Tee Pee Talk

By Wayne Hogan
Florida State Sports Information Director

Bring on the press.

All of you Florida State fans who are worried about our national exposure should rest easy today. Perhaps never in the school's history have so many big-time writers and broadcasters ascended on Tallahassee, Florida.

Florida schools notoriously sport the nation's biggest media contingents for big games. For FSU, most of those big games have been played away from Tallahassee. Last week, for instance, 22 sportswriters from this state covered the Michigan State game in East Lansing.

But this community hasn't seen anything like the equal of today's group. Brent Musburger and Pat Haden, the big two at CBS, are merely the tip of the iceberg. Every major newspaper in the state increased its usual allotment of reporters and photographers by at least double. But that's not so rare. We've seen that for most of our annual intra-state battles.

But let's call the roll of nationwide media on hand. The Associated Press sent its top national writer — the legendary Herschel Nissenson, to the game. AP's Dan Sewell from the Miami bureau is here and so is Fred Goodall from the Tampa office. They'll all work closely with our familiar AP face Brent Kallestad.

Steve Weiberg, USA Today's top college football writer, is here. Ian Thompson of the Boston Globe is here. The New York Times, the Chicago Tribune, the Dallas Times-Herald and the Atlanta Journal Constitution will cover the game and the Gannett Newspaper Syndicate has dispatched Mike Lopressti, its No. 1 national correspondent. Sports Illustrated will also be represented.

In Florida we are blessed with some of the nation's best in the newspaper field. I'll put Edwin Pope (Miami Herald), Tom McEwen (Tampa Tribune), Larry Guest (Orlando Sentinel) and Hubert Mizell (St. Petersburg Times) up against any columnists in the country. They're all here for FSU-Miami.

And I know you're all looking forward to seeing those great color pictures all over the state tomorrow. Well, you're going to get 'em. Ah, the great benefits of daytime football.

Which brings us to another issue of prominence in these parts of late. The pros and cons of day vs. night have been proclaimed throughout the sports pages for the last two weeks. Bobby Bowden fueled a bit of debate two weeks back by coming out strongly in favor of playing in the afternoon.

"I've been told for a long time that we play at night because our fans prefer that and that they won't pack the stands for day football," he said. "We had 10,000 empty seats for our last home game. If I keep seeing that, why not play when its best for the team? There's nothing worse than waiting around all day to play the game."

Bowden mentioned in passing the exposure factor of playing in the afternoon. I'd like to carry that a bit further.

For years Florida State has received backseat coverage in the media because of its starting times. Many FSU fans don't believe that is the reason. They are wrong. All of this is not to say that FSU coverage moves into the driver's seat if we play in the afternoon, but riding shotgun is a heck of a lot better than where we are.

NCAA

CBS' Brent Musburger is doing his first telecast out of Doak Campbell Stadium; however, Musburger visited following the 1980 Orange Bowl season to serve as the guest speaker at the FSU Awards Banquet.

Picture this scenario. An FSU game ends at 10 o'clock. As a sportswriter, you now have roughly one hour to get to the locker room, talk with Bowden, talk with the players and return to the press box to file every piece of copy that will appear in the morning papers. It is an impossible task which is performed to a level that you just wouldn't believe by a group of bigtime hard-working professionals. Every FSU fan should have a chance to follow his or her hometown writer after a night game. Suddenly, your opinion would do a quick turnaround. If you all had to watch the intensity in the FSU press box after 11 p.m. as I do, you'd vote for some afternoon relief as well.

Color photography at night games is a virtual impossibility. Not only does the photo quality suffer at night, but the technical aspects of the processing is a nightmare. You can almost consider any color photograph, shot at a night game and appearing in the Sunday paper a miracle.

If it sounds like I've gone overboard with this day-game push, you are right. As the Sports Information Director, I know the exposure value of day football. As a Florida State alumnus, though, and a "program guy" I know the arguments both ways. Don't get me wrong. There is nothing like the atmosphere of "Saturday Night Fever."

Therefore I have been advocating a compromise. What's say we play the first three home games at night. By doing that we take advantage of cooler nighttime temperatures during the time of year when the afternoons are nearly unbearable. Then we play the last three home games in the afternoon. And how about a 3:00 p.m. starting time? That allows plenty of time for pre-game partying and puts you out on the street by 6 in the evening. More importantly it allows ample time to make newspaper deadlines.

A sampling of some of the better respected restaurant and hotel owners around town found a favorable vote for the idea. Of course some retailers in the area may be adversely affected, but the compromise plan seems to be easy to swallow for all.

And how about Florida State's thousands of fans who come from out of the area? The 3 p.m. plan seems outstanding for those masses living along the I-10 corridor. Fans from Jacksonville to Pensacola — if they so choose — could come in on the morning of the game and be safe at home long before midnight. This is the kind of outlying support that teams like Georgia, Auburn, Clemson and others have been able to build through the years.

There will certainly be feedback in both directions in the coming months and whether a serious move is in the offing remains to be seen. I would hope that tomorrow's papers, full of FSU-Miami game coverage, locally, statewide and across the country, will continue to send the message. The time is right.

