Growth and community concern characterize the University of Louisville in the 1980's.

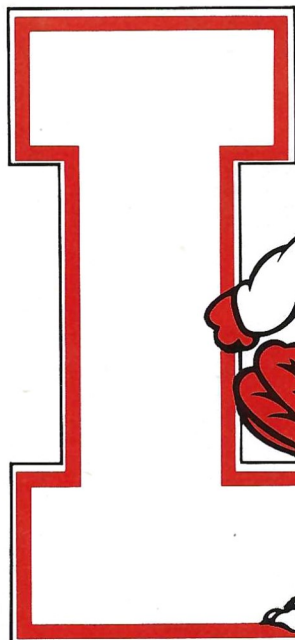

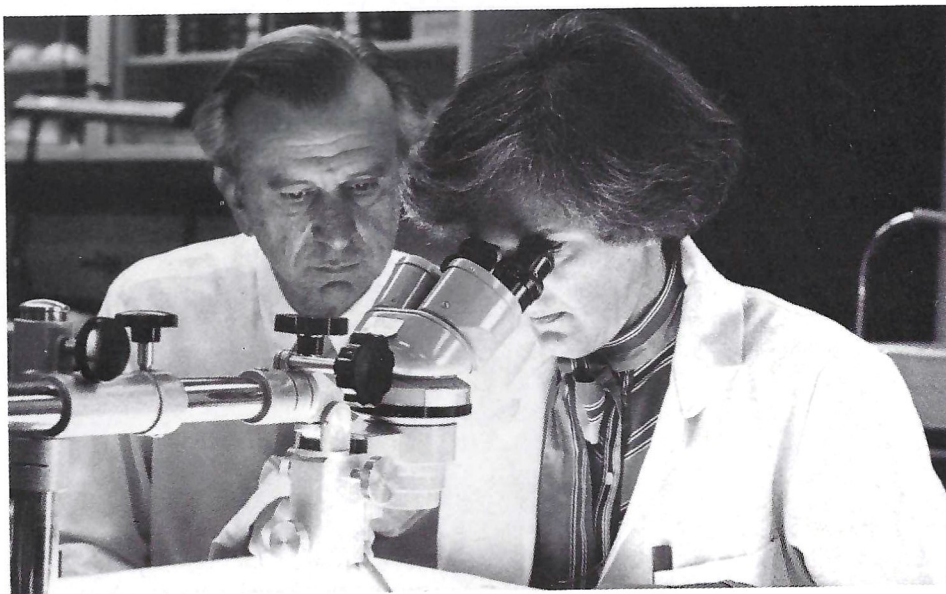

One of the fastest growing universities in the nation in the 1970's — enrollment doubled during the past decade to a current student body of just under 20,000 — U of L's enrollment has now steadied. The University is a state-supported institution with diverse schools and colleges offering undergraduate, graduate and professional programs. It is well known for its music school, for its professional programs in medicine, law, and dentistry and for its growing business school.

Most students begin undergraduate programs in the College of Arts and Sciences and spend their first two years studying a broad range of general education topics before choosing a major area of study.

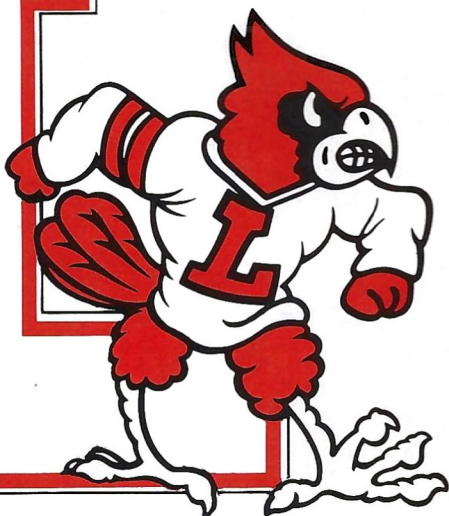

Areas of study include the sciences, humanities, health sciences, engineering, law, business, police administration, education, social work, music and urban studies. The University offers more than 247 degrees and certificates in a total of 135 major fields of study.

U of L's four campuses span the city of Louisville. Kentucky's largest city, Louisville is the hub of a metropolitan area with nearly a million people. The city boasts 14 museums plus nationally recognized resident companies in theatre, ballet, symphony and opera. Sports enthusiasts enjoy professional baseball, horse racing and a variety of intercollegiate and amateur athletics. As a major commercial and industrial center, Louisville presents many opportunities for students and faculty to test theoretical knowledge. At U of L, the city becomes part of the student's education.

