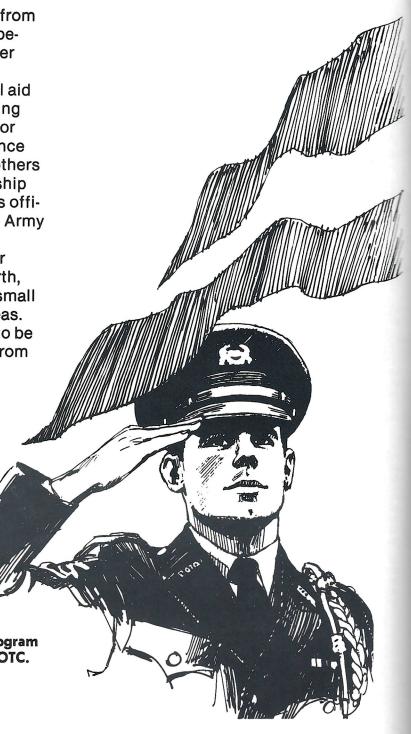

They've shown that you don't have to be from Tennessee to be a volunteer, or from Texas to stand tall for your country.

College football preserves delights of life

College football has been described as "the element of American life most characteristic of our nationality." Every season reinforces the validity of this distinction.

The game appeals to our emotions like few, if any, other forms of athletic competition. Spectators at college games, setting new overall attendance records every year, revel in exercising the deep-rooted passions of joy, courage, sympathy, sorrow, rivalry, risk, sense of fairness and loyalty.

College football crowds aren't there just to admire the skill of a passer or the cleverness of a runner or the accuracy of a place kicker or punter. They are there wanting to see their team win. Thrilling touchdown plays are fine, like getting the end piece of the cake with the thick icing. But the overwhelming majority of college game-goers would rather see their team win, even if it's 2-0 in a dogged defensive struggle, than to have witnessed a dozen exciting scoring plays during a game which their team loses.

Can you think of a more hollow attraction than an exhibition contest between two college football squads?

The feel of the crowd is a standard fixture at college games. From September through November there are just 11 such occasions, full of color and flavor, for the release of our competitive impulses. And so often in college football, the anticipation is exceeded by the realization.

Most of the college players on the field are whamming and slamming for the sheer joy of proving themselves to themselves. Ernest Thompson Seton once said: "Manhood is the first law of education." Of course football is just one of many opportunities available in the quest for manhood; but the competitive flame in the clash of spirited, cohesive forces is the rouser that attracts throngs to America's college stadiums.

Imperfection itself, among young athletes of 18 to 22, is part of college football's crowd appeal. Nothing in sports can be duller than perfection. The human experience of errors in action provides one of the world's liveliest shows. Somehow, the happiness reaped by players in the arena who withstand and overcome these mistakes often spills over into the crowd.

Many spectators are embraced by the camaraderie of college football. It can be felt by anybody. It was responsible for the following bit of nonsense:

A jovial fellow sitting 'way up in Row 65 got to his feet time and again and yelled, "Hey! Gus! Look here, Gus!" Whereupon down in Row 20 a man would rise, look up and wave. This friendly exchange went on interminably, until finally the man down in Row 20 shouted back to the greeter in Row 65 and advised him to stay in his seat and watch the game. "And besides," he finished, "my name's not Gus."

In the college football atmosphere are preserved some of the delights that go with life. "We have plenty of grim things facing us," said Harlan Hatcher, University of Michigan president emeritus. "We need the relief we find in sports. It's not only necessary to survive, but to live with some positive sense of joy and fulfillment."

My own belief is that happiness is found most readily in sport, and more predictably—by plan—than in almost anything one does. I once heard a very learned person say: "Man's greatest moment of happiness is to be tested beyond what he thought might be his breaking point, and not fail."

Effort in football, and in most all competitive sports, is a matter of character, rather than reward. It is an end in itself and not a means to an end. That's why, in defeat, one can rest on his character and keep a stout heart.

I make the claim that sport offers the highest-grade happiness to man and woman on the most convenient terms available anywhere. The field of sport is a place where people can succeed—beyond their success anywhere else—in behaving themselves while having fun. And where else do we always give everybody an even start?

Sport is quick to outlaw any piece of unfairness that can be covered or controlled by a rule. But there is more than mere observance of the letter of the law. There is sportsmanship; that is, obedience to the unenforceable.

The late Bob Zuppke, head coach at the University of Illinois for 29 years, once said: "The difference between champions and near-champions is the ability to play for something outside of self; in one word, teamwork." That includes curbing any individual action that would bring team penalty.

A sprightly, colorful character, Zuppke left a trail of philosophical utterances, including: "There is art in football. No man can be a truly fine athlete unless he has music in his soul. Without rhythm there is no art, no spontaneity. A good team is art. It is as graceful as a group of dancers. A few people think football is a brutal game. But brutes can't play it."

Two of Zuppke's best-remembered lines are: "Men do their best when they know they are being observed." And: "Never let hope elude you. That's life's biggest fumble."

The American Eagle Radial. Why it belongs on America's finest cars.

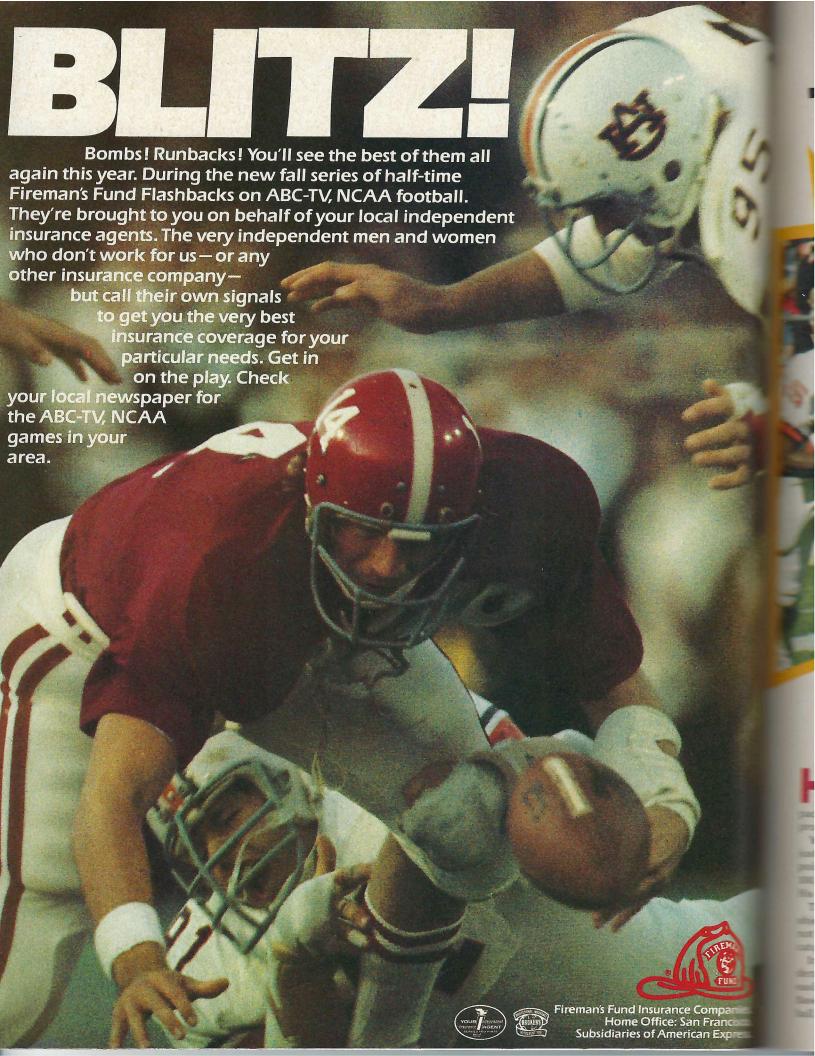

The Goodyear American Eagle Radial tire is as revolutionary today as our first rayon cord tire was in 1938 and our Polyglas in 1967 and the Polysteel Radial when introduced in 1974.