And now some notes and quotes on today's game:

NOTES AND QUOTES

• This is the third year in a row that the FSU-Miami game will be seen coast-to-coast. CBS televised last year's classic battle in Miami and ABC carried the game in 1985 from Doak Campbell Stadium ...

• The Florida State win over Michigan State last week makes Bobby Bowden 4-1 against the Big 10 since coming to FSU. All five games vs. Big 10 teams have been played away from Tallahassee ...

• Bobby Bowden's record in Doak Campbell Stadium now stands at 50-12-1. Ironically, four of the 12 home losses have been dealt by Miami and four by Florida. The only other four home losses since 1976 came to Clemson (1976), Houston (1978), Pittsburgh (1982) and Auburn (1984). The tie came vs. North Carolina (1986) ...

• Florida State's senior placekicker Derek Schmidt continues his drive to become the top scorer in NCAA Division I history. His 319 career points ranks 12th among all scorers (kickers and non-kickers). He needs just 49 points to pass Luis Zendejas of Arizona State for that honor. Schmidt's 58 career field goals rank 14th on the all-time NCAA list. He needs two field goals to move into 12th place and three more will get him into the top 10 ...

• This is the fourth time under Bowden that Florida State has gotten off to a 4-0 start and the eighth time in the 41 years of FSU football. Only five times in FSU history have the Seminoles made the jump to 5-0. Bowden's only 5-0 team at Florida State was in 1979 in an undefeated regular season ...

• Florida State was the only team to lead Miami at the half in 1986. The Seminoles, in fact, held a 23-21 lead after three quarters ...

• Five of the eight games Miami has won in Tallahassee have been decided by a touchdown or less ...

• Miami has now won 16 consecutive regular season road games and has the nation's longest winning streak — 23 — in regular season games.

• There are currently 11 undefeated and untied Division I college football teams. Florida State and Miami, of course, make up better than 10 percent of that group ...

• Miami defensive end Bill Hawkins protected FSU quarterback Danny McManus in high school as one of McManus' offensive linemen. McManus predicts Hawkins would love nothing better than to sack him. The two remain good friends ...

NEXT HOME GAME

Florida State returns to Doak Campbell on Oct. 17 to greet former Miami coach Howard Schnellenberger and his Louisville Cardinal team. Schnellenberger still holds a winning edge in his career record vs. Florida State but the Seminoles beat his Cards in Louisville a year ago in an attempt to even the record up. Kickoff is slated for 7:00 p.m.

Florida State vs. Miami . . . What a Series!

By Rob Wilson, Tribe Staff Writer

The longest running series on the Florida State schedule has rapidly become one of college football's premier regular season games.

Today's Florida State/Miami matchup will be nationally televised by CBS Sports for the second consecutive year. That is just one illustration of the magnitude of this interstate rivalry.

The 30-year series stands at 17-13 tilted in the favor of Miami, with four games decided by just a single point. Unfortunately for Seminole fans, that single point has been enough to give the Hurricanes four reasons to celebrate.

The series hardly follows a normal pattern and has recently become a top 10 decider as both teams have had lofty poll positions yanked out from underneath them.

Defense has played a major factor as there have been five games where one team didn't score. The Seminoles have held the Hurricanes scoreless on three occasions while Miami has kept it tight by holding FSU scoreless twice.

In a series full of classic matchups and memorable finishes, Miami took the first contest in 1951 by a convincing 35-13 margin. It took Florida State five years to get on the winning side of the board. Bolstered by a 42-yard interception return for a TD by Joe Majors in 1956, quarterback Vic Prinzi (who is the color commentator on today's Seminole radio broadcast) hit Fred Pickard with an 8-yard scoring strike as the Seminoles never trailed and finished with a 17-6 victory.

The first of many nailbiters may well have been the 1959 matchup. Played in Tallahassee, where Miami owns a magical 8-1 advantage, the Seminoles mounted a 52-yard scoring drive late in the game with Pickard scoring with just 2:52 left to play. The score stood 7-6 in Miami's favor and the home crowd cheered their desire for a 2-point attempt to then-FSU coach Tom Nugent. The Seminole lined up for the 2-point try that would give them a win, but Miami guard Jim Crawford stopped Pickard in the backfield and the Hurricanes' quarterback Fran Curci ran out the clock to preserve the win.

The 1962 matchup was as modern as today's as it featured a game that held the attention of college football fans everywhere. FSU rolled into the Orange Bowl unscored upon in its previous three games and determined to knock off 9th-ranked Miami. However, the Tribe proved to be its own worst enemy, turning the ball over six times, including three fumbles inside the Miami 20. Hurricane All-American quarterback George Mira was held in check all afternoon but his 39-yard pass to Nick Spinelli proved to be the difference as the 'Canes took a hard-fought 7-6 win. George Mira, Jr., will be playing this afternoon for his dad's alma mater, but he will be looking to keep FSU's quarterback in check from his inside linebacker position.

