Consider Buick. Not because it's perfect. But because it's so good at the things that really count.

The perfect automobile has yet to be built. But Buick has been working hard over the years on the things that matter. For example . . .

Quality to see, touch and sit in

The first thing you notice in a Buick is room. Comfortable, grown-up room. The Park Avenue here has room for six adults.

The next thing you notice is the luxury. Deep, rich carpeting. Handsome velour or available genuine leather in seating areas. An automatic leveling system in the suspension to keep you on the level when the car is loaded with luggage and people.

Electra also has such amenities as air conditioning, tilt steering column, even a seek and scan Delco ETR AM-FM stereo sound system with clock.

Durability, because it's a long, hard road out there

Some of the things you do not want when you're traveling on rough roads are rattles, squeaks, and that disconcerting feeling that your suspension is adrift on the bumps like a boat in a heavy sea.

Buicks are built to resist all that with a combination of technology and tender, loving care. More than 3,000 welds in a Buick Electra body are done by robots. But primer coats are wet-sanded by hand and critical joints are filled with silicone bronze and hand finished.

As for handling, the road of life has its share of potholes, washboards and bumps. But it also has an occasional sweeping curve, long empty stretch or twisting, tree-lined lane. Buick is prepared to deal with it either way.

Reliability you can count on

When the weather is grim, your automobile ought to shine. Buick's solid-state sensors that "feel" the weather and adjust ignition timing, fuel mixture and other functions are there to make it that kind of automobile. There's even an electronic anti-lock braking system available on Electra and LeSabre to make stopping smooth and controlled, even in rain or snow.

Reliability starts at the factory. But, with Buick, it continues to happen at the dealership. After over a hundred inspections during assembly, and after your dealer has completed an 87-item "Letter Perfect Delivery" inspection, you become the final inspector.

Buick service technicians have a system called TAC (Technical Assistance Center) for direct access to Buick Division Headquarters if they run into something they can't deal with on their own. And if you ever have questions, there's a direct, toll-free number you can use to call Buick yourself.

Buckle up and see your Buick dealer for a test drive.

For more information, a brochure or a test drive, call 1-800-87-BUICK (1-800-872-8425).

'M' Homecoming 1986

Homecoming information provided by Bob Rosiek (Michigan '70) . . . Today's meeting between Michigan and Florida State is the first between the two schools.

HOMECOMING GAMES

Today marks the 90th Michigan Homecoming Game with the Wolverines sporting a 66-21-2 record with a .753 winning percentage . . . Bo Schembechler is 17-0 for Homecoming . . . Florida State is Michigan's 18th Homecoming opponent . . . Minnesota is the most frequent Homecoming foe (28 times) with Illinois second (11) . . . First Homecoming game was a 15-0 loss to the Alumni in 1897 at Regents Field . . . Rematch in 1898 was 11-2 win for Michigan over Alums . . . Final Regents Field Homecoming game was 12-0 win over Wisconsin . . . The 1910 Homecoming game was one of the best in history as Michigan beat Minnesota 6-0 with a fourth quarter touchdown by All-American Stanfield Wells . . . Final Ferry Field Homecoming Game was 13-0 win over Illinois as All-American Benny Friedman booted two field goals . . . The 1929 contest was 14-12 win over Harvard . . . Michigan beat Minnesota 6-0 in 1931 as Bill Hewett's 57-yard touchdown run in the first quarter gave Wolverines the win over Golden Gopher coach Fritz Crisler . . . Crisler's luck continued in 1932 as he moved east to coach Princeton and lost at Michigan 14-7 during Homecoming as Wolverines moved on to National Championship . . . Crisler's luck changed in Michigan Homecoming Games in 1938 when as Wolverine coach he beat Illinois, 14-0, as Tom Harmon ran for a touchdown and passed to Forest Evashevski for the other TD . . . Harmon led the Wolverines over Yale in the 1939 contest scoring three touchdowns while running for 206 yards in 19 carries in 27-7 win . . . The 1947 contest, a 13-6 win over Minnesota, featured a 40-yard TD pass from Bob Chappuis to Bump Elliott and a 21-yard scoring dash by Gene Derricotte as the Wolverines gained national title . . . The 1951 Homecoming contest was the highest scoring as the Wolverines beat Minnesota, 54-27, led by Wes Bradford with 177 yards and two touchdowns and a three-TD performance by Lowell Perry. The 'M' defense intercepted six Gopher passes and Don Oldham picked off three himself . . . The Wolverines scored 35 points in the first half in 1966 and beat Minnesota by a 49-0 margin as Dick Vidmer hit 15 of 19 passes for 212 yards and three touchdowns and Jack Clancy made 10 receptions for 168 yards and two TDs . . . Bo's first Homecoming was 35-7 win over Wisconsin, Nov. 1, 1969 as Billy Taylor scored on first quarter touchdown runs of 37 and 51 yards and Barry Pierson scored on a 51-yard punt return . . . Fritz Seyferth paced the 1970 Homecoming outing by scoring four touchdowns in a 39-13 win over Minnesota . . . The 1975 contest saw Rob Lytle collect four touchdowns in a 55-7 win over Indiana . . . In 1978 Michigan blasted Minnesota by a 42-10 score as Rick Leach passed for three touchdowns and ran for two more . . . "THE GAME" was in 1979 as John Wangler hit Anthony Carter on a 45-yard bomb on final play of game for 27-21 win over Indiana on a play listed as the "Single Most Exciting Play in the First 100 Years of Michigan Football" . . . Another Homecoming thriller in 1983 found Bob Bergeron booting a 45-yard field goal with 12 seconds remaining to beat Iowa 16-13.

FIRST IN SEPTEMBER

Today's Homecoming game is the earliest Homecoming contest in the 90-year history of the event. In fact, this is the first Homecoming game to be played in the month of September.

Normally, Homecoming is played in October or early November. Probably the best part of the 1986 Homecoming is the fact the weather should cooperate a little more easily with the fans than it would at a later date.

HALL OF HONOR

The University of Michigan will induct seven former athletes into the distinguished Hall of Honor on Friday, October 17. The 1986 inductees will join such legends as Fielding H. Yost, Bennie Oosterbaan and Fritz Crisler.

This year's honorees include Bill Combs, Bump Elliott, Pete Elliott, Micki King, Ernie McCoy, Dave Nelson, and Al Renfrew.

Crisler Arena will be the site for the festivities. The evening begins at 5:30 pm with a cash bar, followed by dinner at 7:00 pm. Jim Brandstatter will be the emcee for the evening.

Single tickets are $30, couple tickets are $50, and tables of eight are $160, so order your tickets now. All proceeds go to the Michigan Athletic Scholarship Fund. For more information, call (313) 763-6870.

PRE-GAME INJURY BENCHES BOSTIC

Carlitos Bostic was looking forward to 1986 like no other season. This was the year the linebacker from Ypsilanti High School was getting his shot at starting for the Wolverines' defense at outside linebacker.

Last week, his dream came to an abrupt end even before the game started. Bostic was injured during the warm up session and was forced to undergo orthoscopic surgery. He will be out for an indefinite period.

MORE EFFICIENT THAN 1986

After two games, quarterback Jim Harbaugh's passing efficiency of 174.00 exceeds the mark of 163.7, with which he led the NCAA in passing one year ago. Harbaugh's .707 completion percentage (29 of 41) and three-to-one ratio of touchdowns to interceptions are largely responsible for the high rating. Although he threw an interception in the first quarter of the Oregon State game, Harbaugh tossed 149 consecutive passes without having one picked off.

Harbaugh's streak spanned parts of ten games, going back to the 1985 Michigan State contest.

Harbaugh is third in career pass completions with 236, just 14 behind Rick Leach. Steve Smith holds the mark with 324.

Jim is already in the top five of four different career record categories and should improve upon that mark as the season progresses.

MORRIS MOVING UP

Tailback Jamie Morris, with 217 yards rushing in 1986, now has 1820 yards in his Michigan career, placing him 16th on the all-time Wolverine rushing list . . . Morris needs just 44 yards to overtake Bob Westfall (1939-41) for 15th . . . Morris, third in career kickoff returns with 31, needs four to wrestle second place from Ron Johnson (1966-68). Anthony Carter (1979-82) tops the list with 61 . . . With 630 yards in kickoff return yardage, Morris stands fourth, but would vault into second with only 16 more return yards, passing Gil Chapman (1972-74) and Johnson. Carter heads this list as well, having amassed 1606 yards on kickoff returns in his illustrious career.

Commitment.

That's what it takes to play the game. And that's why athletes invest so much time, energy, talent, and determination to achieve excellence in their sport.

It's the committed players that make a difference in their organizations, uniting their teams through dedicated leadership.

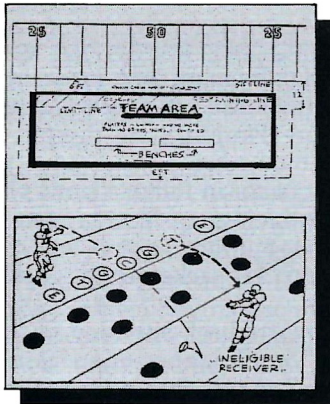

You'll find that same commitment at First of America Banks. We're a team of banks dedicated to serving the financial needs of the communities in Michigan's upper and lower peninsulas.

RULE CHANGES FOR 1986

If you are not in your seat at game time, you will miss the most recognizable rule change for 1986. This year, all kickoffs (unless a safety is scored) will be from the 35-yard line. This should result in more returns and will also allow kickers to put their foot to the ball without fear of having the ball moved to the thirty-yard line if it goes through the endzone. Last year, the ball was put in play at the 30 yard line if a kick sailed through the endzone. In '86, the ball will be placed back at the 20.

Along with kickoffs from the 35-yard line, players of the kicking team, except the kicker, are to be positioned and remain within ten yards of their restraining line when the ball is declared ready for play by the ref. This restrains players from gaining a circular movement and added momentum which has produced some violent collisions in the past.

Batting a ball is probably one of the least understood plays in all of football. If a player illegally bats a ball, a loss of down will occur this season.

Another penalty change involves an ineligible player downfield on a forward pass. Last year, the penalty was five yards and a loss of down. This year, the loss of down has been removed.

Good news for Michigan fans is that the team areas, which both squads must stay within, has been increased from the 30-yard lines to the 25-yard lines. Why is it good news for 'M' fans? As Bo Schembechler laughed at the Press Day breakfast, "I'm down to 199 pounds and I'm quicker and more agile than ever. And that's great, because this year I can roam all the way to the 25."

'M' NOTES

• Under Bo Schembechler, Michigan holds a 39-8-2 record in regular season non-conference games, a sparkling .816 winning percentage . . . Included in that record is a 25-game unbeaten streak from 1970-78, and current win streak of five, dating back to the opening game of the 1985 campaign.

• Michigan tailback Jamie Morris, with 140 yards rushing versus Oregon State, exceeded the 100 yard mark for the sixth time in his collegiate career, most recently in a 156-yard effort in the Fiesta Bowl versus Nebraska . . . In two games in 1986, Morris has gained 217 yards on 43 carries for a 5.0 yards per attempt average and two touchdowns.