What makes the American Eagle Radial the tire for today is belts of Flexten cord. It is made from a flexible, man-made aramid fiber that is, pound for pound, stronger than steel. Flexten cord—a step ahead of steel—makes the American Eagle Radial tough and strong. Yet, the American Eagle is gratifyingly smooth riding, too.

Comfort, control and confidence are the qualities of the American Eagle Radial... the unique luxury tire designed by Goodyear for the American driver and the American road. We invite you to inspect and to enjoy American ingenuity... from Goodyear.

e is garbed elegantly and expensively: helmet with a protective face mask, shoulder pads, thigh pads, cleated shoes, jersey and pants. A proud warrior.

Yet, at his moment of truth, he might just as well be naked. He is the focal point of everybody's senses. As many as 100,000 sets of eyes are watching him. His every move; his every twitch.

The focal point of his attention is an object hurtling from the sky that really is not meant to be caught. But his job is to catch it. And run with it. A long way.

In any other sport, the word "ball" denotes something round, something easily handled by the human hand. Baseball. Basketball. Racquetball. Golf ball. Roll them along a flat surface and

And hurtling along the ground at him are eleven people bent on flattening him. Separating him from the object of his attention—if not his arms or legs from the rest of his body.

There has always been the impression that you find a great runner, put him back there under a kickoff or a punt, and you instantly have a great return man," said a former Midwestern football coach. "Well, I've put great runners back there, and after a couple of tries they say, 'Hey, Coach, why don't you put Jones back there to catch it first, and then he can toss it to me and I'll run with it after that.'

The Return Man. The football player who can bring a stadium crowd to its feet with his exploits; the football player who can bring a stadium crowd down on his neck with his foibles.

"It's the loneliest place there is on a football field," said the former coach. "In many ways, the return man is like a goalie in hockey. If he makes a mistake, cessful, their success can be one of the most devastating things that can happen to the other team in the course of a game."

Coaches start sounding like sorcerers when they try to describe what this rare breed of football player has to be able to do to be successful.

"The big thing is that he has to be able to catch the football," said another successful coach. "He's not worth much if he can't catch the football.

"He has to have hands that would allow him to catch an egg if he had to. He can't fumble the ball, he really can't ever let the ball hit the ground.

"He has to have total concentration. He has to be oblivious to everything that's going on around him. And he has to want to do it.

Besides all that, he needs a sixth sense-a radar that let's him know when he should catch the ball and run with it, and when he should signal for a continued fair catch and not try to run. And while all that's happening, he has to be able to see out of the corner of his eye just where everybody is on the field.

"A lot of people are scared to death trying to do it.

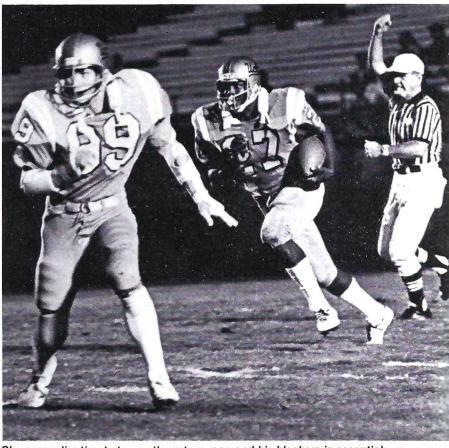

"Returns, whether they're kickoff or punt returns, have become more and more sophisticated every year," the coach continued. "Over the years, although it's not really anything new, coaches have realized that the kicking game has become one-fourth to one-third of a game.

"Look at any close game, and you'll usually be able to find that it was decided in some phase of the kicking game. Last year, for instance, we had three games that were decided or turned in our favor because of a punt or kickoff return."

Coaches now want a punt launched in less than two seconds (preferably much less). And they want the punt to "hang" for more than 4½ seconds (preferably five or more seconds). They have designed punt formations (putting the kicker 15 yards behind the line of scrimmage) that make it difficult to block punts. And they have created special teams that employ players who can cover the hoped-for 40 or more yards of a punt in less than five seconds to tackle the return man before he has a chance to shake and bake.

On the other end of the kick or punt, coaches have also devised strategies.

"We have a 'short man,' a guy a few yards ahead of the return man, who yells out a code word to let the return man know what's happening while the return man concentrates on the football," said a Northern coach.

Close coordination between the return man and his blockers is essential.

"Maybe the short man will call out 'Red' which means just catch the ball but don't try for a return. Or 'Green which means the return is on. And the return man already knows that he will be returning the ball left, right or up in the middle."

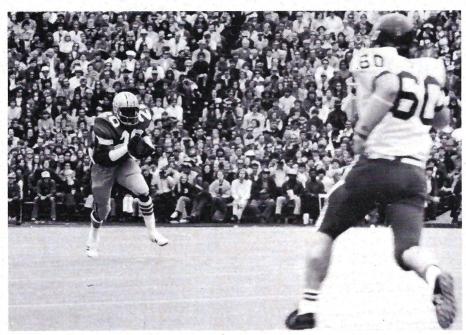

While the return man and the short man are getting their signals straight nine other teammates are peeling back to get into position to form a wall of blockers. "The Picket Line."

"It takes a lot of people to make the thing work," he continued. "It doesn't just happen by accident."

"You can have all sorts of rules," said a former mentor. "Try for the return your heels are on your 10-yard line, but just make the catch if your heels are on the 8-yard line. Things like that.

"But what it really takes is a rare breed. Everybody wants to play centerfield like Willie Mays, but not everybody plays centerfield like Willie Mays

FIGHT SONG

© Music by Thomas Wright Words by Doug Alley

You've got to fight, fight, fight for FSU.

You've got to scalp 'em Seminoles.

You've got to win, win, win, win this game and roll on down to make those goals.

For FSU is on the warpath now and at the battle's end, she's great

So fight, fight, fight to victory, our Seminoles from Florida State.

Florida State!

(Repeat song)

FLORIDA STATE VICTORY SONG

We are on the warpath tonight.

Onward, Florida State.

Show all the world the spirit and might that the Seminoles create.

Stand up for the Garnet and Gold.

Ever loyal we shall be.

We are proud to shout,

"The Warriors are out." And they will lead us to victory.

HYMN TO THE GARNET AND GOLD

Here's a hymn to the garnet and gold, ringing to the sky.

Here's a song for our men and women bold, sing with heads held high.

Striving ere to seek to know, fight for victory.

Booster chairman Bob Camp.

all Seminole Boosters share the enthusiastic desire for a winning athletic program at Florida State University. In order to sustain a successful program we must meet the financial challenges of athletic excellence. The goal of the Boosters in 1979 is to raise $1,000,000 in support of the total athletic program.