WILLIAM C. OLSEN Director of Athletics

Twenty-eight years. That's quite a long time. When Bill Olsen arrived on the University of Louisville campus as a student 28 years ago, the Cardinals had just posted a 9-1 football mark under Coach Frank Camp, U of L had made its first football bowl appearance and Cardinal Stadium was a year old.

Another 28 seasons, two more bowl appearances and a renovated Cardinal Stadium later, Olsen still clings strongly to the ideas of making Louisville the state of Kentucky's best school in athletics and academics.

And since becoming the Director of Athletics on June 23, 1980, Olsen has been a driving and innovative force in building a successful athletic program with the Cardinals.

"I believe academic and athletic excellence are compatible goals and that they must be the foundation of a solid program," he said. "I'm pleased to be a part of an administration committed to quality and excellence."

Successful in every phase of his athletic career, Olsen has set a number of goals to help U of L achieve self-sufficiency in athletics.

That was evident in December of 1984 when Olsen hired Howard Schnellberger to take over an under-developed football program. Olsen knew that in order for the school to compete with other universities, there was a need for the football unit to be upgraded. He used to dream of selling out all Cardinal basketball games, which U of L achieved in 1983. Selling out Cardinal Stadium, home of the Cards' football team, has now replaced that dream.

Another major step taken under Olsen's tenure has been the formation of the U of L Athletic Association, with President Donald C. Swain serving as chairman of a 23-member board of directors and Olsen as the executive director. Olsen also spear-headed an extensive campaign to gain U of L admittance in the College Football Association, an elite group of 52 major college football schools.

"Membership in the CFA is the result of an extensive effort in recent years to bring our football program to its highest level," said Olsen. "It reflects on our commitment to football and the response of fans to our efforts to build a quality football program."

Football attendance has increased annually as a result of the complete marketing effort since Olsen became athletic director. The average attendance figure has improved by an average of nearly 9,000 fans per game in his six years at U of L.

A native of Vincennes, Ind., Olsen is a Marine Corp veteran and holds two degrees from U of L — a bachelor's (1962) with honors in Biology, and a master's (1965).

Following his graduation from U of L, Olsen coached basketball at Louisville Westport High School, where he compiled a 125-30 record in seven seasons.

He joined the Cardinal basketball staff in 1969 and soon earned a reputation as one of college basketball's top recruiters.

He helped recruit an elite array of talent for the program including Darrell Griffith, Wesley Cox, Roger Burkman, Allen Murphy, Terry Howard, Phil Bond, Derek Smith, Jerry Eaves, Lancaster Gordon, Charles Jones and many others.

In addition to his basketball duties, he served as an assistant athletic director during 1974-75 under Dave Hart.

Married to the former Sharon Williamson of Vincennes, Ind., the Olsens have three children; Doug (19), who plays basketball for the University of Tampa, Lynn (17), and David (9).

Louisville hopes to brave Seminole uprising

Bobby Bowden

There is more than one Florida connection tonight as Louisville attempts to circle the wagons before an onslaught of Florida State Seminoles. Coach Bobby Bowden and Coach Howard Schnellenberger have warred before on a different turf when the Cardinal coach was at Miami. The last time the two coaches clashed was in 1983, the year of Miami's national championship, when Miami beat FSU 17-16. While at Miami, Schnellenberger won three of five games against Bowden's teams. There is also a more personal connection because U of L has almost 30 players from Florida on the roster. U of L assistant coach Mike Rodriguez might have mixed emotions and a personal stake as well. He is a FSU graduate.

The Series — The Seminoles lead the series 8-1. U of L's sole victory came in 1982 when the Cards nullified the 'Noles 41-14. Before U of L could get a big head about that victory, FSU came back the very next year to erase the Cards 59-0. In the six subsequent games, the Cards have managed but 34 points to the Seminoles' 257.

Last Meeting — (Oct. 20, 1983 in Tallahassee: FSU 51, U of L 7) Florida State dominated Louisville scoring 28 points in the first half and rolled to a 51-7 victory. Louisville was held to 194 yards in total offense while the Seminoles racked up 545 offensive yards. U of L quarterback Dean May separated his shoulder in the first quarter. Willie Shelby led the Cardinals with 14 carries for 73 yards. Louisville's only score came on Lamar Cummings' six-yard run.

The Coaches — U of L head coach Howard Schnellenberger (Kentucky '56) is in his second season with the Cardinals. The former Louisville Flaget High School star and Kentucky all-American has a 45-29 collegiate coaching record after six years as head coach in Louisville and Miami. He led Miami to the 1983 national championship with a 31-20 win over Nebraska in the Orange Bowl. He has also held coaching positions at Kentucky, Alabama, the Los Angeles Rams, Miami Dolphins and Baltimore Colts. Schnellenberger entered the season 23rd on the list of winningest active Division I-A coaches.