• Michigan split end Paul Jokisch, with a stretched groin injury in the second quarter, missed the entire second half, and did not catch a pass for the first time since Oct. 27, 1984 against Illinois, snapping a 16-game pass catching streak.

• Versus Oregon State, the Wolverines came away with points three of four times they moved inside the Beaver 20 yard line, scoring two touchdowns and a field goal . . . The only blemish was an aborted field goal attempt of 38 yards which resulted from a fumbled snap from center . . . On the season, with seven opportunities inside the opposing 20 yard line, the Wolverines have scored six times — four TD's and two field goals.

• Opposing offensive efficiency inside the Michigan 20 for the game had Oregon State converting on three of four opportunities, coming away with a touchdown and two field goals . . . On the season, the opposing offense has converted 7 of 11 chances, scoring four touchdowns and three field goals, but also losing three turnovers with one fourth down stop.

• Oregon State quarterback Erik Wilhelm had the finest passing day in the history of Michigan Stadium in terms of pass attempts and completions. His 39 completions in 64 attempts were the most ever by an opposing quarterback at Ann Arbor . . . Northwestern's Sandy Schwab had the finest day, home or away, versus the Wolverines in 1982, when he completed 45 of 71 tosses.

• In Saturday's game, Oregon State netted -19 yards rushing for the game, an all-time low by a Michigan opponent . . . The previous record belonged to Michigan State, who in 1942 could muster just -16 yards rushing . . . Oregon State's 16 rushing attempts tied the 1982 Northwestern Wildcats for the fewest rushing attempts versus the Wolverines.

• With a collegiate coaching record of 198-55-7 (.755), Schembechler needs just two more victories to become the eighth coach in college football history to win 200 or more football games in Division 1-A . . . He would also become just the 14th coach to garner 200 victories regardless of division.

• Today marks the 68th consecutive 100,000 plus crowd at Michigan Stadium.

Seminoles: They, Too, Shall Pass

By Greg Shea

Coach Bobby Bowden brings his Seminoles to Ann Arbor this weekend as another stop on the annual Florida State road show that has already featured a trip to Lincoln, NE, to face the Cornhuskers.

In 11 seasons Bowden has taken his Seminoles on some tough trips, but his success on the road includes winning records at Ohio State (2-0), Arizona State (2-0), LSU (4-1), Miami (3-2), Notre Dame (1-0), Syracuse (1-0), Boston College (1-0) and North Carolina (1-0) proving that the home field advantage is not really that important to Florida State.

For the past nine years, Florida State has produced one of the finest football programs in the country, earning bowl bids seven times and posing serious challenges for the national championship in both 1979 and 1980, finishing 11-1 and 10-2, respectively. FSU comes off a 9-3 campaign which included a triumph over Nebraska and a stirring 34-23 win over Oklahoma State in the Gator Bowl.

The Seminoles invade Ann Arbor with a 1-1-1 slate, shutting out Toledo in the season opener (24-0), losing at Nebraska (34-17), and tying North Carolina (10-10) last Saturday. Despite the record, there is no doubt as to the talent that 11th year head coach Bobby Bowden possesses in this squad. But major tragedy and a young inexperienced offense has helped to knock Florida State from the polls.

On September 13, an open date in the Seminole schedule, two-year starting offensive tackle Pablo Lopez was shot and killed during an altercation in Tallahassee. Not only did the shooting deprive FSU of their finest returning lineman, but more importantly, it shocked his friends and put the entire Florida State campus in a state of mourning.

A key factor in today's game will be the effectiveness of Florida State's reconstructed offensive line, which has given up 12 sacks in its last two contests.

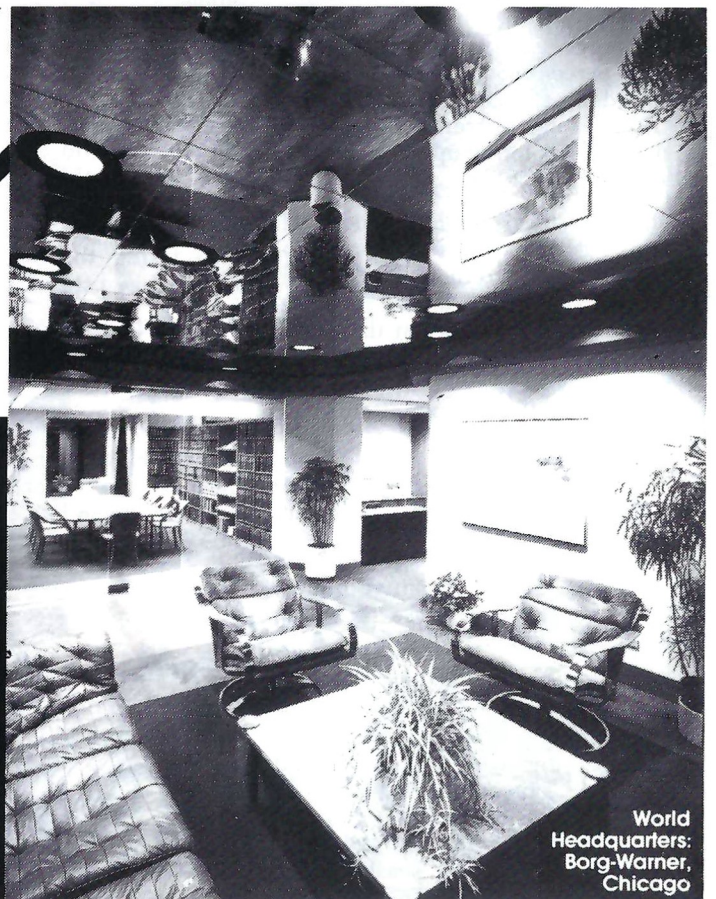

The quarterback situation is "up in the air," in a manner of speaking, as Bowden has two fine passers waiting to throw the football. Sophomore Chip Ferguson had a banner freshman year, starting the final six games and winning the MVP award in the Gator Bowl. He has started the first three games of '86, but is in danger of being replaced by freshman P. T. (Peter Tom) Willis. It hasn't been a matter of Ferguson playing poorly, as much as the fact that Willis has been outstanding.

With another passing quarterback to defense, the Wolverines know that the pass rush could determine the success of the Michigan team. Junior Mark Messner has played well in the first two games, but has seen double teaming that has limited his access to the passer. Consequently, the leading sacker of 1985 has yet to bag a quarterback this year. Linebacker blitzes will free Messner and linemate Billy Harris, and should make life dangerous for FSU's Ferguson or Willis.

Florida State shows tremendous talent in the receiving corps, with wide receivers Herb Gainer and Darrin Holloman, and fullback Tanner Holloman (Darrin's brother) having each caught seven passes in the early going.

Do not forget about the Seminole ball carriers though, or one may get burned like Nebraska, who gave up a 57 yard touchdown scamper to red-shirt freshman Sammie Smith, who has twisted his way for 205 yards in three games.

Andy Moeller, the Wolverines' defensive captain, leads the defense in tackles as he did in 1985. With Todd Schulte and Andree McIntyre accompanying Moeller, the inside linebackers appear healthy.

Outside linebacker, on the contrary, has been hit hard by injuries, as Steve Thibert (ribs) and Carlitos Bostic (knee) missed the Oregon State game, leaving the position thin at best.

In the defensive backfield, the Wolverines have turned pre-season All-American Garland Rivers loose on opposing receivers. Rivers has amassed 23 tackles including 19 solos.

Florida State's defense boasts three candidates for post season awards in linebacker Paul McGowan, who has 35 tackles thus far, defensive tackle Gerald Nichols, a 6-2, 260-lb senior with 24 tackles and three sacks already in 1986, and cornerback Deion Sanders.

With two interceptions against North Carolina, Sanders leads a Seminole secondary that has limited opposing quarterbacks to just 127 yards per game.

Jim Harbaugh, Michigan's highly efficient quarterback, has talent the likes of which Florida State has not seen in 1986. The fifth year senior from Kalamazoo completed 29 of 41 passes (.707) in his first two '86 starts, and appeared just as comfortable throwing with time as without. A scrambler with few peers in the college ranks, Harbaugh is as heady as they come, getting the ball to his receivers any way he can.

Although split end Paul Jokisch is questionable for today's matchup, the Wolverine receivers will still create difficulties for FSU downfield. Sophomore John Kolesar and senior Ken Higgins have opened 1986 with authority, combining for 11 catches, 224 yards, and a touchdown.

The Florida State rushing defense has depended on the big play throughout its first three games, forcing six fumbles as a result of its collection of pitiless hitters. FSU has given up an average of just 14 points per game, compared to the Michigan defensive average of 18.

On the negative side, opponents have shown the ability to possess the ball for long periods of time, as a time of possession edge of over 13 minutes attests. Also, the Seminole defense has allowed enemy offenses to run 24 more plays than its own offense.

With backs like junior tailback Jamie Morris, who gained 140 yards on 20 carries against Oregon State, and the versatile Titusville, FL, native Gerald White, who scored two touchdowns versus the Beavers, Michigan has the personnel to attack Florida State from the backfield either rushing or passing. Morris and White have each caught TD passes, and have combined for 14 catches and 128 aerial yards.

Michigan's huge offensive line is looking to have a great game, as it has performed well enough to win, but not quite as well as expected.

The FSU kicking game has been bittersweet early in '86.

Punter Louis Berry has punted 18 times for a terrific 41.8 yard average.