Results of this year's campaign to date show Booster contributions up almost 25% over 1978. Contributions currently add up to 20% of the total athletic budget.

While most visible and usually associated with the football season, the Boosters actually support the entire athletic program of football, basketball, baseball, track, cross country, swimming, tennis, golf and women's athletics.

"While our ultimate goal is raising funds for student athlete scholarships," says Andy Miller, executive director of the Seminole Boosters, "we are interested in working with anyone who is striving to improve the status of intercollegiate athletics at Florida State University." Bob Camp, a Tallahassee businessman, is serving as chairman of the Seminole Boosters this year. Other officers are vice chairman Hurley Booth, treasurer Jimmy Carter and secretary Dr. Gene Davidson.

"We have developed programs that can involve all the friends of Florida State, no matter what their level of contribution, and we urge those who wish to become involved to contact our office."

The Boosters (through the Tribe of 100) has sponsored the Garnet and Gold spring football game, the Hubert Green celebrity golf tournament, the annual ticket drives and various other projects.

However, Booster activities are not limited to the Tallahassee area. There are active Booster groups around the state and in Georgia. These groups arrange charter bus trips to games, assist coaches in recruiting, and, most importantly aid in raising funds in their area.

The fund raising effort centers around the Area Chairmen, who are volunteer organizers and leaders throughout designated areas of the state. The climax of the spring fund drive is a statewide series of golf tournaments and dinners featuring Bobby Bowden and other key members of the athletic program.

Contributors receive many benefits throughout the year. Boosters receive a membership card, preferred seating, Booster car tag, Seminole Sportsnews newsletter, tax deduction, reserve parking, and more.

Above all, the major benefit is the satisfaction of seeing FSU's student athletes and athletic program succeed.

To become a member of the Seminole Boosters in 1979, just contact the Booster office at P.O. Box 1353, Tallahassee, Fla. 32302 or call 904/644-3484. Annual Seminole Booster gifts range from the $10 introductory minimum, to over $5,000. We hope that you will join in making 1979 our best year ever in support of Florida State athletics.

WHY MORE AND MORE PEOPLE ARE ASKING FOR A CHAIN SAW THEY CAN'T EVEN PRONOUNCE.

Poolen. Pullen. Polann.

With a name like Poulan, getting people to say the name right may be asking a lot.

On the other hand, people ask an awful lot of our saws. Quick starting. Extra cutting power. Quiet operation. Beautiful styling. Durability. Affordability.

And we deliver all that plus a lot of other standard features, no matter which Poulan saw they buy. From the Poulan Micro XXV right on up to our pro models.

At Poulan, we figure the more we put into our saws, the less people have to put into cutting.

PLAYERS IN THE COUNTRY

by John Mooney, Salt Lake City TRIBUNE

he late Alvin Nugent (Bo) McMillin would be proud of the defensive stalwarts returning to the 1979 college football wars. When he took over the reins at Indiana U. "Bo" described the material he wanted—"the kind who hunt bears with a switch." And he invited the alumni to "Ship, haul or drive those babies to Bloomington. What we need is plenty of those big, rough, tough rawhide pilgrim boys who kinda growl when they walk."

The All-America defensive stalwarts of today are much more vocal than McMillin's recruits who "growled" but the former coach would have drooled at the prospect of coaching the players nominated for post-season honors.

Of the 170 defensive players being pushed for honors by their schools, some who won't even receive honorable mention on the All-America teams, or first team recognition in their conferences, would have been deemed the answer to McMillin's prayers a few decades ago.

Consider that the average "All" team includes three linebackers and 46 have credentials worthy of note in any list of top players.

By the alphabet, you can run the gamut of Arthur Akers of UCLA to Gregory Wright of Delaware State.

So, with no attempt to rate them, here are those most likely to be called when the roll is compiled at the end of the season:

JAY BERWANGER The First Heisman Trophy Winner

by Nick Peters, Richmond INDEPENDENT GAZETTE

oday's Heisman Trophy winners are assured of multi-year, six-figure contracts, off-field endorsements and a chance for instant professional success.

It wasn't always that way.

During the Great Depression, University of Chicago's one-man gang, Jay

Berwanger, was considered the finest football player of his era, a distinction which made history in 1935 when he was selected as the first winner of the Heisman Trophy and also became the first athlete ever drafted by the NFL.

Berwanger, who in modern parlance "could do it all," had the audacity to ask George Halas for a two-year contract at $12,500 per. Though he was a hometown hero and a natural for the Bears, that allegedly excessive demand terminated contract talk.

Jay Berwanger, now a 65-year-old millionaire businessman in the Chicago area, thereby never played a down of professional football. Despite the lack of additional exposure, it is to his credit that his name ranks with Thorpe, Nagurski, Nevers and Grange as symbols of early gridiron greatness.

After he had played his final game for Coach Clark Shaughnessy's Maroons in 1935, Spalding's Football Guide stated that the U. of Chicago suffered "an irreparable loss." It was a prophetic observation, for in 1939 the school dropped major college football.

Berwanger was born March 19, 1914, the son of a Dubuque blacksmith. The Iowa country boy was rangy and athletic at an early age, blossoming into a prep sensation at Dubuque High.

College recruiters flocked to see the six-foot, 195-pound schoolboy sensation, who was an all-around athlete in more ways than one. He was president of the senior class and ranked among the top 10 percent academically, the type of stuff of which legends are made.

Scholarship offers came from such prestigious institutions as Yale, Harvard, Michigan, Minnesota and Iowa. But just as he was his own man while dealing with Halas, Berwanger showed his independence at a much earlier age by opting for a school which didn't even bother to recruit him.

The U. of Chicago had a high academic rating and was much more concerned about degrees than touchdowns. The bright student-athlete had similar priorities, so he made the trip to Chicago and sold school authorities on his scholastic prowess.

"I had heard about the new educational concepts of Robert Hutchins (Chicago president) and I thought they would be good for me," explained Berwanger. The incomparable Amos Alonzo Stagg was Chicago's coach when Jay enrolled in 1932, but the Maroons had no idea they were blessed with a football superstar until his varsity career began under Shaughnessy in 1933.

The triple-threat sophomore halfback was an instant success, earning MVP honors for a 3-3-2 squad as an outstanding 60-minute player. Jay first flashed his brilliance with a 27-yard touchdown pass against Washington of St. Louis in his second college game. He capped the season with a 65-yard touchdown gallop in a 39-0 pounding of Dartmouth.

Though the cast around him didn't improve, Berwanger was even better as a junior, leading the Maroons to a 4-4 record, topping the Big Ten in scoring and earning All-America honors.

His rise to prominence also was assisted by a specially-designed protective device to shield a broken nose suffered in his final freshman game. Berwanger became known as The Man in the Iron Mask—and his gridiron exploits made the nickname more famous than Dumas' literary figure.