Those who cling to the adage that history repeats itself will love the 1966 contest. Sophomore quarterback Gary Pajcic came

- . . . that FSU lost six fumbles in 1962, the most by a Miami opponent?
- . . . that Vinny Testaverde threw four TD passes against FSU in 1985, tying him for second on the UM all-time list?
- . . . that Testaverde's three touchdown passes against FSU in 1986 tied for eighth in the UM record book?
- . . . that Eddie Brown had eight receptions for 150 yards against FSU in 1983? The figure puts him sixth on the receiving yardage list.
- . . . that Joe Plevel scored three TD's against FSU in 1957, the third most prolific TD figure in Miami single game history?
- . . . that Miami's second longest play ever occurred against FSU? Mike Vacchio ran for 87 yards in 1951?
- . . . that Otis Anderson's 80-yard TD run in 1978 was the fourth longest in Hurricane history?
- . . . that Dan Miller set the Miami field goal record with a 57-yarder against FSU in 1981?
- . . . that Mark Richt (now quarterback coach at FSU) has the fourth longest passing play in Miami history? Richt hit Larry Brodsky with an 81-yarder against Florida A&M in 1980.

This is FSU

Florida State is the University which boasts of such diverse assets as the world's most powerful supercomputer and the greatest all-collegiate show on Earth, the Flying High Circus.

Located in Tallahassee, the capital of Florida, FSU is a public, coeducational university and a senior member of the State University System.

About 23,500 students representing all 50 states and more than 100 foreign countries work toward more than 250 different graduate and undergraduate degrees in the 15 schools and colleges of Florida State. The colleges of arts and sciences, business, communication, education, engineering, home economics, law and social sciences combine with the schools of criminology, library and information studies, music, nursing, social work, theatre and visual arts to make FSU a nationally acclaimed university.

The Florida State campus, located just a few blocks from the state Capitol, is one of the most beautiful in the Southeast. Traditional Gothic-style structures combine with the latest in modern architecture, all brought together by an array of oaks, pines, palms, dogwoods and azaleas. The natural beauty of the 347-acre main campus mirrors the picturesque features of the surrounding North Florida region.

Florida State was founded in 1857 as the Seminary West of the Suwannee River. Name changes over the years included Florida State College and, in 1909, Florida State College for Women. Governor Millard Caldwell signed a bill in 1947 which again made the institution coeducational and named it Florida State University.

Today, Florida State faculty and administrators generate more than $35 million annually in external funding to supplement state sponsorship of research. In addition, almost $13 million in private gifts was raised through the FSU Foundation during the past fiscal year. These contributions from alumni, friends, corporations, the university community and charitable foundations are for the sole benefit of Florida State's academic programs.

The FSU Supercomputer Computations Research Institute has attracted international attention to the University, home of the world's fastest supercomputer. The ETA10 has the capacity to perform 10 billion calculations per second.

The Tandem Van de Graaf-Superconducting Accelerator Laboratory in the Department of Physics houses two powerful atom smashers and has been ranked in the top four in the nation by the National Science Foundation.

The University's location affords excellent research and internship opportunities in government, law and the social sciences. The reputation of Florida State's research programs, the expertise of its more than 1,500 faculty members—including four members of the National Academy of Sciences—and the quality of the graduate students involved in research represent major strengths of the University.

Programs in music, dance and theater at Florida State have earned well-deserved national recognition. The visual and performing arts exhibited and produced on campus offer students and the community a wealth of enrichment opportunities.

Student activities at FSU create an important balance between the classroom experience and the personal life of the individual scholar. Honors programs, student government, intramural sports and more than 200 organizations are available for student involvement.

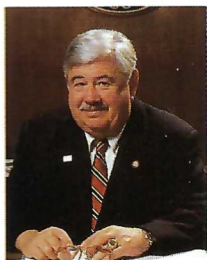

Students from every academic major have a chance to become stars on the highwire or flying trapeze by participating in the Flying High Circus, the only one of its kind in the nation.

Florida State academic programs extend well beyond Tallahassee. The FSU Marine Laboratory is located on the Gulf of Mexico, 45 miles away. Students participate in professional training programs at the Asolo State Theater in Sarasota and the Burt Reynolds Institute for Theatre Training in Jupiter. The Panama City Campus of Florida State offers upper-level courses which lead to bachelor's and master's degrees. The Center for Professional Development and Public Service, housed in the Florida State Conference Center on the edge of campus, manages educational outreach activities from Pensacola to Miami. In addition, Florida State maintains programs of study in England, Italy, Costa Rica, Switzerland, Yugoslavia, the Panama Canal Zone and even the People's Republic of China.

The physical growth of the University during the Sliger administration is best evidenced by such additions as the new wing of the Rovetta Business Building, the University Union expansion project, the new Paul A.M. Dirac Science Library Building, the Panama City Campus, the Jeffersonian Village Green project at the College of Law and the new building for the FAMU/FSU College of Engineering, now under construction.

Florida State is setting the pace as higher education in Florida prepares to enter the 21st century. And President Sliger takes pride not only in the academic programs and facilities of the University, but also in the people—students, faculty, alumni, administrators and staff—who make Florida State a successful monument to learning.