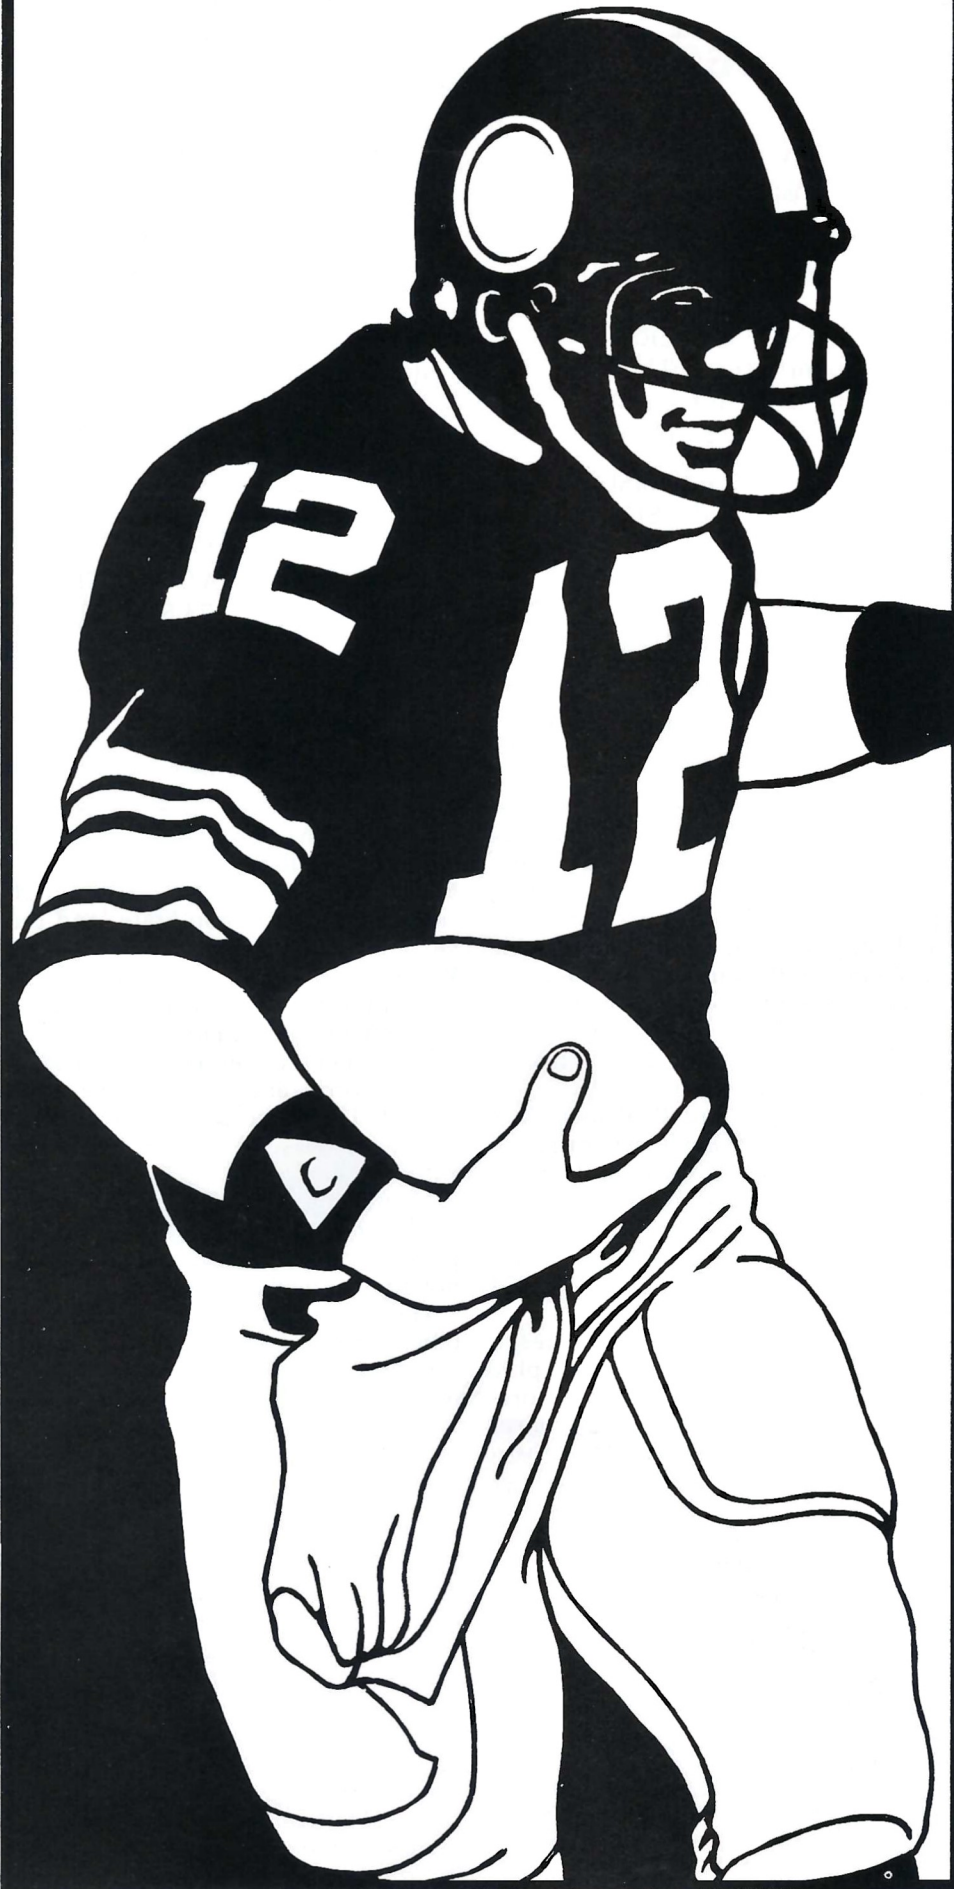

Placekicker Derek Schmidt has experienced a rocky start, however, hitting only two of six field goal attempts, including a potential game winner late in the North Carolina meeting. Schmidt has connected on 91 consecutive extra point attempts.

Monte Robbins, handling the punting chores for the third straight season at Michigan, punted well against Oregon State, rebounding from a rough day at Notre Dame. He owns an '86 average of 38.3 in two games.

Fifth year senior Pat Moons, a native of Ft. Lauderdale, FL, has been accurate on two of three field goal attempts for the Wolverines in the new campaign.

This I Remember

"Following the Michigan Tradition"

By Brad Bates

I remember the four years playing football at The University of Michigan from beginning to end.

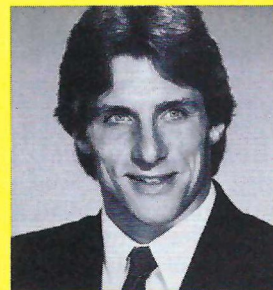

I remember running consecutive 440 yard intervals under 60 seconds with 60 seconds rest with my goal to either get sick or pass out, whichever came first. I remember lifting weights at 3 a.m. because I had to be at work at 5 a.m. I remember my arms being so sore from a workout that I could not touch my head to wash my hair for a week. I remember doing this to myself for one reason — to play football at The University of Michigan.

I took great pride in getting myself in top condition. The relief and exhilaration experienced at the end of a difficult workout was addictive and would provide a growing confidence in my ability to perform as an athlete. The release of energy in a highly intense effort was immensely satisfying and the hope that hard work would be answered by a Rose Bowl victory was inspiring.

As a senior at Port Huron Northern High School I experienced a very enjoyable athletic career, but unfortunately it was not impressive enough to lure division one coaches to my home. I was

Meet
Brad
Bates

Brad Bates, a native of Jackson, MI, was a defensive back on Michigan's 1980 Big Ten Championship team.

Bates was named Michigan's best conditioned freshman in 1977 after earning 10 varsity letters in football, basketball and track at Northern High School in Port Huron.

While he was a member of the Michigan football team under Bo Schembechler, the Wolverines won three Big Ten titles. Bates earned his varsity letter in 1980, a season that was capped off with a win over Washington in the 1981 Rose Bowl.

Bates graduated with a double major in English and physical education in 1981. He earned a Master of Science degree in exercise physiology and motivational psychology at Michigan in 1982.

Bates served as Michigan's assistant strength and conditioning coach while earning his master's degree.

Bates spent three years as the strength and conditioning coordinator at the University of Colorado for head coach Bill McCartney.

Currently, Bates is the all sports strength coach at Vanderbilt. He joined the Commodores in 1985.

Bates is married to the former Michele Joan Kelsey of Ann Arbor.

modestly recruited by smaller local schools, but my aspirations were higher than my credentials. My desire to play in the Big Ten was facilitated by a maize and blue childhood and the dreams of playing college football. My heroes were Michigan football players. My interest in Michigan football was inspired by the tremendous tradition, consistent success, and loving parents.

My family is dominated by Michigan alumni. My father was a very successful Michigan football player. His father was also a Michigan man. My father-in-law is a Professor at the School of Dentistry. My brother, sister, brother-in-law, mother-in-law, and grandfather-in-law are all past or present Michigan students. My father's tremendous influence upon me, his experiences in Ann Arbor, and his insight into a quality program were instrumental in guiding me to the university. My father was my high school coach and he called the Michigan athletic office to make an appointment with one of the coaches to discuss the possibility of my becoming a walk-on. He was told that Bo would meet with us whenever we arrived. We were so amazed that the day before we left we called again and were given the same response.

When we arrived, Bo left a morning staff meeting to visit with us for an hour. I remember leaving my large, puffy down jacket on so Bo would not see how small I was. All of my hopes were confirmed in that office: I wanted to play football at Michigan because of the two men before me — Bo and my father.

As a walk-on, I was not on an athletic scholarship and was really never concerned with financial reward. I always felt that it was a privilege to play football at Michigan and that the opportunity to represent the university while receiving an outstanding education was a luxury reserved for few.

Two vivid images represent the maturation process which took place during my experiences in Ann Arbor.

The night before my first day at The University of Michigan was a sleepless one. The drive to Ann Arbor was filled with a fluttering stomach and hands twitching nervously. The first football player I met was a 6'6" 275 pound center who seemed to tower over me and whose arms were as large as my legs. Being thirty minutes early to the first meeting I was the first to arrive. Walking onto the practice field for the first time I envisioned my father's experiences on this same field as I thought to myself, "I'm the smallest guy out here." I was very insecure and intimidated those first few days.

The next image I recall is of walking off the field in Pasadena and turning around for one last look. The sun had already set with the clouds still pink against the dark blue sky. The mountain tops were exposed above the edge of the stadium. People were everywhere; on the field, in the stands, screaming, cheering, and congratulating us. The scoreboard stood at the far end in front of the mountains indicating our victory. I've never seen a more beautiful sunset.

The lockerroom was wild with enthusiasm. Players clapping and slapping hands. Coaches hugging players. Reporters smiling. Seniors standing on the benches, fists raised in exultation singing "The Victors."

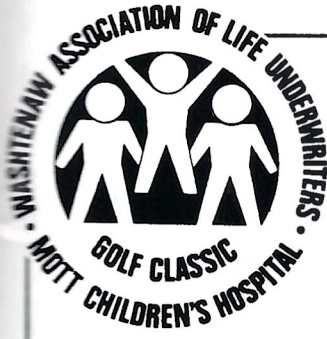

On January 1, 1981 we were the 'Champions of the West.'

The difference in those two images demonstrates the growth and development which took place during my years at Michigan. I played football at Michigan for two reasons, my father and Bo Schembechler, but I got more out of my experience than I ever imagined. The players were a tremendous group of friends, friends who now remain. The coaches at Michigan are the finest assembled. The academic knowledge acquired in Ann Arbor lives up to its tremendous international reputation. I was very fortunate to be coached by the finest strength and conditioning coach in the nation, Mike Gittleson. And the best part about going to Michigan was meeting my beautiful wife Michele.

I remember playing football at Michigan because it was fun.

All-American Battles Back For Backfield Slot

By Bruce Madej

Michigan football has its share of All-Americans throughout its 107-year history. But the Wolverines have only one three-time All American on its 1986 team — Detroit Central High School product Tom Wilcher.

Wilcher is a two-time All American in outdoor track and last season, he became the first Wolverine to win an NCAA indoor title. Wilcher posted a winning time of 7.22 seconds in the 55 meter high hurdle championship in Oklahoma City, becoming a three-time All American in track.

"I really enjoy track," says the former national high school record holder in the 110 high hurdles. "It's kind of hard in the early spring to get your timing since you have spring football, but it's worked out rather well for me."