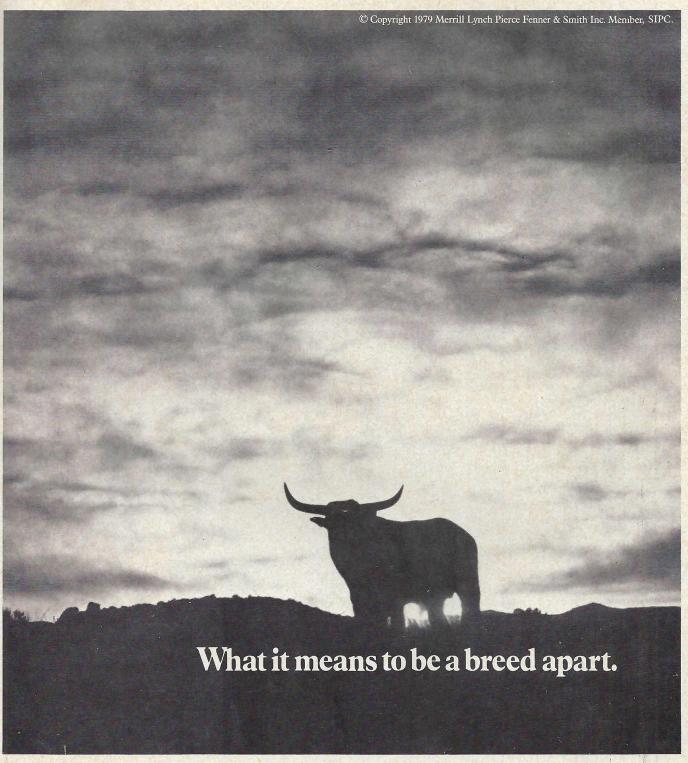

In the 1934 opener, Jay ran 25 yards for a TD and passed 26 yards to John Baker for another as Carroll crumbled, 19-0. His 57-yard scoring run was the big play in a 27-0 romp over Michigan and he returned a kick-off 97 yards for a TD in a 21-0 blanking of Indiana.

Berwanger's 30-yard TD pass to Tom Flinn powered a 19-6 victory over Missouri and Chicago was 4-0. But then bigger and better foes began wearing down the tissue-thin Maroons and losses to Purdue, Ohio State, Minnesota and arch-rival Illinois left Chicago 4-4.

But Jay's luster didn't diminish. He became Chicago's first All-American in 10 years. His ball-carrying and passing skills were obvious, but the rest of his Imagination, instinct, and versatility (not size alone) set Merrill Lynch apart from the rest of the herd.

Too many people see only the size of Merrill Lynch; they miss the subtler qualities that truly make us a breed apart. For example:

Imagination. An oil exploration company needed $75 million, but traditional ways of raising it would have overly diluted earnings or impaired financial flexibility. Our solution: a public offering of convertible preferred stock.

Instinct. A corporate client wanted to buy back 200,000 shares of its own stock. Getting the best price was a question of market timing...of knowing when to walk out of the market and let the price sink, when to buy aggressively.

That's instinct. And it helped us buy all 200,000 shares within ½ point of the starting price.

Versatility. We can also help you reach your personal financial goals, despite changing markets and tough tax laws. As your assets grow and your needs change, your Account Executive can keep pace with equities, commodities, bonds, annuities, and tax investments.

How can Merrill Lynch's unmatched resources benefit you? Ask us. Find out what it means to deal with a breed apart.

player of the year in Big Eight ... AP All-American despite missing games late in season with injury ... Made team high of 130 tackles.

Michigan knows the team with the best defense will represent the Big Ten in the Rose Bowl, and the Wolverines are high on Ron Simpkins, who made All-Big Ten as a junior, and who led Michigan in tackles with 174 ... Twice named wire service Player of Week on defense which was second nationally in defense against the score and eighth in rushing defense.

Mozell (The Axe) Axson is rated among the all-time linebackers at the University of Miami, and in his soph season in 1978, led all Miami tacklers, with 126 stops.

Although an even six feet in height and 225 on the scales, The Axe bench presses over 300 pounds. His top show last year was 17 tackles in the upset of Auburn.

Called by a former coach "The best looking physical prospect I ever saw," Mike Massey of Arkansas finally is emerging from the shadows of two former three-year lettermen, after recovering three fumbles and making 57 tackles as a swing man last year.

David Hodge of Houston led the SWC champs in tackles and was named outstanding defensive player in Cotton Bowl ... Named AP Lineman of the Week and was named to AP and UPI All-SWC teams after making an All-America first team as a soph ... His fourth year as starter.

George Cumby of Oklahoma also claims recognition as the Big Eight Player of the Year after being voted Newcomer of the Year in 1977, when he was voted AP All-American and All-Big Eight ... Last year credited with 114 tackles and intercepted five passes for 82 yards, including a 40-yarder for a touchdown against Kansas State.

Stanford offers a tandem in junior Milt McColl and soph Craig Zellmer. McColl follows his father, Bill, and brother, Duncan, in the All-America parade at Stanford while Zellmer made 19 tackles against USC as a sub for Gordy Ceresino, the school's all-time tackle leader.

Dennis Johnson, USC's inside line-backer, led Trojans in tackling last two seasons. He had 124 tackles, a pass interception and seven pass deflections while making the All-Pac-10 first team.

The Western Athletic Conference offers three good linebackers in Danny Frazier and Glen Redd of Brigham Young and Mike Forrest of New Mexico. Frazier is a 6-5, 221-pound soph and Redd a quick junior.

Forrest is rated one of the best returning players in the WAC, with 162 tackles, including 46 unassisted stops ... Started as a prep quarterback, played tight end as a frosh and moved to linebacker as a soph.

Scott Carter of San Diego State was a good one when he was healthy ... Finished with 71 unassisted and 68 assists although he missed half the Aztec games.

Notre Dame will argue for the cause of Bob Crable and Bobby Leopold as two of the best in the country, while UCLA counters with its Dynamic Duo of Billy Don Jackson and Arthur Akers.

Jackson played defensive tackle the first two years but moved to inside linebacker in the spring to replace All-America Jerry Robinson ... As down lineman last year made 65 tackles and was named to All-Coast second team ... Also voted first team Soph All-America honors ... Against Cal, intercepted pass and scored on 16-yard run.

Akers started only three games, but had 11 tackles against Kansas and 10 against Stanford ... Extremely physical player.

Buddy Curry was North Carolina's leading tackler the last two seasons ... Injured last year which slowed him a bit, he was outstanding defensive performer in 1977 Liberty Bowl with 18 tackles ... On very first play of his collegiate career he intercepted pass against Northwestern and has seven career interceptions.

Dan Bass of Michigan State is one of top players in Big Ten. He was ninth in conference in tackles and picked on second team in all-conference ... Returned interception 99 yards against Wisconsin.

Among the top players in the East are Lance Mehl of Penn State, a 6-4, 220-pound senior who led the 1978 team with 96 tackles; Gregg Milo, rover from Navy; Gregory Wright of Delaware State; Mike Brewington, Eastern Carolina; Jim Collins, Syracuse veteran; and Ben Bottone of Rhode Island. Brewington is one of the reasons East Carolina has been among the leaders in total and rushing defense.

In the South-Southeast, there's Otis Wilson, a transfer from Syracuse to Louisville, who is called by a former coach "the best linebacker in the nation." ... Led team with 157 tackles, including 93 solo, also had six interceptions.

Auburn offers Freddie Smith and Georgia Tech boasts Henry Johnson (99 tackles) and Al Richardson (68 tackles and five fumble recoveries).