Bernie Sliger
University President

Dr. Bernard Sliger has served as the 10th president of Florida State University since February 7, 1977, following a six-month stint as the University's interim president. In 1987 he is celebrating the end of his first decade of leadership.

After he joined the administration in 1972 as executive vice president, he assumed the additional duties of chief academic officer, and further served as director of the University's London Study Center during the fall quarter, 1975.

Sliger, a native of Trout Creek, Mi., was born Sept. 30, 1924. He holds three degrees, the B.A. ('49), M.A. ('50) and Ph.D. ('55), from Michigan State University, all in economics. Sliger has taught at Florida State, Michigan State, Louisiana State and at Southern University in Baton Rouge, La.

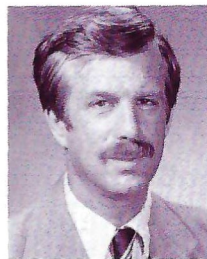

Sliger began his educational career as an instructor in Michigan's Interior Township Schools in 1947. Prior to joining Florida State, he worked for 19 years as a professor and administrator at Louisiana State University. During that time, he served LSU as head of the economics department, member and chairman of the graduate council, dean of academic affairs and vice chancellor. In 1969, he organized the Louisiana Coordinating Council for Higher Education, which is similar to the Florida Board of Regents, and became its executive director.

As president at Florida State, Sliger is involved in athletics. He is a member of the NCAA's Presidents Commission and is one of 22 chief executive officers elected to that body from Division I schools. He began his four-year term in January of this year.

Sliger and his wife, Greta, have four children.

Charles W. Ehrhardt
Faculty Athletic Committee Chairman

A professor of Law at Florida State University since 1967, Charles W. Ehrhardt is beginning his fourth year as chairman of the FSU Athletic Committee.

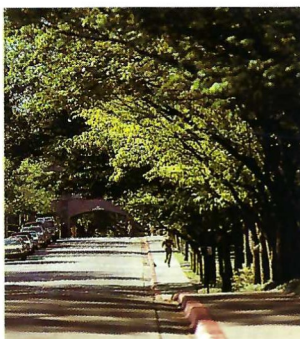

Ehrhardt served on the committee from 1969 to 71, and was reappointed to the board in 1983, becoming Florida State's representative to the NCAA with the appointment.

A native of Elkader, Iowa, Ehrhardt received a bachelor's degree from Iowa State University in 1962. Two years later he earned his law degree from the University of Iowa and went on to become an Assistant United States Attorney in that state before coming to Tallahassee.

A widely-respected expert in the field of Evidence, Ehrhardt holds the Florida State position as the Ladd Professor of Evidence. He wrote the Florida Evidence Code, passed by the state legislature in 1976, which deals with the admissibility of evidence.

From 1984-86, he was president of the Metro Conference which made him the league's chief representative to the NCAA. He is still active in conference administration, serving on the editorial committee. Ehrhardt and his wife, Judy, have three children.

C.W. "Hootie" Ingram

Athletic Director

Cecil Ingram, known to his friends and associates as "Hootie," has headed Florida State's athletic department for the past seven years. He came to FSU in January of 1981 after eight years with the Southeastern Conference.

Upon arriving in Tallahassee, Ingram initiated a $10-million-dollar building program for athletic facilities. Moore Athletic Center, which houses administrative, coaching and ticket personnel, was planned, built and completed under Ingram's leadership.

Dick Howser Stadium, second to none in the South, was completed during Ingram's second year at FSU, while Doak Campbell Stadium, the Bim Stults Aquatic Center and Mike Long Track were all renovated.

Ingram is in his second year of a four-year term on the prestigious NCAA Council. As an elected member of that body, he is one of 22 representatives from Division I schools. Ingram is also a member of the College Football Association (CFA) television committee, chairman of the NCAA nominating committee and chairman of the major independents.

A native of Tuscaloosa, Ala., Ingram played football for the hometown Crimson Tide from 1951 to 1954. He was named all-SEC as a sophomore when he led the nation in pass interceptions. He was a member of both the 1953 Orange and 1954 Cotton Bowl squads, and also lettered for the Alabama baseball team as an infielder.

After graduation and an Army stint, Ingram began his coaching career in 1956 as an assistant football coach at Bradenton (Fla.) Manatee High School. The next year, he became head coach at Tuscaloosa Brookwood High School for three years.

Athletic Director Hootie Ingram and his wife Toni

Ingram moved into the college coaching arena in 1960 as an assistant at Wake Forest. He also made coaching stops at Virginia Tech, Georgia and Arkansas before accepting the head coach's job at Clemson in 1970, the only collegiate head coaching job he held. Three years after taking the position, Ingram left Clemson to join the SEC as assistant commissioner.

During his eight-year tenure with the conference, his duties included supervision of football and basketball officials, rules interpretations and eligibility. After five years as assistant commissioner, he was named associate commissioner in 1978.

Ingram and his wife, Toni, have a son and two daughters.

Head Coach Bobby Bowden

It Began With Bobby

By Wayne Hogan

Put all the rumors to rest and let's play football. Bobby Bowden looks much better in garnet and gold than any other colors anyway.