Now, Wilcher is also an integral part of the Michigan backfield with Jamie Morris, Gerald White and Bob Perryman.

"Tom missed three games last season due to a sprained ankle," said Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler. "We really never had him back to full strength and that was too bad because he was really starting to get some playing time and looking pretty good."

Injuries have been a way of life for Wilcher at Michigan, and that has been unfortunate. As a freshman, Wilcher's knee was injured as he landed in the long jump pit in a dual meet against Michigan State.

"We really didn't know what to expect during Wilcher's rehabilitation," adds Schembechler. "His injury was not the type you usually see with a football player."

Wilcher's injury was to the outside of the knee (the lateral collateral ligament) while most football injuries occur to the inside of the knee (the medial collateral ligament).

"Tom is one of these guys who really worked during rehab," adds Schembechler. "And now, he's one of the players we really count on in our backfield."

Then, in 1983, Wilcher played against Northwestern and one week later suffered a turf toe and missed the remainder of the season.

Even though Wilcher is a hurdler, he really doesn't run like a hurdler on the football field.

"Most hurdlers, I would say, would be considered finesse runners," said Schembechler. "Wilcher is a hard hitting runner who will run over people, not a fancy runner like you'd expect from a great hurdler."

If Wilcher can make it through one season without getting banged up, most Michigan fans would be ecstatic.

"Wilcher is fast and tough and if he stays healthy, he could be an outstanding running back," said Schembechler. "He works hard and knows what to do when he gets the ball."

Wilcher's best game to date was in Columbia, South Carolina when he rushed for 106 yards on 16 carries in his only start of the season.

Despite missing three games with the sprained ankle in '85, Wilcher finished the year with the third highest rushing total.

"I think if I stay healthy, I'd get more playing time," said Wilcher. "I've been playing well but we do have a lot of talent in that backfield and I'm just happy I'm mentioned as one of the top running backs."

READY-MIXED CONCRETE IS THE ANSWER for heavy construction

Major construction projects. . . those designed for needs over many years, call for ready-mixed concrete, the world's most dependable building material.

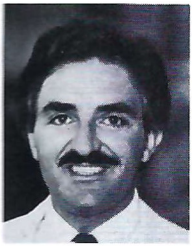

Facilities that serve a large portion of the population — water filtration plants, wastewater treatment plants, high rise office and apartment buildings, dams, and busy thoroughfares — all call for dependable ready-mixed concrete.

And yes, the cement that goes into this concrete is important, too.

Glenn E. "Bo" Schembechler, the dean of Big Ten coaches, has earned the right to be called one of college football's all-time great coaches. His 196-55-7 overall record is a figure that ranks first among all active Division I coaches.

Ten of his 17 teams at Michigan have either won or tied for the Big Ten Championship, and 13 of his 17 teams have gone on to bowl games including the last 11 in a row.

Bo was named Big Ten Coach-of-the-Year in 1985 as he led the Wolverines to a 10-1-1 record and number two in both the AP and UPI finals polls as Michigan beat Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl. It was the fourth time he was named coach-of-the-year.

Bo's record at Michigan entering the 1986 campaign (156-38-4) leaves him just nine wins shy of Fielding Yost's 'M' record of 165 victories.

Bo received a master's degree in 1952 at Ohio State where he served as a grad assistant. After serving in the Army, he was a line coach at Presbyterian College in 1954, a line coach at Bowling Green in 1955, then joined Ara Parseghian's staff at Northwestern in 1958 before serving the next five seasons as an assistant at Ohio State.

He was appointed head coach at Miami of Ohio in 1963, a position he held until taking over the Michigan program prior to the 1969 campaign.

He is a former President of the American Football Coaches Association (AFCA).

Bo and his wife, Millie, have four children: Chip, Geoff, Matt and Shemy.

Don Canham

Don Canham has served as Michigan's Athletic Director for the past 18 years. He has served on a multitude of Big Ten Conference and NCAA committees, and currently is serving on the all important NCAA Television Committee. In addition, he has served as a consultant and advisor to 11 major institutions in the last 10 years. Coming from a business and athletic program in addition to a 15 year coaching career, has given him a unique background as an athletic administrator. Canham has spoken throughout the country in recent years to countless business groups and associations on marketing, promotion and business practices. Recently, he has become highly involved in pay and cable television and has served as a panelist at major marketing seminars.

After Canham was named the fifth athletic director in Michigan history in 1968, he launched the first major direct mail and advertising program to sell football and other sports tickets. He also established a series of fund raising clubs, organized parking and concessions and developed a new area of income in licensing and the marketing of specialty items (souvenirs). Michigan has consistently, as a result, led the nation in football ticket sales and revenue, and he has seen his revenue grow from $3 million in 1968 to $14 million currently.

Meanwhile, Canham supervised a competitive athletic program that in 18 seasons has produced over 60 Big Ten Championships (Michigan's total of 228 is a Conference record). Additionally, Michigan has had crowds of over 102,000 in the Michigan Stadium for a decade or more.

Michigan's facilities are among the finest in the nation. A recently constructed field house contains an entire football field with artificial turf, new home lockerroom facilities for football, new weight rooms and training facilities for women athletes. Renovation of the Michigan Stadium press box and the addition of medical offices for the three team physicians plus a new women's office complex are a few of the additions Canham has recently made.

Special events have kept Michigan's facilities operating at near capacity. Canham twice has scheduled the Slippery Rock football game in Michigan Stadium, where the first game drew 62,000 spectators. The Michigan Hall of Honor, the Michigan Golf Open, NIT basketball games and State High School Basketball and many Big Ten and NCAA Championships are just some of the special events held at Michigan.

During the last 18 years Canham has earmarked more than $10 million from athletic receipts for plant expansion and improvements. Additionally, he was a key mover in the $7.2 million construction of new recreational sports facilities that gave Michigan one of the largest indoor complexes in the nation (333,000 square feet).

Other major projects Canham completed in the last decade include: construction of a football service building, an indoor track-tennis building which is used for varsity and University recreational purposes; converting Yost Fieldhouse into an 8,100 seat ice arena; construction of an Olympic all-weather outdoor track seating 4,000; construction of artificial surface practice fields with lights, renovation of the baseball stadium and a continuing multi-million dollar upgrading program for Michigan Stadium.

Building administrative and coaching staffs remains a priority for Canham. Promotions and retirements have forced complete turnovers in all coaches and administrators, but the tradition of winning continues.

Michigan's intercollegiate program includes 21 varsity sports for men and women with an annual budget of $14 million. The department, as stated is self-sufficient and has never used state, federal or University funds for buildings or operations.

Canham has been elected to the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame, the United States Track and Field Hall of Fame, and received special honors from many groups and organizations.

Canham was Michigan's track captain and NCAA high jump champion during his undergraduate years. He served in the Army Air Force, coached and taught at Kankakee, Illinois High School, and was an assistant track coach at Michigan for two years before being named head coach in 1948. His Wolverine teams won 12 Big Ten titles in 19 years. During that time he built a multi-million dollar manufacturing company that was placed in trust upon his appointment as athletic director.

Canham and his wife Marilyn have a son, Don, Jr., and a daughter, Clare, both University of Michigan graduates.

The Wolverines slept over last night.

You won't hear the clatter of cleats through the halls, but on Friday nights before home games the Wolverines are here. Studying new plays. Viewing hundreds of feet of film. Relaxing over a good dinner. And most of all, getting a good night's sleep. They need it.

They came to the right place. Because the Campus Inn is ideal for private conferences, superb dinners, and quiet, restful, undisturbed slumber.

The Wolverines picked the Campus Inn for good reasons. So can you. The next time you come to town for a game, catch a closer glimpse of some of America's finest collegiate athletes. You'll both get a good rest before the game.

The work of a university most often takes place in quiet classrooms, libraries, laboratories, computer centers, and offices. Occasionally, it is performed in public — as in a performance by a university orchestra or a theater group, or even in a stadium full of fans on a Saturday afternoon.

At The University of Michigan, much is demanded of student-athletes. In addition to the academic program that challenges all students, the athlete must devote additional time to the mastery of physical skills essential to high-level competition.

The intercollegiate sports arena itself can offer valuable lessons. An athletic team can perform consistently well over the years only if each player is a dedicated team member as well as a skilled athlete. Whether a team is winning or losing in athletic competition, students can gain from contributing to the group's effort.

Without these virtues they would fail in their sport. With them they may aspire to follow the many Michigan athletes who have gone on to excel in business, government, science, education, medicine, and many other professions. Their success is testimony to the pursuit of excellence that motivates sport and all other aspects of education at Michigan.

The University provides ample opportunity for men and women students to enjoy team efforts in both intramural and intercollegiate athletics. These activities enrich students' college experience. We are proud of our capacity to offer broadbased intercollegiate and intramural programs for the contribution they make to student life.

Year after year, loyal fans and alumni continue to support the entire university community, and inspire us to continued high levels of achievement.

Some people set higher standards for themselves. They come out early. And stay late. Funny, how they're usually the winners.

At Ricoh, we set higher product standards. And we put in that extra effort. Maybe that's why Ricoh's line of copiers, digital facsimile, laser printers, and shredders are setting new standards of performance in today's modern office. And that's why Ricoh cameras are winning the attention of amateurs and professionals alike in the world of photography.

Be a winner. Demand that extra effort. Ask for Ricoh. We Respond.

CAPACITY: 101,701 — largest college-owned structure of its kind designed solely for football — closer to the playing field with no running track — no posts or other obstructions. Ninety rows.

COMPLETION: 1927 — at a cost in excess of $950,000 to seat 72,000 spectators. Figure raised to 84,401 by addition of temporary wooden bleachers until 1949 when permanent steel stands replaced the wooden bleachers, increasing the capacity to 97,239. Seating capacity then raised to 101,001 in 1956 and 101,701, in 1973.

FIRST GAME: October 1, 1927. Michigan led by Captain Bennie Oosterbaan, defeated Ohio Wesleyan, 33-0. LaVerne (Kip) Taylor, Michigan end, scored first touchdown in the stadium on a 28-yard pass from halfback Louis Gilbert.

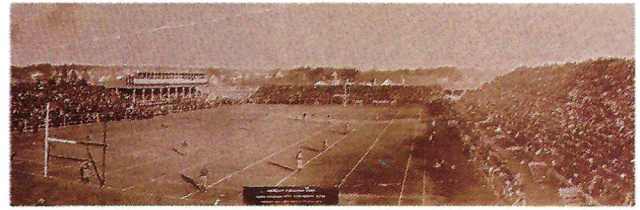

DEDICATION GAME: October 22, 1927. Michigan defeated Ohio State, 21-0.

ATTENDANCE: Since 1927, 24,359,646 fans have watched the Wolverines play 355 (Avg. 68,619) games. Stadium and NCAA attendance record of 106,255 was set Nov. 17, 1979 against Ohio State. The 1983 'M'—OSU game drew 106,115 just missing the mark. The NCAA season record of 730,315 was set in 1979.