Johnie Cooks of Mississippi State played as a freshman a year ago and led team in 73 solo tackles and 42 assists plus 12 sacks for minus 42 yards.

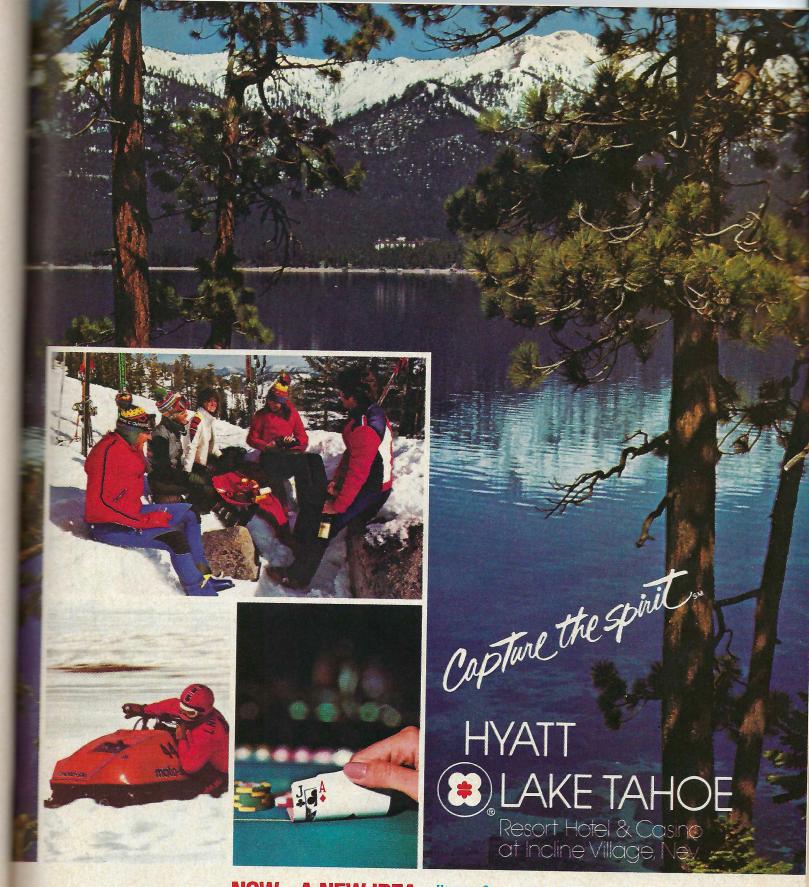

Scot Brantley of Florida is a three-year starter who was SEC Rookie of Year as a frosh and All-SEC the last two years.

Averaged 14.5 tackles a game for three years.

and Cliff Odom of Texas-Arlington, Jim Bayuk of TCU, Harold Thompson of Northeast Louisiana, Mike Singletary of Baylor, Ed Judie of Northern Arizona, Brad Vassar of Pacific, Kent Clausen of Montana and Byron Hunt of SMU have their boosters.

Singletary, for example, earned defensive player of the year in the SWC after being Newcomer Player of the Year on defense the year previously ... Holds school record for tackles at 232.

The defensive ends aren't as numerous, naturally, but they lack nothing in quality. Texas A & M sees its senior star, Jacob Green, as a worthy honors candidate. His 116 tackles included 160 yards lost.

U.S. Naval Academy points to Charlie (Thunder) Thornton as Navy's "big play man" who had 88 tackles, including 11 for losses of 76 yards ... Outstanding defensive player in Army-Navy game.

Penn State offers Larry Kobin, who led the 1978 Lions in quarterback sacks.

Alabama's Wayne Hamilton was injured last year and did not match his soph performance all the time. As soph, he intercepted a pass and spoiled a two-point conversion as 'Bama edged USC ... Injured in first play against USC last year ... Was in on 43 tackles, four for losses of 39 yards ... Was named to Sporting News All-America soph team.

Purdue is high on Keena Turner, one of the quickest ends in college football, who was named unanimous All-Big Ten last year ... Registered 25 behind-theline tackles last year for minus 201 yards, and averaged at least one tacklefor-loss in each 1978 game.

Notre Dame expects Jay Case to carry on its tradition of producing strong candidates for honors at the defensive end slot.

after gaining All-America honors two years. His coach says, "What can I say about Hugh Green except that he's a great, great football player? Everyone knows that."

In two previous years, Green has 21 sacks for 133 yards, 120 tackles and 63 assists ... Broke into college ball two years ago against defending champion Notre Dame and Hugh made 11 tackles, including two quarterback sacks and an extra point block.

Terry Dion teams with Neil Elshire at Oregon for what coaches agree should rank with the best pairs around. Dion led team in tackles for loss (15) and fumbles caused (5) while Elshire turned in 75 total tackles and 11 tackles for loss.

Dave Otto returns as a starter at Harvard after a good sophomore year when he turned in 26 tackles. West Virginia is pushing Delbert Fowler, who led the Mountaineers the last two years in tackles for loss with a total of 17, and quarterback sacks, four each season.

Don Blackmon earned second team All-America honors last year for Tulsa, with 97 tackles, 14 for losses totaling 134 yards, plus three interceptions and four deflections. Two of the interceptions came against then-second ranked Arkansas.

Lawrence Cole figures to give Nebraska a solid shot at an honors defensive player. He had 61 total tackles, including four sacks ... One of strongest athletes, "L.C." is a devoted weight lifter.

Arkansas argues there wasn't a better defensive end in the SWC the last two years when Jim Howard, a two-year starter who was named All-Conference second teamer both years ... Had 15 tackles against Baylor and an intercepted pass which turned the game around. Against UCLA in Fiesta Bowl, caused fumble that set up Arkansas touchdown.

Mat Mendenhall, a 6-6, 230-pound senior from BYU, and Charlie Baker, of New Mexico, who has been compared to Robin Cole, are the top defensive ends in the Rockies.

Baker led Lobos in quarterback sacks with 12, and also turned in 12 other tackles for losses. Mississippi plugs Big John Peel, while LSU will fight for John Adams and Lyman White, who totaled 152 tackles.

Wendell Ray, at 6-5 and 218, is the best defensive player on the Missouri squad, with 66 tackles last year ... Interception of a Dexter Green pass on Missouri 10 stopped a drive which could have given Iowa State the lead.

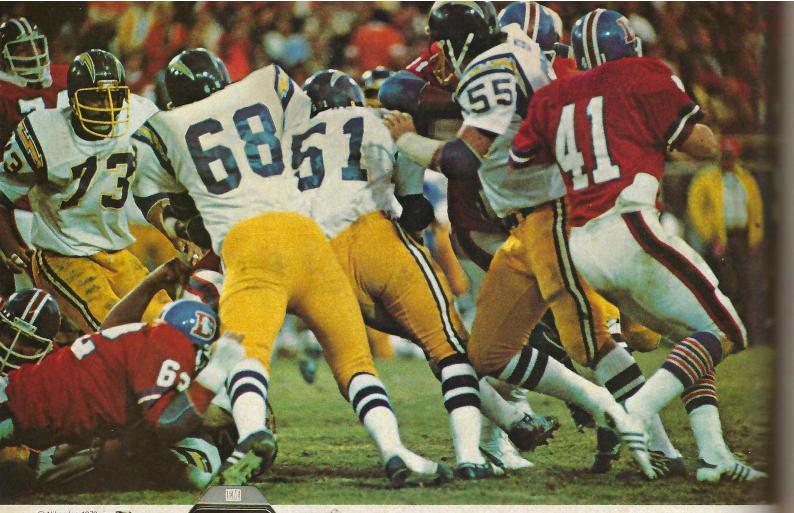

Sam Stepney of Boston U. is a good candidate from the East, while Lafayette lists Tim Gerhart as one of its finest-ever ends, with Little All-America selection in 1978 to go with All-East honors.