It seems like a never-ending cycle. Bowden steers his Florida State team to another successful season and into a bowl game and the rumors start to fly. And why not? Can any coach in America claim the success on the field, coupled with the wit, charm and wholesomeness of a Bobby Bowden? Probably not.

It just stands to reason that Bowden's name comes up almost anytime there is a coaching job available. For 11 years now Bowden has been winning football games and friends at Florida State. And for 11 years he's been telling all of these would-be suitors that he really kind of likes it at good Ole FSU. This time, I think he's made his point.

Recently, the most coveted of all coaching jobs on Bowden's list—Alabama—came open. Being a Birmingham native and growing up in the land of red elephants, Bowden seemed a perfect choice to some. And what better circumstance could there be? Bowden's Seminoles just happened to be making their fifth consecutive bowl appearance—where else—Birmingham's All-American Bowl.

For a few days the rumors were rampant. Unofficially, Bowden was contacted by dozens of his long-time Alabama buddies about the job. Things got so desperate that some media outlets reported that the deal was cut for Bobby to move to Tuscaloosa.

But in truth, any possibility of a Bowden move was squelched by none other than Bowden himself.

"I was driving back to Tallahassee from Birmingham with Ann (Bowden's wife of 38 years)," says the coach, "and we just decided the heck with it—we want to stay at Florida State."

Bowden pulled into his driveway that night of January 2, 1987 to find a front yard full of writers and TV cameras. He stepped from his car and said he was staying in Tallahassee . . . period.