66 Straight!

The University of Michigan football team has played 66 consecutive home games in front of crowds in excess of 100,000 through the 1985 season. The last time Michigan did not have 100,000 in attendance in Michigan Stadium was on Oct. 25, 1975 vs. Indiana. A crowd of 93,857 was on hand for the 55-7 Michigan victory.

Since then, Michigan has set numerous NCAA attendance marks and the Wolverines have led the nation for the past 12 seasons in attendance.

Emergency Help

American Red Cross volunteers along with the Huron Valley Ambulance, Inc., are teaming up for the third consecutive year with Michigan Stadium's registered nurses under the supervision of Margo Barron and distinguished staff of doctors to provide Wolverine fans with one of the most complete and efficient emergency help operations anywhere in the United States.

Last year, HVA staffed three specially-equipped carts with an Emergency Medical Technician while two ambulances were stationed on stadium grounds staffed with four EMTs.

Michigan Stadium has six, two-person first aid teams along with three additional Red Cross supervisors. Each of the six teams works with an Ann Arbor police officer, also trained in first aid.

Treatment to fans can start in minutes at the First Aid Center at the north end of the stadium and the ambulances can take more serious problems to the hospital.

Minutes could make the difference in life, so give them your complete cooperation and the necessary room for them to do their job.

University of Michigan

Academically, Michigan ranks among the foremost universities in America. A survey of professional school deans not long ago rated U-M in the top 10 in 13 of the 18 professional areas surveyed, "the best overall record" in the words of The Los Angeles Times. The survey found "Five universities with outstanding reputations — Berkeley, Chicago, Columbia, Harvard and Michigan — have the greatest numbers of top-ranking professional schools."

Other recent surveys have found the following: U-M ranked among the top eight American research universities in a national survey of graduate department reputations and the number of faculty publications; 4,000 faculty members nationally ranked U-M among the top four universities, the College of Engineering was first for graduate level academics in three of seven fields surveyed; deans of business administration schools placed the employment value of a U-M M.B.A. degree among the top five and rated Michigan's executive programs among the top four; more top business executives earned degrees from U-M than from any other public college or university; and medical school faculty members ranked U-M among the top eight such schools.

Michigan's schools and colleges cover the spectrum of human knowledge. To them for an education have come more than 301,672 degree holders, including the three-man crew of Apollo 15. Last year 18 percent of the student body came from all the other states in the nation, while another 5.5 percent were from some 100 other countries.

Sponsored research volume at Michigan has totaled over $125,000,000. Projects ranged from abstract theoretical studies of the atom to methods of reducing the number and severity of highway accidents. The monthly survey of consumer sentiment is a nationally respected barometer of the nation's economic health. Practical holography or three-dimensional photography was invented at Michigan, while the scholarly renowned Middle English Dictionary is being compiled on the campus.

On the North Campus, the Phoenix Project has for three decades sought peaceful uses of atomic energy. A few hundred feet away, the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library houses the papers of one of Michigan's most famous alumni.

The Medical Center is one of the largest health care facilities in the world. The area includes one of the nation's major medical schools, the largest baccalaureate school of nursing, and the nation's first University Hospital.

Michigan's faculty includes 16 members of the National Academy of Sciences and many presidents of national scholarly organizations. The U-M library system is one of the largest university systems in the country with more than six million volumes.

The University is truly a state resource and a national asset.

Gerald White

Michigan Halfback - Fullback - Tailback

“Gerald White could be one of the most underrated running backs I’ve ever coached at Michigan.” — Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler.

Gerald White

A Changed Man

By Mark A. Sage

He began his career at Michigan as a tailback, then was switched to primarily a blocking fullback following his sophomore season. With the unveiling of a new offense this fall, it means changes once again.

Like so many Michigan players, Gerald White is a role player. He understands the importance of each and every job on the football field.

"Everything is the team, team, team. When they asked me to switch, I did it for the team. I would have even played guard," claimed White.

The transition from tailback to fullback was not that hard for White to handle. "After playing for two years, the plays become engraved in your mind, and the new plays I learned at fullback were fresh in my mind," said Gerald. Learning the fullback blocking schemes has actually helped White when he is called upon to carry the ball from the tailback position.

With a new offense being installed this fall, White has had to learn a new offensive scheme once again. "Being able to run from a split back field, the I, and the wishbone will keep the other teams off balance," said White. With the new offense, White will see action at the halfback, fullback, and even the tailback position, especially in the I in short yardage and goal line situations.

White is not new to changes or adjustments. He was born in Titusville, FL, but spent a great deal of time in New York, California, and Las Vegas. While living in Las Vegas, White acquired a fascination for the Stardust Hotel. A childhood friend found it easier to pronounce "Stardust" rather than "Gerald White", so the nickname "Stardust" stuck.

During his high school years, White returned to Titusville to live with his grandmother. He was an All-American his senior year and was considered one of the top five prep running backs in the country. White gained 1,738 yards that season and helped lead the Terriers to the state AAA title. His Grandmother's graduation present for Gerald was a gold Superman "S" on "It was always my dream to play for Michigan. When I saw all the excitement of the Wolverine helmets bobbing up and down in the tunnel and the touching of the M banner on ABC and CBS, I knew that Michigan was for me."

a gold chain. "It stands for Stardust and not for Superman," said White, laughing.

Michigan coach Bo Schembechler first heard of White when Vic Beck, a retired Michigan State Police sergeant, was vacationing in Florida. Beck saw White, then a high school sophomore, play against Venice High School. He was so impressed with White's performance that he immediately wrote Schembechler about White's college potential. "He's the one who got everything rolling," said Gerald. "He told Bo I was interested in Michigan, and he said Bo was interested in me." Beck can sometimes be spotted in Michigan Stadium cheering on his favorite recruit.

Michigan's winter weather scares off some recruits, but not White. "I don't like the South because of the heat, I like the cold," said White.

He seriously considered attending the University of Pittsburgh, but chose Michigan for two reasons. Not only was Bo and the Wolverine coaching staff impressive, but also the tradition and excitement of Michigan football was a deciding factor. "It was always my dream to play for Michigan," said White. "When I saw all the excitement of the Wolverine helmets bobbing up and down in the tunnel and the touching of the 'M' banner on ABC and CBS, I knew that Michigan was for me."

The transition from high school to college football was not difficult for White, but frustrating. White suffered many injuries including an ankle injury sustained in a pre-season practice. His duty as a backup tailback was stopped late in the season when he reinjured his ankle. "The injuries were frustrating, because I couldn't show people that I could play and compete," claimed White.

Injuries plagued Gerald in his sophomore year also, but not on the field. After eating dinner with his teammates, White attempted to open a door by pushing a glass window, and the glass gave way. His arm went through and his right bicep was sliced open in six places. Forty stitches and three weeks later, White returned to the playing field.

White took the blow harder than most. It was his second debilitating injury in less than two years. Despite missing some games, he gained 66 yards against Indiana and rushed for 57 yards on 10 carries against Ohio State.

During February of his sophomore year, Gerald's biggest fan and closest friend moved up to Ann Arbor — his mother, Maria. "Having my mother, brother and sister up here has made things a lot easier," said White. "I don't have to worry about them, and I can concentrate on school and football."

With injuries healed, and the scars to prove it, White had a banner junior season. He started in all 12 games at fullback and ran from the tailback position in most games. He topped the squad in rushing touchdowns with seven and added four more via the air. White finished the season second on the team in rushing with a career high 564 yards on 133 attempts for a 4.2 average. He also caught a pass in every regular season game piling up 18 receptions and 123 yards.

White was named Offensive Hustler by the Michigan coaching staff for his efforts in the Maryland game. The following week he grabbed two touchdown passes in a win over Wisconsin. Against Iowa he earned Offensive Hustler honors and scored Michigan's only touchdown on a 6-yard reception.

White led the team with 75 yards on the ground against Illinois and completed a 40-yard pass to Paul Jokisch while playing tailback. He also hit paydirt on a 19-yard run, the longest TD run of his career. However, White had a costly fumble in Illinois territory late in the game with the score tied at 3-3. Gerald had a hard time dealing with it. "I could not justify fumbling the ball to myself. I didn't talk to anyone for a week; not even my mother," said White.

"I put it in the back of my mind the next week. I cannot totally forget about it; I must use it as a learning experience," he added.

And he did just that. The following week he gained 92 yards against Gerald White (22) celebrates a touchdown.

Minnesota and scored two touchdowns while being named Offensive Champion. The very next week he gave his best performance with 110 yards on 29 carries against the Buckeyes. In the Fiesta Bowl, White scored the first Michigan touchdown to close out a very successful season — not only for the Wolverines but for Gerald as well.

"The main goals I have for this season are team goals," said White.

"I want to win the Big Ten and go to the Rose Bowl. And the National championship is in the back of a lot of peoples minds, including mine," he added.

After graduating, the sports management and communications major hopes to own a sporting goods shop and aspires to run a sports agency. But in the meantime, the Michigan "star" hopes to leave his competition in the "dust" this season.

Designers, engineers, line workers, suppliers, dealers. Blue collar, white collar. Union, management. All working together. Doing what it takes to get the job done better than anybody else can do it. And then, doing a little more. Not just for a paycheck, but for a commitment. A commitment to excellence that doesn't stop when the whistle blows. Every car company talks about it. One car company has it.

All of these people appear in Chrysler Corporation's film, "To be the best: The men and women of Chrysler," which is available on free loan to show your group or organization. To order a film or tape version, call (813) 541-5763 or write to Modern Talking Pictures, 5000 Park Street North, St. Petersburg, Florida 33709.

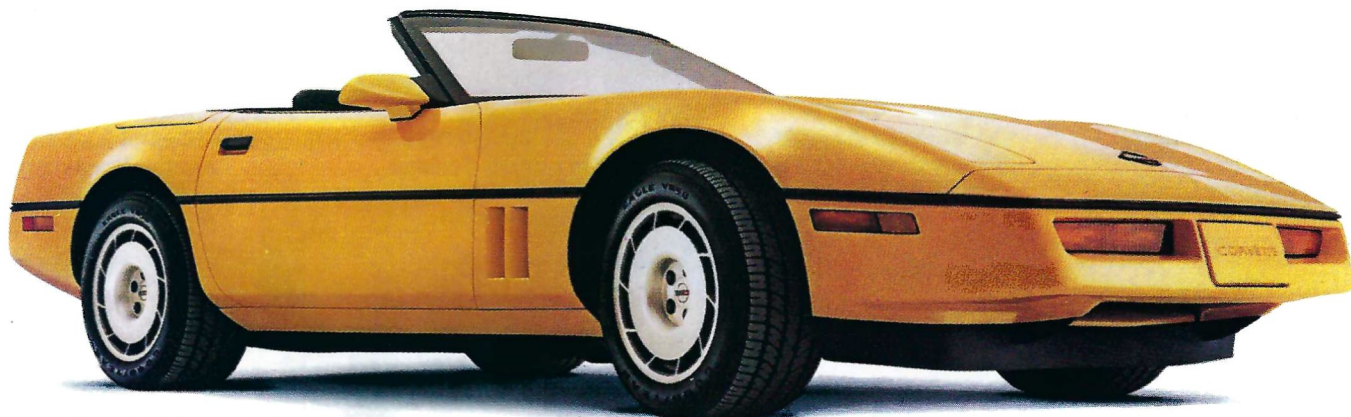

Working together to be the best.