Farley Bell, who started for Cincinnati last year after switching from Ohio State, has been tabbed as the best end in Bearcat history.

Ohio U. fans believe they have a real winner in Steve Groves. Switched to defensive tackle last year after knee surgery, Groves had a fine year. Moved to end again this year, he should have a good season.

Harris for the most points.

Also worth watching are Ron Crews of Nevada-Las Vegas, Nick Westerberg of Oregon State and Jerry Calovich of Kansas.

The guys in the interior of the line, in the "trenches," don't get many "sacks" or unassisted tackles, and rarely do they get the headlines. But what a group to draw from.

Start with the Big Ten where Stanley Ralph of Illinois is the strongest man on the team, and also one of the fastest; or at Wisconsin, where Tom Schremp is a starter for the third year, or at Iowa, where John Harty, 6-6 and 260, is one of the defensive bright spots.

Ball State is high on senior tackle Rush Brown, who was an all conference selection last year.

Penn State provides two of the outstanding candidates in the East, headed by Bruce Clark, who won the Lombardi Award and finished second in the Outland voting. Clark was an All-America first-teamer as well as ABC-TV defensive player of the year.

The other Nittany Lion tackle, Matt Millen, finished fourth for the Lombardi Award, and he, too, gained All-America honors.

Among the Ivies, Yale offers two top middle guards in senior Ron Barlow and junior Kevin Czinger. Navy boosts John Merrill, an all ECAC selection who is the biggest (248 pounds) player Navy has had in years.

On the East seaboard, consider Doug McDougald and Mike Faulkner of Virginia Tech, Ben Bottone of Rhode Island, Tom Pierzga of Boston U., and Colin McCarty of Temple.

In the Southeast-South, The Citadel backs David Wardlaw, Duke has Tim Cadigan, who can bench press 400 pounds; Clemson is high on Jim Stuckey, an All-ACC pick last year, who had 17 tackles against Georgia and made the two big plays in the win over North Carolina.

In the SEC, Auburn is high on Frank Warren while noseguard George Atiyeh leads LSU. Mississippi State offers tackle Tyrone Keys, all 260 pounds, who is exceptional as a pass rusher. Richard Jaffe, was the leading tackler for Kentucky two years ago and third leading tackler last year as noseguard. All-SEC team twice.

Mississippi counts on James (Lazarus) Jordan at noseguard and Southwestern Louisiana has Dale Thomas as a good prospect.

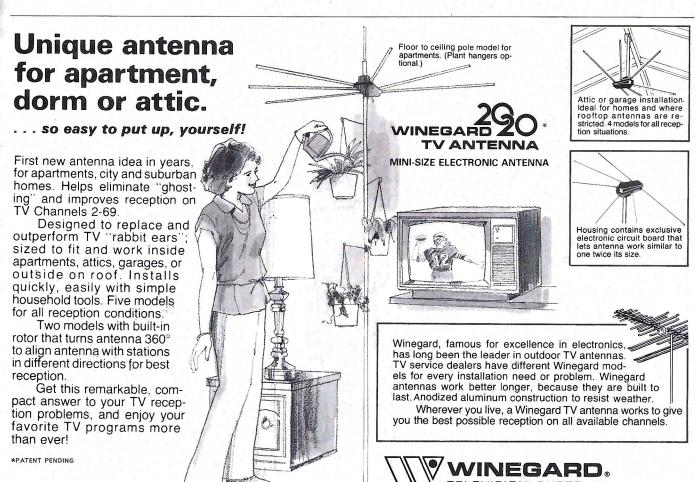

The Southwest would be led by Houston's two tackles, Hosea Taylor at 260 and Leonard Mitchell, 6-7 and 270. Taylor led down linemen with 44 tackles and seven sacks while Mitchell led team with eight sacks and returned two pass interceptions for touchdowns.

Harvey Armstrong of SMU was voted Newcomer of the Year and had 117 tackles for second All-SWC honors, while Wesley Roberts is TCU's best.

In the Big Eight, Chris Boskey of Iowa State was Defensive Newcomer of the Year; LaVal Short of Colorado was a second team middle guard; Rod Horn is Nebraska's top defensive tackle and Jim Zidd is a talented defensive end at Kansas, while Kerry Weinmaster at middle guard has excellent "all" credentials for Nebraska.

Pat Ogrin and Don Jessie are Wyoming's best tackles; Ryan Williams is an outstanding tackle for the Air Force; Glen Titensor, a transfer from UCLA, has good notices from BYU, as has Craig Silverman from Nevada-Las Vegas.

Rulon Jones from Utah State follows the Aggie Tradition of Tackle U., and Cleveland Crosby is Arizona's best continued on 46t talents were just coming into focus. He was voted the team's best blocker and once made 15 straight tackles in a Big Ten game.

His athletic skill was not limited to the gridiron. The next spring, Berwanger entered the Kansas Relays and placed fourth in the decathlon the first time he ever tried the gruelling event. He was tougher and stronger, figuring to go out with a blaze of glory for the Maroons in the fall.

A 28-7 season-opening loss to Nebraska exposed Chicago's lack of quality players and depth, but there was no denying Berwanger's greatness. His virtuosity paced a 31-0 rout of Carroll and he fired a 38-yard touchdown pass in a 31-6 drubbing of Kalamazoo. A 19-0 setback to Purdue left the Maroons 2-2.

A 13-7 victory over Wisconsin set the stage for a home field contest against mighty Ohio State, which was a 40-point favorite to unleash its vengeance on the lowly Maroons.

"Berwanger's all I've got," groaned Shaughnessy before the Nov. 9 clash. "The other boys are good, hard-working youngsters, but they don't have it as football players. You can forget about all the other names and numbers—just watch Berwanger. If we do anything, he'll do it."

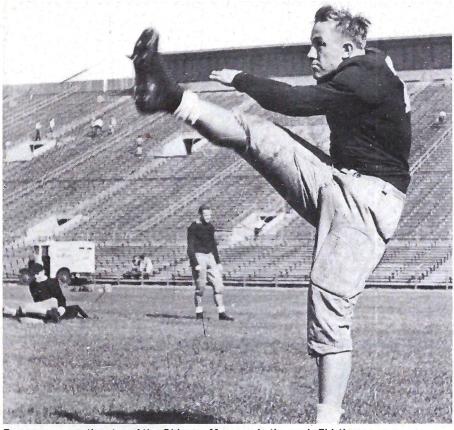

It was a most accurate assessment, and could have described every Chicago outing against a formidable foe in the mid-Thirties. But Berwanger's ominous presence took the Maroons out of the ordinary category and made them a threat against anyone. The Buckeyes learned that lesson the hard way on that rainy, muddy Saturday afternoon.