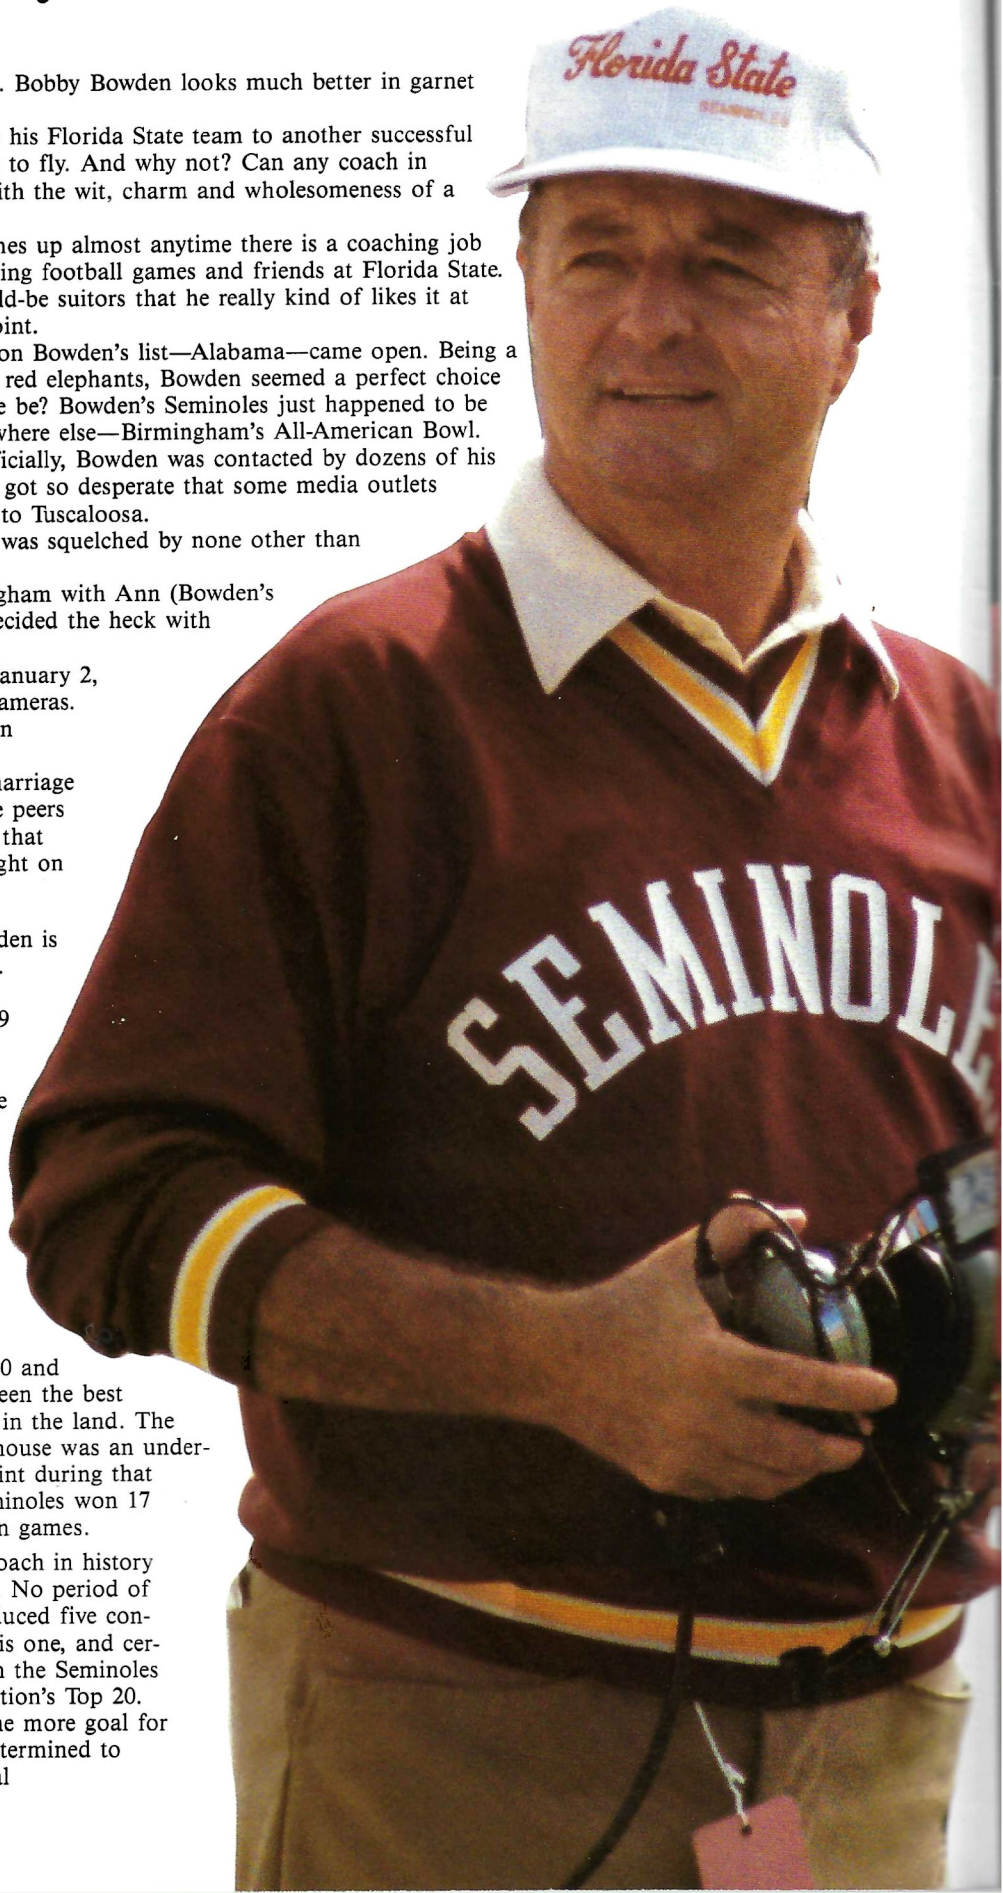

Bowden once said that he and FSU were in a marriage and that no man would put it asunder. Now as he peers at his 12th Seminole season, at age 57, it appears that his remark was just like all other Bowdenisms. Right on target.

Coaches with Most Wins

1. Bo Schembechler, Michigan 207
2. Joe Paterno, Penn State 199
3. Vince Dooley, Georgia 183
4. Bobby Bowden, Florida State 163
Jerry Claiborne, Kentucky 163
6. Hayden Fry, Iowa 150
7. LaVell Edwards, Brigham Young 137
Tom Osborne, Nebraska 137
Barry Switzer, Oklahoma 137
10. Bill Dooley, Wake Forest 132
Grant Teaff, Baylor 132

In many ways Bowden is Florida State football. He took the program from the ashes of 4-29 over three previous seasons to the very pinnacle of the college football heap. Remember that Florida State was 0-11 and perhaps the worst college team in the land in 1973, and three years into the Bowden era—1979—Florida State went 11-0 and may very well have been the best college football team in the land. The outhouse to the penthouse was an understatement. At one point during that stretch Bowden's Seminoles won 17 straight regular-season games.

No Florida State coach in history can match his record. No period of FSU history has produced five consecutive bowls like this one, and certainly no era has seen the Seminoles consistently in the nation's Top 20. There is really but one more goal for the man and he is determined to reach it. The National Championship.

"I honestly believe that the national championship can and will be won at Florida State University," he said. "The resources are here. We were one game from that goal in 1979 and '80. We will be back!"

A winner at both of his previous coaching jobs, Bowden arrived at Florida State in 1976. He had a simply defined task: "Save the program."

No one could have ever predicted the heights that would be reached. His first FSU team trudged to a 2-6 record in its first eight games. But suddenly something happened. Call it Bowden magic or whatever you'd like. There were three straight come-from-behind miracle wins in 1976 and the final 5-6 record was something to celebrate.

When Bowden's second FSU team won 10 games, the man could have been elected mayor. By the time the 1979 and '80 teams had reeled off a 21-3 record and two Orange Bowl appearances, the Governor's Chair was not out of the question if Bobby had so desired.

Florida State has twice since that 1981 Orange Bowl played key regular-season games to perhaps make a return trip, and twice come up short. But those trips are precious and as long as the opportunities keep presenting themselves, Bowden will find a way to get back. While some of the armchair critics would have you believe that times are lean at FSU, statistics prove that those thoughts are born out of the minds of spoiled brats.