The race-winning Corvette of Rippie/Anderson Motorsports.

The fact that both of these Corvettes are on Goodyear Eagle street radials is no coincidence.

The 1986 Corvette Convertible.
Factory specified tires: Goodyear Eagle VR "Gatorback" street radials.

Every Corvette made since 1984 comes with just one make of tire: the Goodyear Eagle VR "Gatorback" street radial.

Which is no coincidence.

Because the Eagle VR "Gatorback" was developed specifically for the Corvette's tremendous cornering, handling and speed capabilities.

Considering the performance of the Eagle VR "Gatorback," it's not surprising that successful SCCA Showroom Stock Endurance racing teams like Rippie/Anderson also choose an Eagle street radial.*

The Eagle VR S "Gatorback," a version of the Eagle VR "Gatorback" made for ultimate grip rather than ultimate treadlife.

The success of both the Eagle VR and VR S "Gatorbacks" has a common source:

Goodyear's ability to engineer better high-performance radials. For virtually every performance car.

So it's really no coincidence that the Eagle VR is to be found on every Corvette made.

Or that the Eagle VR S is the favorite tire of people who race Corvettes in the SCCA Showroom Stock Endurance Series.

In fact, when you think of how the Eagles perform, it's no coincidence at all.

Football Saturday

'M' Football Saturday — "Behind the Scenes"

in Michigan Stadium on football Saturdays, ask those who work to put it all together how they feel and the answer is unanimous: It's great!

"We get a lot of help from hundreds of people," says associate athletic director Don Lund, speaking not only of individuals who work before, during and after the games, but also of the Ann Arbor police who, he says, "perform above the call of duty" on field security and traffic control.

And, says assistant athletic director Will Perry, "Football Saturday in Ann Arbor is one of the most gigantic sporting events in the country. A million things can go wrong," he says. "What's amazing is that we pull it off every Saturday, but not without the cooperation of hundreds of people."

Completed in time for the Oct. 1, 1927 game against Ohio Wesleyan (which U-M won 33-0, led by Captain Bennie Oosterbaan and LaVerne "Kip" Taylor), Michigan Stadium has hosted more than 24 million fans. Originally built to hold 72,000, seating capacity increased gradually to today's 101,701. Total attendance, however, which includes press, security, ambulance crews, plant crews, teams, band members, ushers, ticket takers and sellers, concession workers and program sellers, often exceeds 106,000. Today's game will be the 68th consecutive crowd of more than 100,000 fans.

Says Bruce Madej, "M" sports information director, of the work required to make football Saturdays a success: "It's like going to school, only we don't 'cram' the night before."

Madej, who is in charge of issuing press passes and coordinating press box activities, recalls that at the 1984 homecoming game against Iowa, "we issued 630 press passes, had eight radio stations from Iowa, seven from Michigan," not to mention the regular press who attend each game. CBS, he adds, asked for 60-70 passes; Pro Am Sports got 30.

"That press box is an important communication center between the field and the fans," says Madej. Whether they're at home or in the stadium, "sometimes it's the only way fans find out what's happening on the field."

To Wilf Martin, plant manager in athletics, a full stadium is just the tip of the iceberg. His 15-person crew begins at 7 a.m., checking restrooms for water pressure, lights, turnstiles, heaters in the press box, "A little bit of everything," he says.

The plant crew also brings in golf carts to transport handicapped individuals, press and police, sets up ambulance carts for the first crew, distributes field padding and markers, and during the game, secures gates and the tunnel area.

As the game nears, says Perry, "the pressure builds, the pace quickens. While we check to see if the scoreboard is working and the facilities are operating, the baseball team takes off the tarp, the band comes in, the teams arrive, the press sets up, the fans file in. All of a sudden you realize there are over 100,000 people in here!"

For hungry ticket holders, Glenn Timpe, manager of Gladieux Foods, makes sure the concession stands are stacked with hot dogs, peanuts, popcorn, caramel corn and beverages. Between 500-600 workers and vendors, including many local high school students, sell between 17,000 and 30,000 hot dogs at 55-60 food stands and 1,300 five gallon tanks of soft drinks.

While members of the U-M baseball and softball teams sell programs, several Ann Arborites take tickets, usher and assist with field security. To veteran ushers and ticket takers like Sam Schlecht (50 years), Jerry Huller (36 years), Chester Green (39 years) and Bud Stein (51 years), working at Michigan is a labor of love. Another, Dick Burdick, "can't remember when I started, but it doesn't matter. I wouldn't be doing anything else on football Saturdays."

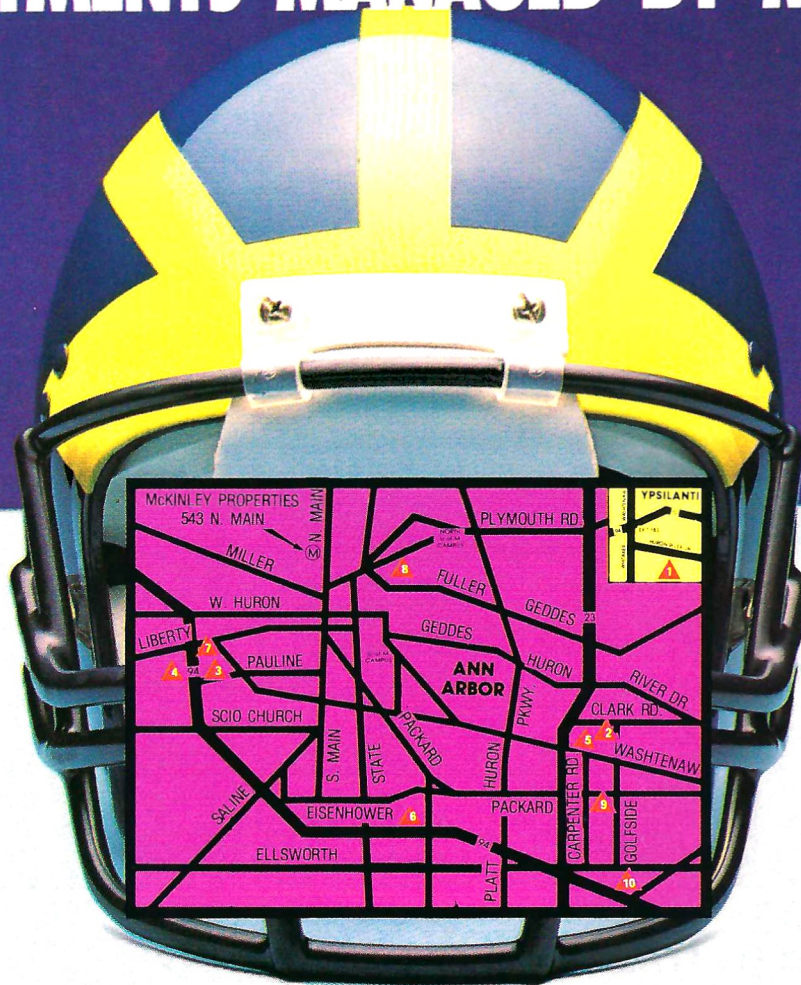

And what about the trash left behind? From 8 to 10 a.m. Sunday morning, Gabriel Richard High School students and their families work vigorously on clean-up, earning money for their own athletic program.

"We work hard to get everything orchestrated," says Madej. "It seems that just as we get going, the season ends."

Your Cooperation Is Vital In Michigan Stadium

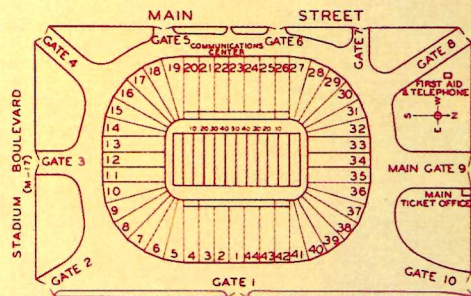

To Michigan Stadium Fans:

"Each year as our football crowds exceed 100,000, we realize that a few do their best to spoil the day for the majority. We are constantly trying to control this minority who demonstrate poor manners during the games. We have restricted alcohol, packages and other items from being brought into the stadium for convenience of our spectators, and also to aid us with crowd control. We intend to enforce this posted rule stringently.

"We will not tolerate the dangerous practice of passing persons through the stands. Police and university authorities will patrol this unlawful act and violators will be prosecuted.

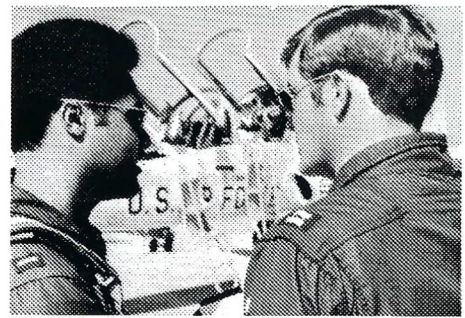

"We appeal to all Michigan fans to demonstrate good sportsmanship and fair play. Saturday afternoon in Michigan Stadium always has been a special day for everyone, and you can help us maintain that Michigan tradition. Coach Schembechler and his Wolverines join us in asking your support in keeping Michigan football first-class on and off the field."

Director of Athletics

is a question a lot of young people in high school and college are asking. Then, even if you get the finest college degree, where can you use it meaningfully?

Perhaps the answer lies in becoming an Air Force officer through Air Force ROTC. We have many different career areas in which specialists of all kinds are needed. And as an Air Force commissioned officer you can have unequalled opportunity for leadership and management experience, plus an excellent starting salary and benefits package.

Consider Air Force ROTC as a gateway to a great way of life for you. Find out about the benefits of a four, three or two-year scholarship that pays $100 a month, tuition, book costs and lab fees. Couple that with what will be waiting after graduation, and you have the answer to what you've been looking for.

Michigan Songs

THE YELLOW AND BLUE

Sing to the colors that float in the light;
 Hurrah for the Yellow and Blue!
 Yellow the stars as they ride through the night
 And reel in a rollicking crew;
 Yellow the field where ripens the grain
 And yellow the moon on the harvest wain: — Hail!
 Hail to the colors that float in the light
 Hurrah for the Yellow and Blue!

Blue are the billows that bow to the sun
 When yellow-robed morning is due.
 Blue are the curtains that evening has spun
 The slumbers of Phoebus to woo;
 Blue are the blossoms to memory dear
 And blue is the sapphire and gleams like a tear; — Hail!
 Hail to the ribbons that nature has spun;
 Hurrah for the Yellow and Blue!

Here's to the college whose colors we wear,
 Here's to the hearts that are true!
 Here's to the maid of the golden hair,
 And eyes that are brimming with blue!
 Garlands of blue bells and maize intertwine,
 And hearts that are true and voices combine: — Hail!
 Hail to the college whose colors we wear;
 Hurrah for the Yellow and Blue!