Florida State's Bobby Bowden (Samford '53) has compiled a 86-34-3 record at FSU in his 11th year as a head coach. Bowden has an overall record of 159-66-3 from heading coaching positions at Samford (1959-62) West Virginia 1970-75 and Florida State. Bowden entered the season 10th on the list of winningest active Division I-A coaches and sixth on the list of coaches with the most wins.

About the Seminoles — The Seminoles have weathered adversity, tragedy and scheduling enroute to a 3-2-1 record. After a nifty 24-0 shut-out of Toledo, FSU fell 34-17 on the road to Nebraska. Shortly after a tragic incident when one of the Seminole players was shot, the stunned Seminole squad tied North Carolina 10-10 in Tallahassee. Michigan prevailed 20-18 over the 'Noles in Ann Arbor. Since then the Seminoles have gathered themselves together and put on an offensive fireworks display. FSU rolled over Tulane 54-21 and wiped out Wichita 59-3, outscoring their opponents 113 to 24.

Against the Shockers of Wichita, junior quarterback Danny McManus passed for three first-half touchdowns. Junior running back David Palmer and frosh flanker Ronnie Lewis ran for two TD's apiece for FSU which led 52-0 after three periods. McManus, making just his second start of the season, led an offense that produced 295 yards in just the first half. After establishing a solid 38-0 lead, Bowden allowed Peter Tom Willis, Chip Ferguson and Alan Stewart take their turns at the helm.

The Seminole offense is led by Sammie Smith who has rushed 61 times for 340 yards. Victor Floyd has 309 yards on 54 carries. Give the ball to each of these players once and you may have yourself a first down. Each averages just over five yards per carry. Tanner Hollomon and his brother Darrin combined for 409 offensive yards. Herb Gainer has caught 18 passes for 301 yards and three touchdowns to lead the Seminole receiving corps. Kicker Derek Schmidt has been perfect on 21 extra point attempts but is 5-11 in field goals, missing 5 of seven attempts from more than 40 yards out. At quarterback, Ferguson has racked up the most yards (498) but has been picked off five times. McManus, taking over, has completed 62.7 percent of his passes for 448 yards and four touchdowns.

McGowan and Jones: a two-man wrecking crew

by Dan Pearson, Assistant Sports Information Director

Okay, it's Seminole trivia time. Your question for the day — what's "McGowan and Jones"? Your choices are: (a) a new detective series on CBS this fall, (b) a new band specializing in Southern Boogie, (3) the best college middle linebacking tandem in the country.

"Fred Jones is an NFL quality player," Burnham begins. "He plays the run extremely well. In fact, his only real weakness is coverage of backs, on pass plays and he has worked extremely hard this past year on that."

As far as McGowan goes, Burnham says that he may be the best in the country right now. Paul is the ideal in middle linebackers."

Together, Burnham doubts that there is a college team in the nation that has a better pair. "Individually both players are super," he says. "Together they only make each other better. They communicate well, alerting each other to what's going on. I feel pretty strongly that these two may be the best. Strong enough to say I wouldn't trade for two middle linebackers from any other college team."

With Henry Taylor graduating, an open starting position was up for grabs. McGowan wasted little time grabbing it.

It took only his second game as a starter to make a name for himself. In a nationally televised game against Nebraska, McGowan was a one-man wrecking crew. He made 10 tackles, including two for losses, and added four assists. McGowan's outstanding play led to a 17-13 upset win by Florida State and netted him Sports Illustrated's Defensive Player of the Week, along with similar accolades from the Associated Press.

In 1986, McGowan has been even BETTER. Through four games he had already collected 59 tackles — or an average of 14.75 per game. His statistics — 20 tackles vs. Michigan and 18 vs. Nebraska — bear out that the better the opponent, the better McGowan plays.

Jones' rise has been slower. A member of the Orlando Sentinel's "Sweet 16" team as a senior at South Miami High, Jones played sparingly as a freshman — making 18 tackles.

During the next two seasons, Jones earned a starting job and played well. He made 105 tackles as both a sophomore and a junior and had several outstanding years.

"I let too many things bother me the past couple of seasons," says Jones. But my attitude has changed now — I'm hoping to play every down like it's the most important of my life."

Jones' improvement between the end of last season and the beginning of this year has been remarkable. He was selected as the most improved in his area during spring ball and at almost 15 pounds lighter than last year, has improved his quickness and pass coverage.