For five straight years Bowden has directed the Seminoles into a bowl. And his teams don't just go there on a vacation. In the five bowl trips they are 4-0-1. Four of five years Florida State has finished in the Top 20. Perhaps no team in America has enjoyed more television exposure over the last five seasons. FSU has appeared on the tube an incredible 20 times since 1982.

Bowden's success and style draws the attention of the bowls and networks. One bowl scout said: "Bobby Bowden makes Florida State one of the most attractive teams in the country. I don't care where your allegiances are, everybody loves to see Bobby's team play. I'm not sure there is a more exciting team in America?"

Bowden has built a reputation as a wide-open offensive coach. Trickery and deception are a fact of life for a Bowden team. Nothing is out of the question from any spot on the field.

Last season Bowden stunned a national TV audience and the nation's No. 1 team when he called for a cross-field lateral on a kickoff return at Miami. The Seminoles appeared to be slowly falling out of the game, but the trickery resulted in a 90-yard touchdown play that kept the Seminoles in the battle. Vintage Bobby Bowden.

With any luck Bowden will continue to move up the ladder of the nation's most successful coaches. In 11 years at FSU, Bowden is 90-36-3 (.709). His 21-year head coaching record now stands at 163-68-3. Among active coaches, only Michigan's Bo Schembechler, Penn State's Joe Paterno and Georgia's Vince Dooley have won more games. That is pretty good company. Bowden's .703 career winning percentage ranks eighth among all active head coaches.

A major factor in Bowden's success at FSU has been an uncanny ability to win on the road against one of the nation's toughest road schedules. He is 41-24-2 away from Doak Campbell Stadium in his 11 seasons with 11 of those wins coming at LSU (4), Nebraska (2), Arizona State (2), Ohio State (2) and Notre Dame (1).

Bowden's accomplishments have been recognized many times. Twice he has been named National Coach of the Year. In 1980 he was selected for the prestigious Bobby Dodd Coach of the Year Award. He has been inducted into both the Florida and Alabama Halls of Fame.

Bowden's coaching career actually began in his hometown of Birmingham when he was called to coach his alma mater Samford University in 1959. Bowden had earned a degree there in 1953 and gone on to get a master's from Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee.

In four seasons at Samford he compiled a 31-6 record and caught the eye of then-FSU head coach Bill Peterson. Bowden coached the FSU receivers (including All-American Fred Biletnikoff) in 1963 and '64.

In 1965 he accepted a position as the offensive coordinator under Jim Carlen at West Virginia and succeeded Carlen as the Mountaineer head coach in 1970. In six seasons at WVU, Bowden went 42-26 and capped off his stint there in 1975 with a 9-3 season and a Peach Bowl championship.

Bowden returned to Tallahassee in January of 1976 after a slip on the West Virginia ice convinced him it was time to return to his native South.

In addition to his two national Coach of the Year awards, Bowden was twice named Southern Independent Coach of the Year. He is married to the former Ann Estock of Birmingham and has six children.

Three of his sons are in the coaching business; as well as his son-in-law. Terry is head coach at Samford while son Jeff and son-in-law Jack Hines are assistants on Terry's staff. Tommy Bowden is the receiver coach at Alabama.

YOU COULD PROBABLY THINK OF A LOT OF BORING WAYS TO SAVE $25,200 FOR YOUR EDUCATION.

We haven't seen many bored soldiers, though. We're used to seeing young men and women earn vocational/technical school money by learning about high-tech tanks or truck engines or radio communications. And by getting into rock-hard physical shape.

As soldiers, they can earn up to $25,200 for their vo/tech education, if they qualify. They save $1,200 from their first full 12 months' paychecks. The government chips in $9,600, and the Army, $14,400. On top of all that, they also receive a good salary, food, lodging, and medical coverage.

You could be one of them. Ask your local Army Recruiter about the GI Bill Plus the Army College Fund. And how it can turn saving money for your education into a matter of interest.

Future Seminole Dates Right On Schedule

By Rob Wilson, Tribe Staff Writer

Who would you like to see on the Seminole schedule next year? How about in Doak Campbell Stadium?

Unfortunately, we don't have any say in those matters; those decisions were made some 10 years ago. Many fans may wonder how, why and when the FSU administration decides who to play year in and year out. A peek into the future shows that Florida State's Doak Campbell Stadium should play host to some of college football's most important games in the next few years. A longer look at the past will reveal just why Florida State is where it is today . . . and where it is heading.

Florida State head coach Bobby Bowden has earned a well-documented nickname as "King of the Road" for his phenomenal success in games away from Doak Campbell Stadium. But if it weren't for a scheduling paradox, Bowden and the Florida State program may never have vaulted into the national limelight.

Back in the early '70s, FSU athletic director Clay Stapleton had a 40,000 seat stadium and a team that wasn't exactly a household word. What he was able to do was sign lucrative contracts with some of the most prestigious schools in the country—but at a cost. The Seminoles would have to travel to pick up the big paycheck. For the likes of the Nebraskas and Ohio States, it was an easy way to get a non-conference game at home and pick on a bunch of pesky Seminoles.