VARSIITY

Men of Michigan, on to victory,
 Every man in every play; —
 Michigan expects her varsity to win today.
 Rah! Rah! Rah! Rah! Rah!
 Win for Michigan.

Varsity, down the field,
 Never yield, raise high our shield.
 March on to victory for Michigan
 And the Maize and Blue, — Oh, Varsity
 We're for you,
 Here for you, to cheer for you,
 We have no fear for you,
 Oh, Varsity.

Homecoming Band Show

The Michigan Marching Band welcomes you to Homecoming 1986. Today's pre-game and half-time shows will feature the Michigan Alumni Band, made up of former members of the Michigan Marching Bands under the direction of William D. Revelli, George Cavender, Glenn Richter, and since 1980 Eric A. Becher.

The origin of the Michigan Band was a grass-roots student effort. In November 1896, the University of Michigan Band held its first rehearsal in Harris Hall. At the behest of University President James Burrill Angell that the newly-formed band prove itself to be a "sincere venture," the U-M band gave its first public performance in 1897 at old University Hall on the occasion of the Law School's annual observance of Washington's birthday. The first appearance on a Michigan football field was in the fall of 1898.

At the turn of the century the Michigan Band was still a student-run organization. Through the efforts of student-conductor Eugene "Ike" Fisher, the band gradually was granted official recognition and support by the university. This led to the hiring of Captain Wilfred Wilson in 1915 to conduct the band. Under the guidance of "Cap" Wilson, and later Nicholas Falcone, the Michigan Band grew in membership and in stature.

A new era began in 1935 with the advent of William D. Revelli who, through nearly four decades of leadership, brought the Michigan Bands to their position of international recognition and acclaim. After nineteen years of assisting Dr. Revelli, George Cavender became Conductor of the Marching Band in 1971 and added greatly to the fame and prestige of the organization. Glenn Richter conducted the band during the 1979 season. Eric Becher assumed the leadership in 1980, and will enter his seventh season as conductor this fall.

Michigan's famous fight song "The Victors" was written in November of 1898. Louis Elbel, a music student at the university wrote the words and the music in celebration of a last minute 12-11 Michigan victory over football rival Chicago. The first band performance of "The Victors" was given by John Philip Sousa's band in May of 1899 in Ann Arbor. The March King called "The Victors" the best college march ever written.

Florida State University, a coeducational institution and a senior member of the nine universities in the state system, is in Tallahassee, Florida, the state's capital.

Located just a few blocks from the Capitol, the Florida State campus is considered to be one of the most beautiful in the Southeast. The 347-acre campus is covered with hardwoods, pines and palms as well as springtime greenery that combines the blossoms of camellias, azaleas and dogwoods.

The 22,000 students currently enrolled at Florida State learn from a faculty of 1,527 which includes four members of the National Academy of Sciences. The University has 450 administrative and professional staff and 2,359 career service positions. Nearly 5,000 part-time employees, most of them students, are on the payroll each year.

Florida State now offers students the opportunity to choose from more than 100 career options in arts and sciences, business, communications, criminology, education, engineering, home economics, law, library and information studies, music, nursing, social sciences, social work, theater and visual arts. Honors programs are available for top students.

The University's location in the state capital affords excellent study, research and internship opportunities in the areas of government, social sciences, law and policy sciences.

Members of the University community, as well as local residents, take advantage of continuing education opportunities offered by the Center for Professional Development and Public Service, headquartered in the Florida State Conference Center.

Florida State is setting the pace as higher education in Florida prepares to enter the 21st century. One of the few institutions of learning in the United States with its own supercomputer, FSU is attracting researchers from around the globe. A Control Data CYBER 205 supercomputer, installed during March 1985, is the forerunner for the world's fastest computer, the ETA-10, by ETA Systems, which will be operational at FSU in October 1986. With programs such as the Supercomputer Computations Research Institute (SCRI), a substantial number of budding scientists and engineers can now realistically expect a chance to get supercomputer experience before they graduate from Florida State.

In 1982, Florida State received the Panama City campus, originally a part of the University of West Florida, through administrative transfer from the Board of Regents and the state legislature. Today approximately 85 percent of the courses offered in Panama City are taught by full-time Tallahassee faculty.

FSU President Bernard F. Sliger takes pride not only in the programs, but also in the people — students, faculty, administrators and staff — who make Florida State a successful monument to learning.

FSU Coaches

Underneath it all, there can be no question that Bobby Bowden is a great football coach. In a day and time when success is measured by wins and losses, just take a look at his yardstick. Only five of America's division I head coaches have won more football games. Only nine division I coaches have a better winning percentage.

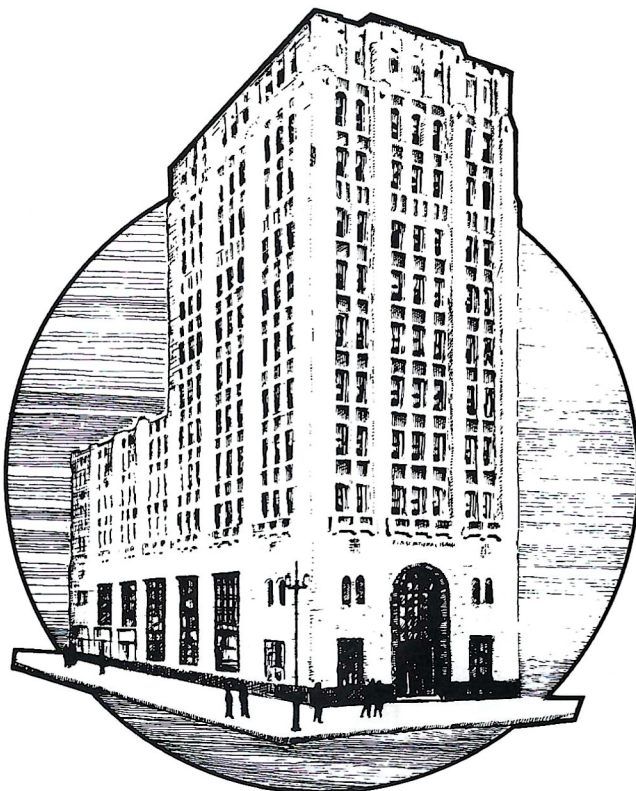

Since he set foot in Seminole territory in 1976, Bowden's Florida State teams have played 117 games. He has won 83 of those. And nobody, but nobody, has played a consistently tougher schedule.

What Bobby Bowden gives Florida State goes much deeper than just a football coach. Encompassed in this 56-year-old fireball is the very essence of Florida State football. He is the spokesman, the personality, the heart and soul of the program he has built into a national power.

MICHIGAN BASKETBALL

SQUAD TO OPEN SEASON WITH NIT BATTLE

Coach Bill Frieder's Michigan basketball team opens the 1986-87 season with a Crisler Arena match-up against Bradley in the first round of the Preseason National Invitational Tournament. Led by one of the nation's premier back court tandems in Antoine Joubert and Gary Grant, the Wolverines will be looking for their fourth straight championship following the '84 NIT title and back-to-back Big Ten crowns.

Frieder, who enters his seventh season with a career mark of 130-61, has guided Michigan to three consecutive 20-win seasons for the first time in the school's history. In fact, Frieder garnered 100 victories faster than any other Michigan coach.

With backcourt leadership and a host of talented, though untested, youngsters in the frontcourt, this year's edition of Wolverines should provide plenty of excitement in Crisler Arena this season.

Alicia Seegert

ALL-AMERICA SEEGERT GRABS RARE HONOR FOR SOFTBALL SQUAD

Michigan is a strong favorite to win the Big Ten Championship this year as it returns all of its members from last year's squad, including All-American Alicia Seegert. Seegert becomes the first softball player in Michigan history to be named an All-American. Not since 1981 has a non-track or swimming Michigan woman athlete been named to an All-American team.

MOVING UP . . .

After finishing fifth at last year's Big Ten Championships, the Michigan women's swim team is looking to notch one of the top spots in the conference this season with a team loaded with talent. Junior Christi Vedejs and sophomore Stacie Fruth return to defend their Big Ten titles in the 200-yd breaststroke and 1650-yd freestyle, respectively. Sophomores Becky Fenson and Susie Rabiah also return and are expected to be among the top freestyle sprinters in the conference.

With the addition of 22 swimmers, the Wolverines have the much needed depth that was lacking last year. Among the top newcomers is Gwen DeMaat (Grand Rapids, MI), three-time Class "B" Swimmer-of-the-Year and state record holder in the 100-yd, 200-yd and 500-yd freestyles, and the 200 I.M.

Sophomore Claire Trammell returns after earning All-American diving honors last season. Junior Bonnie Pankopf and sophomore Carolyn Kennedy will also help to continue the Michigan tradition of diving excellence under head coach Dick Kimball.

WOMEN'S TRACK TEAM LOSES TWO GREATS

The women's track team has become a prime supporter of the youth movement as they add nearly 20 freshmen to this year's squad. Due to graduation, the Wolverines lost the services of five-time All-American Sue Schroeder and three-time All-American Cathy Schmidt. Last year, both gained All-American honors in the indoor and outdoor seasons.

LADY TUMBLERS SET FOR '87

Leading performers for the Wolverines will be senior Heidi Cohen and junior Angela Williams. Cohen is a two-time selection to the All Big Ten Academic At-Large team, while Williams looks to bounce back from last year's season-ending injury. Williams won the Big Ten all-around title as a freshman.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

FELDMAN, BASFORD SHOOT FOR NEW HEIGHTS

Looking to jump into the upper division of the Big Ten, head coach Bud VanDeWege, Jr. is optimistic heading into the 1986-87 season. Loaded with talent, the Wolverines return such veterans as the nation's third-leading free throw shooter, junior Lorea Feldman, and junior guard Sarah Basford.

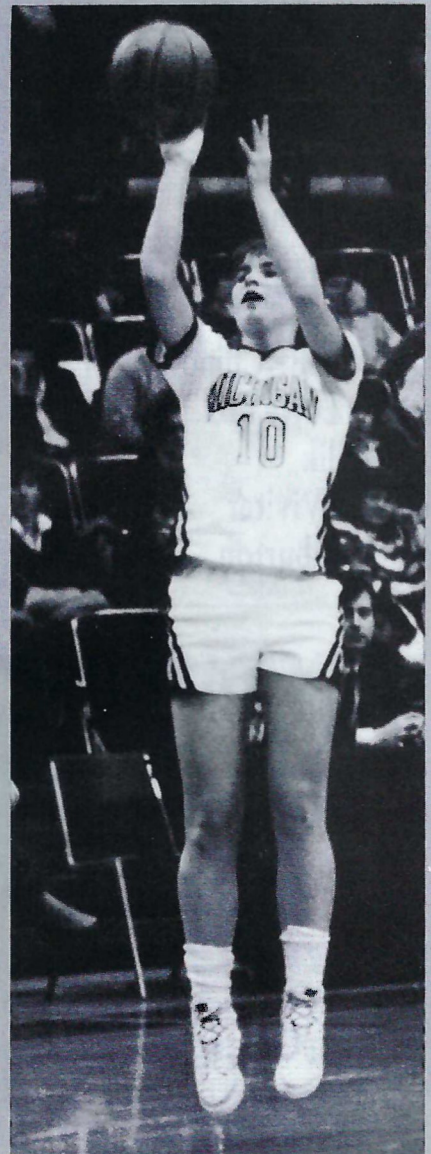

Michigan posted its most successful season ever last year as the Wolverines went 14-14 overall and 8-10 in the conference.