His 1986 statistics are sparkling — even though they're not quite the numbers McGowan has put together. He had 42 stops after four games, including two tackles for loss and a quarterback sack.

Both players list making All-American as their goals. But put team success above everything. "If you don't want to play well enough to gain recognition, you probably don't belong out there," Jones says. "Obviously the team comes first. If the entire defense doesn't play well, it would be tough for anyone on that defense to make All-America."

Gruden measures up to some legends

by Jeff Spelman

Sports Information Student Assistant

Sometimes a simple change can make the difference between winning and losing a football game. For example, deciding who to play and where they could most help the team.

A few years ago, Howard Schnellenberger had a junior college transfer at Miami (Fla.) with tremendous potential at defensive back. Schnellenberger decided to move the young player to receiver. A simple change. But the outcome was remarkable. Last year the young man, Cincinnati Bengal Eddie Brown, was named AFC Rookie-of-the Year.

Just a month ago, Schnellenberger made another change. Although the move wasn't as drastic, it has turned out to be successful.

The coach decided it was time to turn the U of L offense over to sophomore quarterback Jay Gruden, who had been Ed Rubbert's backup for 12 games.

"We have to now give him the opportunity to lead the football team after a week's practice," Schnellenberger said after the Cardinals dropped their first two games of the season.

So Rubbert, who was just 312 yards shy of the U of L career passing record at the start of his senior year, was benched in favor of Gruden. This changing of the quarterbacks came only two weeks after Schnellenberger had announced that Rubbert was the Cardinals' No. 1 man.

"Jay will play some, if not a lot," the coach said before the 1986 season began. "When it becomes apparent Ed is not getting it accomplished, then I think I have a real relief pitcher to bring in and try to get it accomplished."

After the Cardinals were held scoreless in their first two games, Schnellenberger went to his bullpen and called on the younger and more mobile Gruden.

It was time for a change, one that even surprised Gruden.

"I was expecting to play the same role I played last year," he said. "When he (Schnellenberger) told me that I was going to start, I was excited to just go out and show what I can do."

Gruden has made an immediate impact. The Cardinals have won two of his four starts and had a chance to win the Cincinnati game in the closing minutes. He has thrown for 876 yards during those games while hitting 48 percent of his passes.

"He's given us a new sense of potential for the offensive unit which has stirred the entire group to play even harder," Schnellenberger said.

Gruden stirred up a lot of defenses last year with flashes of brilliance as the Cardinals back-up quarterback. He completed seven of eight passes and led U of L on an 84-yard scoring drive in his college debut at West Virginia.

Gruden saw more playing time later in the season when the U of L offense became stagnant. In the second-to-last game of the season, he replaced Rubbert at the end of the first quarter and exploded for 222 yards passing. Gruden struck again in the season finale against Eastern Kentucky with 232 yards.

By the end of the season, the freshman quarterback had racked up 839 yards while completing a school-record 56.9 percent of his passes.

"In his freshman year he performed better for us than Jim Kelly and Joe Namath and a lot of other quarterbacks I've been associated with," Schnellenberger said earlier this year.

Gruden threw for more yards and completed a higher percentage of passes than both of Schnellenberger's former pupils. Kelly threw for 721 yards and connected on 43 percent of his passes during his first year at Miami (Fla.). Namath completed 49 percent of his attempts for 765 yards at Alabama.

Despite those flattering comparisons and a successful freshman season, Gruden still remained the No. 2 quarterback. He did nothing to improve his situation in this year's opener when he completed five of seven passes at Illinois. You see, three of those completions were to Illini defenders.

But Gruden never lost confidence in himself and neither did his coach.

He got his long-awaited start in the home opener against Western Kentucky and responded with a solid performance. The young man, who spent his early years in Indiana before moving to Florida as a teenager, threw for 257 yards and two touchdowns. More importantly, he led U of L to its first win of the season.

Game No. 2 under Gruden was even better. The Cardinals coasted to a 31-0 half-time lead against Memphis St. The sophomore quarterback hit 19 passes for 272 yards and three touchdowns. None of his 30 attempts were intercepted.

"I was happy with my first two starts," Gruden said. "It (starting the game) is a lot easier because in the first quarter you get to see what the defense is doing. By the middle of the game, you know what they're doing and you have a better feel for the game."

Gruden also said practicing daily with the first team has helped him in the games.

Gruden and the Cardinals took a while to get untracked in his third start against Cincinnati. After missing all three of his first quarter attempts, the sophomore led U of L 53 yards in the final minute of the first half to set up a Danny Cerione field goal.