The Buckeyes' superior strength and depth began to take hold in the second half against the banged up Maroons, but Berwanger wasn't finished. After Ohio State scored in the third period, Jay gave the classic struggle its most memorable moment.

With the ball on Chicago's 15, Jay began circling left end and cut back sharply as he spotted a hole in the Ohio State line. He bolted through the line of scrimmage and four defenders lurked ahead. He dodged the first two and stiff-armed the third, leaving just the safety.

Berwanger made his move, grounded the would-be tackler with another stiffarm and sailed into the end zone for an electrifying 85-yard score. Ohio State came back to win the game, 20-13, but all people could discuss was the oneman show as Jay upstaged the Buckeyes.

He was credited with eluding eight tacklers on that magnificent run, finishing the day with 130 yards rushing in 13 carries. He also connected on three of seven passes for 118 yards and scored Chicago's extra point, Francis Schmidt, the Columbus coach, called Jay "the best back Ohio State faced since Red Grange."

Berwanger was the star of the Chicago Maroons in the early Thirties.

The Maroons suffered a letdown and were walloped by Indiana, 24-0, the following week, but Berwanger went out in style when his Chicago career concluded against the Illini.

Chicago, which had been beaten by Illinois 7-0 and 6-0 in Jay's first two seasons, was itching for revenge—and Berwanger made it possible. He gained 149 yards rushing, returned a punt 49 yards to the one, plunged over for the touchdown and scored the extra point that gave the Maroons a 7-6 victory and a 4-4 record.

In three seasons, Berwanger carried the overmatched Maroons to an 11-11-2 standoff, rushing for 1,839 yards, scoring 22 touchdowns and averaging 38 yards per punt. Christy Walsh, a football historian and All-America selector, called him "a defensive backfield all by himself."

Others were equally impressed. Jay was the Citizens Savings Player of the Year, a consensus All-American and the first Heisman Trophy winner in 1935. Liberty magazine polled athletes for its A-A squad and 104 of the 107 players who faced Berwanger named him as the best halfback they encountered.

"He was the best you could imagine and then some," said Shaughnessy. "Jay seldom got hurt because he seldom got hit hard. Honestly, it was as if he never allowed himself to be hit hard."

Berwanger, who was voted to the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame, played in only one organized game following his college career, a 1937 semi-pro contest against the Bears. As usual, he excelled.

But it mattered not. Jay Berwanger was through with football, except for a stint as a Big Ten referee, a chore which he handled as deftly as carrying a pigskin.

"He was one of the best officials of his time," said former coaching great Pappy Waldorf, who was college football's first Coach of the Year in 1935 while at Northwestern.

"Although Northwestern and Chicago were close, we never played the Maroons," noted Pappy, "but I saw Berwanger play and he was everything they said he was. He also was a highly-skilled referee. I can remember a Northwestern game he worked where a back made a long touchdown run. When he got to the end zone, Jay was with him stride for stride. He was a great one."

tackle nominee.

The Far West linemen are headed by Doug Martin, one of the best honors candidates from Washington. Vince Goldsmith from Oregon, Chuck Evans of Stanford, Pat Graham of Cal and Tom Tuinei of Hawaii are other good linemen.

Cal starts off with two outstanding cornerbacks in Anthony Washington and Daryl Swanson. Washington intercepted six for 224 yards and two touchdowns in first six games, while Swanson is devastating against the run.

But the top defensive back on the coast is free safety Kenny Easley, UCLA's consensus All-America of last year. His two-year total of 13 interceptions already shares the Bruin school record.

Dennis Smith led USC in interceptions with seven and was fourth in team tackles while Trojan Ronnie Lott had 63 backs in Mike Guess and Vince Skillings, the latter with five interceptions, and one for a TD.

Penn State has another All-America defender in Pete Harris who led nation in interceptions last year while Minnesota offers free safety Keith Edwards who also is tops as a kick returner.

VMI offers free safety Walt Bellamy while San Jose State likes the chance of cornerback Steve Hines. Tim Wilbur of Indiana led Big Ten in interceptions with six for 115 yards.

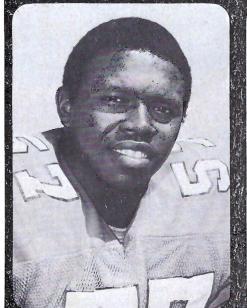

Johnnie Johnson of Texas led the defensive backs in the Heisman voting last year as he gained All-America honors. But Tennessee will hear nothing but Roland James whom his coach calls the best defensive back he has ever known.

Vanderbilt gets into the action with Ronnie Myrick at strong safety. Notre Dame's Dave Waymer is one of the Irish co-captains and a steady performer.

Maryland pushes Lloyd Burruss, who had 71 tackles from his secondary post. The Citadel likes the chance of safety Paul Gillis while Duke rates Dennis Tabron as one of its best-ever backs.

Kentucky notes that cornerback Larry Carter has 4.5 speed and among the national leaders in punt returns. LSU likes cornerback Chris Williams who led SEC in interceptions.

James McKinney has his backers at Auburn and Texas Tech's Larry Flowers was named All-SWC. Mississippi State has Ken Johnson. Iowa State counters with Mike Schwartz. Kansas State's best is Sam Owen while Colorado likes Mark Haynes, to round out the field.

Tim Smith at corner is top for Oregon State.

Oklahoma has a top safety in Darrol Ray, All-Big Eight star who tied school record for interceptions with seven. Georgia adds Scott Woerner, a top corner and great punt returner for its choice. Free safety Woodrow Wilson of North Carolina State ranks as an honors favorite.

In the WAC, Utah boasts Jeff Griffin will be the best pass defender and tackler before he's through.

Second team All-America Lovie Smith of Tulsa must be considered, as well as Jerry Holmes of West Virginia. North Carolina calls Ricky Barden its best All-America bet at defensive back. Pitt likes Jo Jo Heath as its rebuilding secondary.

Cornerback Donzell McDonald and safety Ricky Harr are best at Colorado State while Wyoming pushes Michael Dennis as a defensive back.

Chris Judge is a free safety for TCU while Alabama pushes cornerback Don McNeal. Pacific counters with Stan Shibata at safety and Texas-El Paso has All-WAC Eddie Forkerway.

The door creaked a cautious welcome as they pushed it open. Their eyes scanned the sparse office, locked on mine, then darted to the darkened hall. Who were they? Why were they here?

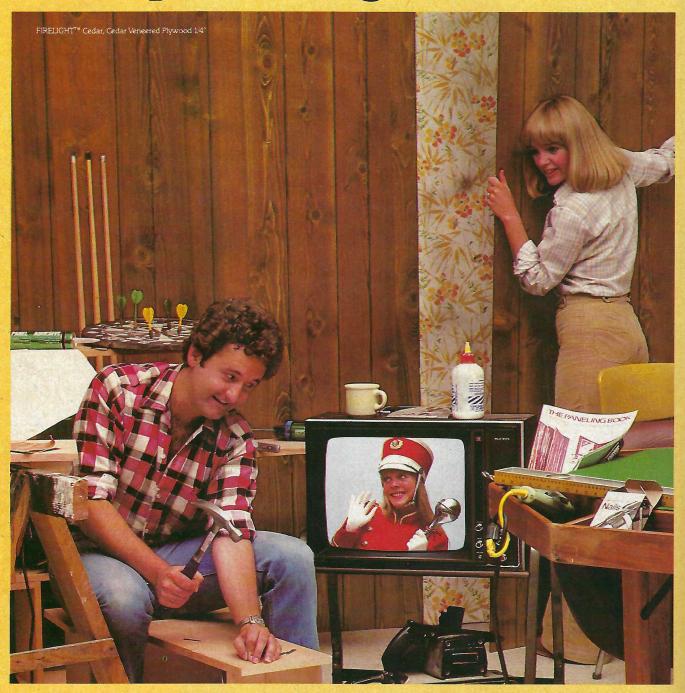

Two things I knew for sure.