BASEBALL TEAM TO DEFEND TITLE

Coach Bud Middaugh's University of Michigan baseball team will be on hand in the Metrodome in Minneapolis this spring to defend the Wheaties Tournament of Champions title won this past season against the Miami Hurricanes.

The 1987 Tournament will feature the Wolverines and the host Golden Gophers of Minnesota as Big Ten representatives while UCLA and Maine will provide the challenge from each coast.

Michigan won the 1986 tournament on a dramatic two-out, two-strike grand slam homer by Casey Close against Miami's ace Rick Raether.

Red Wings Exhibition at Yost Arena.

National Hockey League action will be on campus, Sunday, Sept. 28 as the Detroit Red Wings will meet the Toronto Maple Leafs in pre-season action.

The Norris Division foes will meet in Yost Ice Arena for the 7:30 p.m. contest. Tickets, on sale at the Athletic Department ticket office, cost $8 for the general public, $4 for Michigan students with proper ID.

WOMEN NETTERS OPEN FALL SEASON

Like the football team, the women's tennis team opened its fall season at Notre Dame. Coach Bitsy Ritt's netters took part in the Irish Invitational last weekend, and will next face Marquette in a home match on October 10. The Wolverines are led by senior Tricia Horn and juniors Erin Ashare, Tina Basle and Leslie Mackey.

ALL-AMERICANS LEAD WAY FOR TRACKSTERS IN '87

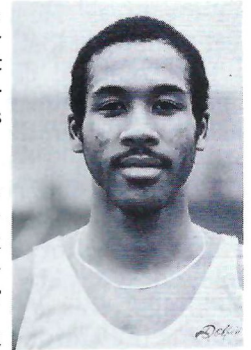

You can't blame coach Jack Harvey for being optimistic this year. He returns some of the most outstanding performers in Michigan track history, and expectations — as well as hopes — are high this season. Among the Wolverine leaders for '87...

*Thomas Wilcher, a three-time All-American and last year's NCAA Indoor hurdles champion

*Omar Davidson, an '85 All-American and Big Ten indoor quarter-mile record holder

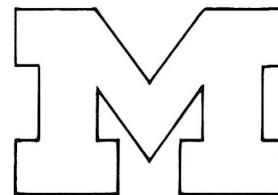

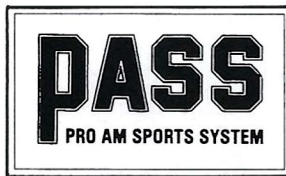

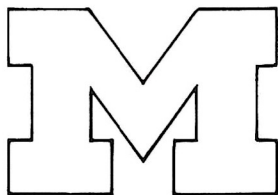

*Chris Brewster, a cross country All-American and indoor 5,000-meter champion

*Butch Starmack, the defending Big Ten and Central Collegiate indoor triple jump champion.

Medical Campus — “Historical Background”

By Diana Anderson

If old “Doc” Nagele were to stand in the middle of U-M’s Medical Campus today, he probably wouldn’t be too surprised at its size — he always believed that medical students at Michigan were destined for greatness. He would, however, feel somewhat lost.

The “medical campus” he knew as a young janitor in the 1850’s consisted of one building — located not too far from President Tappan’s house on the fenced-in 40 acre campus. The land just north of the Detroit Observatory on Ann Street, covered today by Medical Center buildings, was a vacant hill overlooking the Huron River valley.

Known simply as the Medical Building, the three-storied structure was on East University where the Randall Physics Lab stands today.

In October 1850, when the “medical department” opened its doors to its first 90 students, Nagele was there with his hand bell to signal the beginning of class. That day heralded a new beginning for medical education at the U-M and marked the first of 50 years that Nagele would stand on those medical building steps with his bell.

In those days, the medical curriculum, while not quite up to today’s rigorous standards, was considered one of the best in the country. For six months, four days a week, pharmacology, anatomy and physiology lectures were held for two hours each morning and afternoon. Discussion sections met on Saturday mornings. During summer “break,” students were expected to get clinical experience as physicians’ apprentices.

Enrollment expanded rapidly — to 576 in 1866, the largest in the country — and it wasn’t long before Regents, students and the “medical department” faculty realized that, in addition to larger classroom and laboratory facilities, something very important was also needed: a hospital — one that would be connected to the medical school. It was a maverick thought in its day.

In 1869, the Regents appropriated funds to convert one of the four faculty residences into the world’s first university-owned hospital. Located where the Chemistry Building stands today, the 20-bed Campus Pavillion Hospital contained no operating or dressing rooms, but rather served as a “receiving” facility, free of charge to Ann Arbor residents who agree to serve as “patients” for medical instruction.

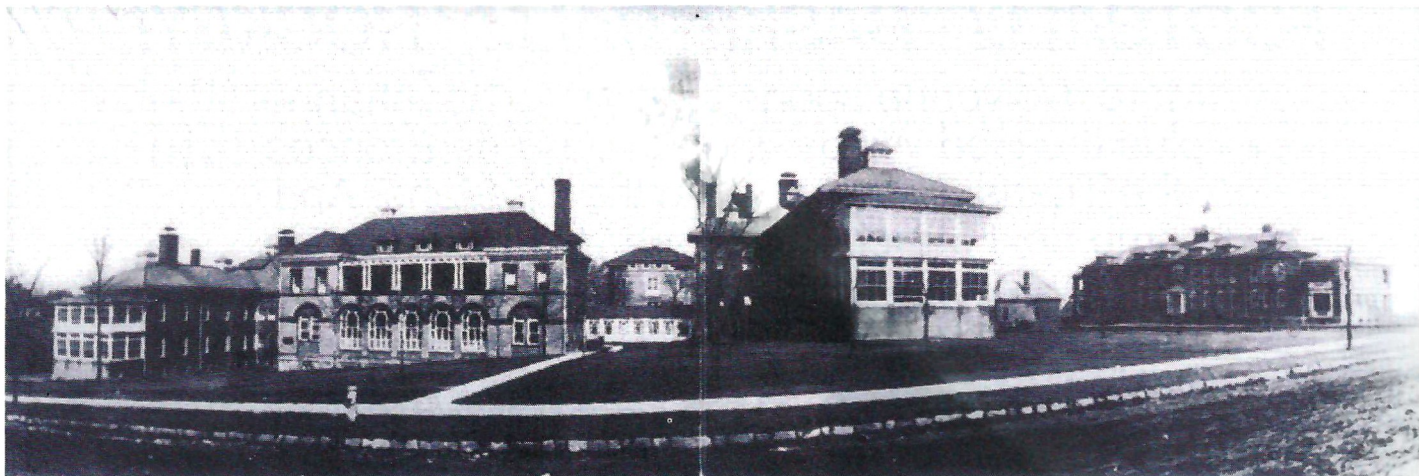

By 1890, expansion of the existing hospital facilities could no longer be accommodated on the small, crowded central campus as demands for more patients, laboratory and classroom space, and for a homeopathic school increased. Over the next 35 years, several hospital buildings were constructed on Catherine Street, east of Glen.

Known as Catherine Street Hospital until 1925, it was considered one of the finest teaching hospitals in the country.

In 1891, the Catherine Street complex consisted of a medical ward for convalescing patients and a homeopathic hospital (in 1891 it was moved to what is today’s North Hall, across from the Exhibit Museum), a surgical ward and administrative offices. Later additions included a pediatric unit (contributed in 1903 by the wife A.B. Palmer, M.D., an early dean who was responsible for an 1868 movement to increase clinical instruction in the medical school), a Psychopathic Hospital (1906), a contagious ward building (1914) and quarters for eye, ear, nose and throat specialties (1917).

In the meantime, medical school buildings remained on the central campus, some of them until the 1950’s. The “old” medical building (destroyed by fire in 1911) was expanded, the new West Medical Building was built in 1904 to house bacteriology and physiological chemistry departments and administrative offices (the current location of the School of Natural Resources), and the East Medical Building was completed in 1925 (currently the C.C. Little Building).

By 1900, U-M’s hospital and medical complexes were considered

The Catherine Street Hospital complex as it appeared at the turn of the century. From the left: the medical ward with its medicine, neurology, dermatology and obstetrics clinics; the Palmer Pediatric Unit; ophthalmology and otology clinics (center); surgery and gynecology; the general office and the Psychopathic Ward.

“Historical Background”

“well endowed.” Doc Nagele turned 90, and when a clock was installed to toll the class hours, the Regents attempted to dismiss him as feeble. But medical professors refused to lecture unless they heard his bell.

Those first 50 years were full of medical innovations. Improved anesthesia methods, sterilization and surgical techniques, clinics for obstetrics and childhood diseases, nervous and mental disorders, and ophthalmology and otolaryngology were established.

As medical knowledge grew, medical school entrance requirements tightened. A typical entrance exam in 1875 challenged the budding doctors’ minds with questions like: “Name the States of the Union which lie on the left bank of the Mississippi river, giving them in order from north to south.” “What is a peninsula? Give an example from our country.” “What is a biped? Give an example.” “How many yards of Brussels carpet will be required to cover the floor of a room 15 x 18 feet square, the carpet being 3/4 of a yard wide?”

In the early 1900s, Regents and medical school faculty saw the need for continued expansion if the university was to remain a leader amongst medical schools. They purchased land southeast of the Catherine Street Hospital in 1920 for a new 800-bed complex. Initially called “Groesbeck’s Folly” after Michigan’s governor — because no one believed that sufficient numbers of patients would come to Ann Arbor to be treated — the building survived a major setback when funds ran out and construction was halted for two years.

On Aug. 12, 1925, 595 patients were moved from the old hospital into the new University Hospital (now “Old Main”). Its opening inaugurated an expanding program that would eventually include clinics, surgical wings, large wards, private rooms, classrooms, laboratories and offices, and a five-story Neuropsychiatric Institute. It wasn’t until 1977 that the last of the old Catherine Street buildings were demolished to make room for today’s Taubman Medical Library.

Currently, U-M’s world-famous Medical School boasts 882 students and 667 instructional faculty. With the addition of the ultra-modern University Hospital and Taubman Medical Library, the Medical Center has become one of the largest medical complexes in the country. We can only imagine what it will be like 100 years from now, just as old “Doc” Nagele used to do 100 years ago.

This shot of University Hospital, known fondly as “Old Main,” was taken in the late 1920’s. Note the many parking spaces available. “Old Main” was opened Aug. 12, 1925 and served the University community for more than 60 years.