The Cardinals' two-game winning streak ended at Cincinnati and so did a personal streak for Gruden. He threw an interception in the second quarter breaking a string of 76 straight passes without an interception. Gruden was intercepted twice more by the Bearcats but he reached the 200-yard passing plateau for the fifth time in his brief career.

"I think he's made progress in every football game," Schnellenberger said.

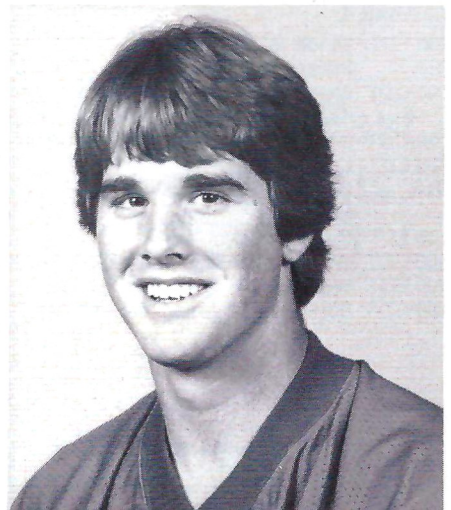

Gruden's football education began at an early age when his father was an assistant coach at Notre Dame. Jim Gruden is now the director of player personnel for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

"He (his father) has shown me the ropes," the younger Gruden said. "I've been around football my whole life. I've seen how top players act on and off the field."

His education must have included lessons in humility also.

"I'm really not great at anything," Gruden said. He also shrugged off the comparisons between him and some of Schnellenberger's former quarterbacks even though Gruden clearly had better freshman statistics.

"Stats don't mean much to me," Gruden said. "It's how the team does. (Jim) Kelly and (Joe) Namath were on great teams. I hope over the next few years we can be successful also."

Head Coach Howard Schnellenberger

When Howard Schnellenberger accepted the job as head coach at the University of Louisville on Dec. 1, 1984, he received some questioning glances from his acquaintances in the sportswriting field.

"About 80 percent thought I may have lost my mind," recalls Schnellenberger. "The other 20 percent weren't sure. Yet I don't think any of them will flat out say we can't get it done at Louisville."

Schnellenberger considered numerous offers to coach in professional football and with more established collegiate programs. But his surprise selection was Louisville.

"We came here because of the challenge," he emphasized. "We had been part of national championships at Alabama and Super Bowl champions in the NFL and then had our own national title at Miami. But Louisville represented something very different — it meant building a program that had never aspired to greatness, never played in a major bowl and never made the commitment to contend for the national title. Had they ever done either of the three before, I would not have accepted the job. I truly believe that when we do challenge for the championship, it will be the top story in college football history."

Part of the construction of a champion has included extensive changes in the facilities. A new locker room, a clubhouse, a new weight room, a new training room are just some of the changes. Ten acres of natural turf practice fields under sprinklers, refurbished offices and meeting rooms are other changes. A renovated dormitory that features a permanent study hall area, meeting rooms, a games room as well as newly carpeted and furnished commons areas that will welcome the football Cardinals home.

"If we are to win the national championship at Louisville, we will need the support of the entire state," said Schnellenberger to those he met on his statewide tour where he represented U of L, the State Department of Education and the American Cancer Society. "When we play other Kentucky teams, fine, we'll have one heck of a battle. But when those teams are playing out-of-state opponents, we'll support them all the way. It will take that kind of unity to elevate football in this state to be the very best. And it will take that special spirit to elevate education and many other factors in the state to levels of national prominence."

Schnellenberger has had experience with some of the football all-time classic construction jobs.

In 1979, he found himself as the new head coach at the University of Miami. That program was near extinction after years of mediocrity. Two years later, the squad won the Peach Bowl. After five years, they defeated then-No. 1 ranked Nebraska in the 50th Anniversary Orange Bowl to earn the national championship. Some call that dramatic 31-30 victory the greatest game in college football history.

After working with legendary Coach Blanton Collier at Kentucky, Schnellenberger was on Bear Bryant's staff at Alabama when that program won three national titles in five years.

Later he joined George Allen's staff with the Los Angeles Rams in 1966 as that team grew into a championship contender.

And then Schnellenberger joined Don Shula with the Miami Dolphins in 1970 as that team developed from an expansion team to the Super Bowl champions. The Dolphins won the '72 Super Bowl and finished with a 17-0 record, still the best record in NFL history. He returned to the Dolphins after serving as head coach of the Baltimore Colts in 1973 and 1974.