Two things I knew for sure. First, they were being followed. And, second, they had real class. Lots of it. Just the cut of their clothes said style and elegance. The fabric said taste.

Questions buzzed in my mind like hornets. But, in this business it's money first. So I told 'em my fee and took a swig of cold coffee. They went for their wallets and suddenly, the pieces fit. I caught a glimpse of a familiar label inside their coats, and knew why they were followed. There ain't a dame around who can pass up the great looks of Haggar Imperial slacks and sport coats.

MARCHING CHIEFS

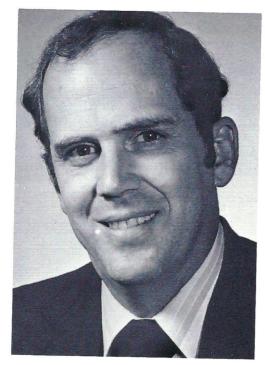

he Marching Chiefs popularity has been growing in leaps and bounds as its reputation as one of the nation's finest collegiate marching bands continues to grow.

The Pride of Florida State is made up of nearly 300 bandsmen including a feature twirler, a corps of majorettes and flag girls. Every school and college in the University is represented in the FSU band.

For over a quarter of a century the Marching Chiefs have been providing Florida State football fans with musical and marching entertainment. Since their beginning back in the early 1950s, the name of the Marching Chiefs has been synonymous with colorful, fast paced shows and music to satisfy even the hard to please listener.

In addition to the Chiefs' performances at home games and several road contests, their past national and regional television appearances has helped to bring the Chiefs into the homes of millions.

As Chiefs step out on the field this year, audiences will be greeted by the familiar version of the style that in the past has entertained millions. Under the third year leadership of Bentley Shellahamer, assistant director of bands and director of the Marching Chiefs, and the continued work of coordinator of bands Carl Bjerregaard, associate director and arranger Charles Carter and graduate assistant Bob Spradling, the Chiefs will be presenting a style of performance which Seminole fans have seen in the past. Music will be coordinated with the various drills and formations, to create a new dimension in sight and sound.

Results of the experiment show that 236 students brought their sagging math scores up — some by as much as the equivalent of three years of classroom instruction.

Janis Qualls, PLATO manager at Florida State, teaches a remedial math student the basics of PLATO's language.

PLATO-A NEW EDUCATION

by Frank Stephenson, FSU Information Services

aking the sting out of the study of mathematics has been a traditional goal among most schoolteachers, and a real art among a few.

Recently, plunging math scores from Florida high schoolers on the state's functional literacy test have dramatized the need for more effective ways to get the math message across.

One of these ways, a computerized system called PLATO, has proved its worth to math educators in a yearlong study completed this summer.

PLATO, which stands for "programmed logic for automatic teaching operations" is marketed by Control Data Corporation of Minneapolis. Florida State is one of a small number of universities nationwide serving as a state or regional PLATO headquarters.

More than 200 remedial math students in three Florida high schools met PLATO last year and came away big winners. All of the students had either failed or fared poorly on the math portion of the state literacy test or similar tests administered by their own school systems.

Results of the equipment show that 236 students from Paxon High School in Jacksonville, Glades Central High in Belle Glade and Sarasota High brought their sagging math scores up-some by as much as the equivalent of three years of classroom instruction-with only limited use of the electronic teaching aid.

Math skills for the student jumped an average equivalent of 1.3 years of classroom teaching per student, the study shows. During the nine month testing period, each student averaged 20 hours doing lessons on PLATO continued on page 111

Sure, we didn't stay little very long, but we haven't outgrown our obligation to Tallahassee. And we don't intend to. In the short span of only nine years, we have twice received the Regional Small Business-Prime Contractor of the Year Award. And, for the last three years, we have been listed as one of the 500 top design firms in the United States by McGraw-Hill's "Engineering News-Record." These honors, we hope, have brought a certain amount of prestige to Tallahassee.

We'll continue to provide employment opportunities because one goal of the Coloney Company is to be listed in "Fortune 500" in the next decade.

We'll continue to be involved in social, cultural and educational activities because we believe them to be an integral part of community life.

First, however, we believe that a group of dedicated, highly qualified professionals should want to get—and stay—involved in the community.

We are. We do.

PLATO

terminals, which look something like TV screens with typewriter keyboards.

At Glades Central, 17 students who completed the 35-hour curriculum boosted their skills the equal of almost three years of classroom time.

Three more high schools and six middle schools will be equipped with PLATO with a $792,000 allocation from the 1979 Florida Legislature, said Janis Qualls, PLATO manager at Florida State.

Eight PLATO terminals will be installed in each of the 12 schools (nine yet to be determined), Qualls said. The system will be used only for remedial work in math.

The Florida State program is backed by State Department of Education officials who want to know the effectiveness of computer-based remedial education, Qualls said.

While math teachers are getting interested in PLATO's classroom potential, music teachers are also lending an ear. PLATO, as it turns out, is an extremely diversified and talented, pedagogue.

Sherwin Gooch, an electronic Merlin of sorts, demonstrated an invention of his at Florida State last spring that one day may revolutionize music education.

The invention, called a woodwind synthesizer, was dreamed up by Gooch who works as a research engineer with the same team of computer wizards that developed PLATO at the University of Illinois at Urbana.

The synthesizer is an eight-by-10inch box that could easily pass for a compact piece of stereo equipment. But when hooked up to an amplifier, a set of speakers, and a PLATO terminal, it does things most stereo fans would never dream of.

For starters, it lets you see music as well as hear it.

A maestro on the Gooch Synthetic Woodwind System can command a performance by merely tapping out a request, a bizarre code, of course. As quickly as the notes are heard, they pop up in the right places on an electronically-drawn staff, the lines and spaces seen on ordinary sheet music.

The music is roughly equivalent to that of the first Moog synthesizers which showed up in rock recording studios in the mid-60s, and have since become quite sophisticated—figuring prominently in the music of such stars as Stevie Wonder.

Nothing excites music teachers more about the system than its ability to edit music copy. An astonishing device called a touch panel, built into the screen, allows an operator to rearrange single bars of music, simply by touching them with a finger. Wherever a finger touches the pressure-sensitive panel, the image directly behind it instantly melts away.

To music educators, PLATO the musician is quite a virtuoso. The system's unique capability of providing instant auditory and visual feedback to students makes it an educational tool of virtually unlimited potential, they say.

Meanwhile, Gooch is back in his lab, cooking up even more electronic tricks for PLATO. He talks about his invention one day evolving into a sort of "musical android" that (who) will "listen" to a violin, clarinet, euphonium, or what-have-you, and will electronically reproduce an almost exact rendition of the instrument's sound.

Take that, Buck Rogers!