Throughout his career, Schnellenberger has helped develop some of the sport's best players, particularly quarterbacks such as Joe Namath (Alabama), Bob Griese (Miami Dolphins), Jim Kelly and Bernie Kosar (University of Miami).

In high school he played on the same team at legendary Flaget High School with Paul Hornung, who is the only player in Kentucky to win the Heisman Trophy and the only one to be inducted into the NFL Hall of Fame. Schnellenberger graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1956 after earning consensus all-American as an end during the 1955 season.

He is married to the former Beverlee Donnelly of Montreal, Canada. The couple met during Schnellenberger's two-year professional career in the CFL. They have three sons: Stephen (25), Stuart (24) and Timothy (18).

Trent Walters recently joined the University of Louisville staff coming from the University of Pittsburgh. Walters has also coached at the Cincinnati Bengals, the University of Washington and Indiana University. At Washington, Walters' secondary finished second in the Pac-10 in pass defense in 1981 and 1982. Walters graduated from Indiana University in 1966 as a three-year letterman. He went on to play two years in the Canadian Football League. He was an assistant at Louisville in 1972 when the Cardinals had a 9-1 record and were ranked 15th in the nation. The Knoxville, Tenn., native is married to the former Gail McHenry of Hopkinsville, Ky. They have three children: Trent (12), Vanessa (11) and Troy (9).

A community is not built with bricks and mortar, but with one neighbor building a bridge to the next.

Building a great city.

A community's spirit is not created overnight, but is the creation of decades of people energetically living their lives day upon day.

Our community's personality is not a reflection of one or two outspoken leaders, it is the mirror of a city full of people richly varied in ethnic and social background, heritage and life goals.

Liberty National Bank salutes Louisville.
And is grateful that for over 130 years we've held hands together with our neighbors to help build a community we're proud to call "home."

There are banks.

And there is Liberty.

Some people set higher standards for themselves. They come out early. And stay late. Funny, how they're usually the winners.

At Ricoh, we set higher product standards. And we put in that extra effort. Maybe that's why Ricoh's line of copiers, digital facsimile, laser printers, and shredders are setting new standards of performance in today's modern office. And that's why Ricoh cameras are winning the attention of amateurs and professionals alike in the world of photography.

Be a winner. Demand that extra effort. Ask for Ricoh. We Respond.

The race-winning Corvette of Rippie/Anderson Motorsports.
Tires: Goodyear Eagle VR S "Gatorback" street radials.*

The fact that both of these Corvettes are on Goodyear Eagle street radials is no coincidence.

The 1986 Corvette Convertible.
Factory specified tires: Goodyear Eagle VR "Gatorback" street radials.

Every Corvette made since 1984 comes with just one make of tire: the Goodyear Eagle VR "Gatorback" street radial.

Which is no coincidence.

Because the Eagle VR "Gatorback" was developed specifically for the Corvette's tremendous cornering, handling and speed capabilities.

Considering the performance of the Eagle VR "Gatorback," it's not surprising that successful SCCA Showroom Stock Endurance racing teams like Rippie/Anderson also choose an Eagle street radial.*

The Eagle VR S "Gatorback," a version of the Eagle VR "Gatorback" made for ultimate grip rather than ultimate treadlife.

The success of both the Eagle VR and VR S "Gatorbacks" has a common source:

Goodyear's ability to engineer better high-performance radials. For virtually every performance car.

So it's really no coincidence that the Eagle VR is to be found on every Corvette made.

Or that the Eagle VR S is the favorite tire of people who race Corvettes in the SCCA Showroom Stock Endurance Series.

In fact, when you think of how the Eagles perform, it's no coincidence at all.

*Tires shaved to racing depth. Before you race on Goodyear street radials, write the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, P.O. Box 9125, Akron, Ohio 44305 for preparation recommendations and procedures.

Cardinal Stadium has been the home of the University of Louisville football Cardinals since 1957, but the 35,500-seat facility has been the object of considerable improvement in recent years.

Original renovation on the stadium occurred in 1973 with the addition of the east stands, increasing its seating capacity from 20,600 to 37,500. Additional changes in recent years to accommodate baseball within the stadium reduced the capacity to its present 35,500 seats.

Formerly known as Fairgrounds Stadium, the state-owned facility was reconstructed in 1982 to accommodate the Louisville Redbirds professional baseball team, the St. Louis Cardinals' Triple-A minor league organization.

Among the improvements made on the stadium included new Astroturf playing surface; a computerized scoreboard with a complete message center; additional field lighting; replacement of all seats on the grandstand side (west stands) to modern plastic chairs; and new concession areas and rest rooms.

Media have been working out of a press box constructed in 1982 which overlooks mid-field. A photo deck was added to the lower front of the box in 1985. The other boxes are used for entertainment, coaches and additional media seating.

Louisville football also operates from a football complex, located in the north end zone of the stadium, that was completed in May 1977. The $1.2 million building houses the football coaching staff, trainers, managers and includes dressing areas, conditioning and weight training areas and a training room. The facility received a $250,000 face lift in 1985.

The largest crowd to witness a football contest in Cardinal Stadium was a contingent of 36,914 fans that viewed the Louisville-Western Kentucky game last season on Sept. 21, 1985. That crowd broke a mark which had stood for seven years.

The University of Louisville established new season attendance marks in total attendance and average attendance during its 1985 football season.

A total of 165,978 fans flocked to Cardinal Stadium in six U of L home contests, over 21,000 more than last year's all-time record.

The Cardinals have also made noticeable strides in average attendance, a figure that has increased steadily in recent history. U of L drew an average of 27,663 fans per game in 1984, a jump of over 3,500 per game from a year ago. The Cardinals have produced a growth in attendance each of the last four years.

THE LOUISVILLE EXPRESS CARD

Don't leave your home team without it!

Each year the U of L Athletic Department has tied all the benefits and services provided to corporate supporters into one cohesive program called the Louisville Express. This program recognizes all the valuable contributions that the Louisville business community makes each year to Louisville athletics. We could not provide a quality program without this support.

What collegiate athletics mean to Louisville and corporate development, the relocation of employees and businesses to our area and the spirit of our city cannot be easily measured. One of the ways for Louisville to be recognized nationally and respected is through a commitment to a strong University athletic program. You have helped us do this for our basketball program and with your help we can — and will — do this for football.

If you represent one of the companies who has already joined the Louisville Express, we salute you. If not, we would like you to consider one of the five levels of corporate commitment in the Louisville Express program. The Louisville Express Card lets you do a lot more than express your support for the Fighting Cardinals. It gives you express parking, preferred seating, an opportunity to express yourself in program ads and much more.

AFTER THE GAME

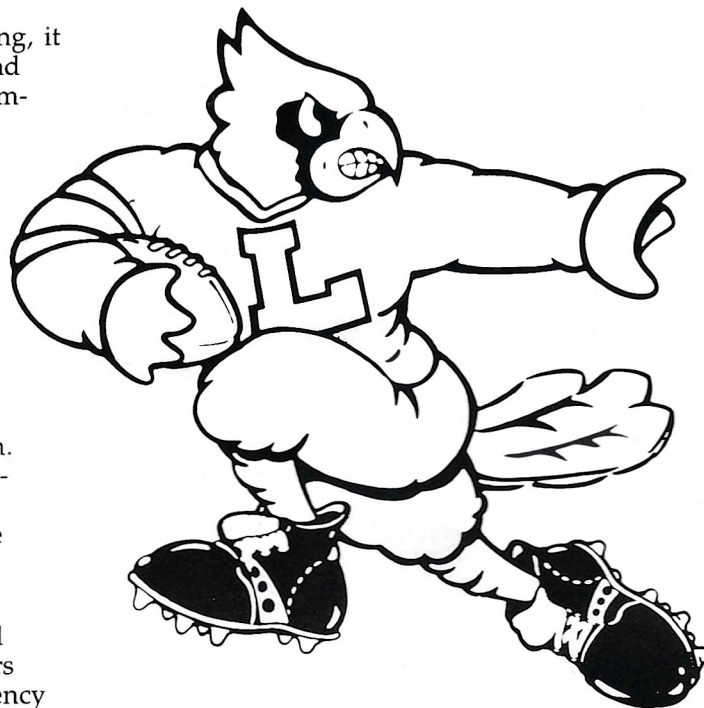

Make your own memory-making play.

It's a high, spiraling pass; descending, it eludes a pack of grasping defenders and finds the receiver as he dances triumphantly into the end zone. Later, a thick-thighed fullback blasts through one charging defender after another. Touchdown!

These are memory-making plays, packed with drama and thrills. They're the plays you talk about long after the game ends.

Miller is MVP (most valuable purse string)

by Todd Eastridge
Sports Information Student Assistant

Kevin Miller is a valuable asset to the University of Louisville athletic program. No, he is not the six-foot-tall, 230-pound full-back that Coach Schnellenberger gives the ball on fourth and goal situations. Nor is he the six-foot-nine-inch point guard that Coach Crum turns to in the final seconds of a close contest who will put the game on ice for the Cards. Kevin Miller is neither of these and still his job is an important one. Miller is the Assistant to the Athletic Director for Budget and Finance.

As the Assistant to the Athletic Director for Budget and Finance Miller's duties are many. Miller controls the direct operations of the business and finance office where he handles budget preparation review and control, acts as the signature authority of expenditures that come against the athletic budget, monitors transactions and expenditures against the University of Louisville, the athletic department and NCAA regulations, prepares the tax return for the Athletic Association, and he is currently travelling with the University of Louisville football team acting as a liaison to assure accurate accountability of team expenditures while on the road.

Miller graduated from Western Kentucky University in 1973 with a bachelor's degree in business and afterwards worked two years in a local CPA firm before coming to the University of Louisville. Miller began working in the controllers office at the University in 1976. There he coordinated the activities of the University of Louisville Athletic Association. In 1984, Miller served as the treasurer for the University Credit Union until his appointment in the athletic department in August of 1986.

"The biggest problem I have is containing the budget walls," Miller said. "One of the things I want to do is give the coaches the ability to work with their budgets as long as they are accountable for the bottom line and that they don't overspend it. I want to let them have the responsibility to determine what they need."

Winning a second NCAA title in 1986, the athletic budget has increased about four hundred percent since the first title in 1980. One might think that more money would make Miller's job a bit more difficult.

"Winning our second national championship helps us tremendously because we are able to do more now than then," Miller stated. "More money means a higher budget and that means we are able to give more money to the athletic program and that makes the coaching staffs happier because they are able to do more things."

Although the athletic budget has increased four hundred percent in the last six years all of that money is not given to the athletic program. Almost half of the athletic budget is put into an endowment fund for the university which will help the construction of new buildings and it also makes more scholarships available.

According to Miller, "We seem to get more money available to other things than sports. We are trying to put money away for two things right now. We have commitments now for the addition to Crawford gym and the new student center. We are trying to expand and so as the facilities expand the non-revenue programs should expand."

Miller enjoys working with the athletic department because it gives him a chance to have the best of both worlds.

"I enjoy athletics, I played ball in high school and I enjoy the athletic environment. Athletics give me a chance to work at what I was trained for but it also gives me a chance to be with the other thing I enjoy, athletics," Miller concluded.

Miller is a native of Lebanon Junction. He is married to the former Betty Close and they have two children, Jennifer and Jeremy.

"Sometimes, the difference between winning and losing is just that much."

Sometimes that's how it is when you're buying a luxury automobile. The differences seem small, but they can be so important.

At Courtesy Cadillac there are so many important differences-the people, the service, the prices.

They're just that much better, but that can be the difference between winning and losing.

Dental centennial

by Jeff Yocom
Staff Writer

The School of Dentistry has begun a yearlong celebration of its 100th anniversary.

A kick-off reception for the centennial took place on Aug. 17 at the HSC Plaza. At that event, attended by U of L President Donald Swain and city and county officials, the school also welcomed its incoming class and new dean, Wallace Mann.

Activities planned in coming months include an alumni tailgate party at the U of L vs. Florida State football game on Oct. 25 and a reunion banquet at the Kentucky Dental Association's annual convention in Louisville on April 3-5.

An exhibit on the history of the dental school is now being prepared for display at the Museum of Natural History and Science during Dental Health Month in February.

"The centennial should give everyone a sense of tradition and pride," Mann said. "The school's tradition stems from its identity as the first dental school west of the Alleghenies, and the pride stems from all the advances that have been made here in the last 100 years."

Originally known as Louisville College of Dentistry, the dental school was founded in 1886 and joined U of L in 1918. It moved to its present location on the HSC campus in 1970.

Here's a list of the events being planned for the dental school centennial:

Saturday, Oct. 25 — Alumni Day Continuing Education Course, School of Dentistry, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Tailgate Party at U of L vs. Florida State football game, Cardinal Stadium, 5 p.m.-7 p.m.

Thursday, Jan. 29 — 12th Annual Student Dental Convention, Kentucky Bluegrass Expo Center.

February — Dental Health Month. Educational and historical exhibits displayed at the Museum of History and Science.

Friday-Sunday, April 3-5 — Kentucky Dental Association Convention, Galt House. Reunion banquet featuring "Centennial Images," a slide program of the school's past, present and future.

Saturday, May 16 — Graduation.

SHOTGUN RAPIDS - North of Stanley, Idaho, there's a stretch of rapids on the Salmon River that's one wild ride. And when you've made it through 'em, you crack open a cold, crisp Old Milwaukee® or smooth, golden Old Milwaukee Light.™