During the wave of road games in the 1980's and the famed Octoberfest of 1981—Nebraska, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Pitt and Louisiana State all back-to-back on the road—Stapleton was a favorite in interview of state and national scribes who comically took pity on the poor Seminoles. Stapleton was even crucified in a few stories that took the viewpoint "How could anyone put that type of a schedule before ANY major college football team?" Bowden himself thought that he would be long gone from Florida State before he would have to face that gem of a schedule.

Later, the head coach would say that if it wasn't for those road schedules and the incredible success that FSU was able to produce against such a stacked deck, the Seminole program would never have vaulted into the national limelight it enjoys today. Stapleton will surely be looked upon with favor as Seminole history moves on.

Because of FSU's successes and some other factors that have made scheduling an even bigger challenge, current athletic director Hootie Ingram faces a different sort of challenge than Stapleton. Increased values and numbers of televised games have meant more and more emphasis must be put on the area of scheduling.

"We, of course, take several things into consideration when determining future opponents," says Ingram. "First of all we have somewhat of a unique problem at Florida State because we do not belong to a football-playing conference.

"If you are in the SEC or Big 10, for instance, you may only have two or three games to schedule a year, because the rest are conference contests. We, as an independent, must schedule all 11 of our games every year.

"We consider fan interest, schedule balance, television potential, along with several other factors."

*"We consider fan interest, schedule balance, television potential, along with several other factors."
—C.W. Hootie Ingram*

Generally speaking, college administrators are working a solid four to five years ahead of "schedule." For instance, the Seminoles have firm schedules through 1991 and, according to Ingram, Florida State has a pretty basic plan through the year 2000.

Scheduling can often be a gambling exercise, according to Ingram.

"Some strange things happen and possibilities will open up all of a sudden," he says. "Sometimes you are faced with some pretty touchy decisions. Many times timing becomes an important element. There may be a real quality team that would fit in just where you need them, but you've got to wait for some things to work out. If you don't have that luxury, you miss out."

It seems that the energy crisis of the early eighties dealt Florida State and new athletic director Ingram a wild card. When Ingram accepted the FSU post in 1981, he thought it would take some time to arrange a schedule. However, fuel prices drove team travel costs through the roof and, as a result, many schools were shopping around to cancel long road trips. Ingram rolled up his sleeves and arranged for some of the nation's finest teams to pop up on the Florida State schedule.

"We were fortunate to be able to take advantage of the situation (fuel crisis)," he says. "Now we are making strides in improving our home schedule which should rank among the best around in the near future."

In fact, the Seminoles welcome Michigan State, Virginia Tech and Florida to their six-game home set in 1988. And in 1989, Florida State fans can watch contests with Clemson, Auburn, Miami and South Carolina, along with Tulane and Memphis State.

West Virginia, LSU and Florida headline the 1990 menu, while Syracuse, Auburn and Miami will visit Tallahassee in 1991.

"The home schedule is getting more attractive because we just don't schedule anyone unless a team is willing to play us home and home," says head coach Bobby Bowden. "Our home schedule is beginning to become really good. People are not going to be able to use that as an excuse anymore. The schedule is going to feature some of the nation's top teams.

"You've also got to remember that it is our goal to go to a bowl every year and you go to bowl based on your record, not who you played. It is important that we win our games and it is important that we play opponents who can propel us into the bowl picture.

The key, though, is that we are getting some big games at home."

I think that the quality of our FSU fans is the best in the country," says Ingram. "But the quantity is just not there yet. We are not at the point where our stadium is standing room only every game. So we must bring in teams that will bring their fans and help us fill up Doak Campbell!"

As one looks through the future schedules, consistent opponents appear. Tulane, Auburn, Miami, South Carolina, Florida and Virginia Tech appear to make up the base home-and-home opponents for the Seminoles.

"We have established ourselves as a year-in-year-out bowl team," says Ingram. "We want to maintain a strong schedule that is the foundation for a bowl year. We want to play teams attractive to television. We want to play teams attractive to our fans and ones who bring their own following."

With five straight bowl appearances and an excellent series of opponents ahead, Florida State's future may be like the popular song, "The future is so bright . . ."

Florida State's future schedules until 1991 are listed on page 97 of Tribe Magazine.

Mayhew and Williams Share Cornerback Duties

FSU's Defensive Doubt

By Chris Sears, Tribe Staff Writer

It was the biggest day of Martin Mayhew's career. Then a sophomore cornerback, Mayhew intercepted North Carolina's Kevin Anthony's pass and returned it 68 yards for a touchdown, preserving a Seminole 20-10 win. As he crossed the end zone, he was greeted by teammate Eric Williams who was one of the first on the field to congratulate Mayhew.

That scene is symbolic of the relationship between Mayhew and Williams, a pair who are splitting playing time at right cornerback this season. Most in their position would be waiting for the other to make a mistake, so they could get into the lineup. But in the case of Mayhew and Williams, the opposite is the case.

"We really do enjoy sharing time together," Williams says, "because every time I come out of the game, I know someone is coming in who is as good if not better than I am. It really takes the pressure off you."

"Both are so unselfish," defensive coordinator Mickey Andrews says. "Every time I see one of them make a great play, I see that the other one is the first player to meet them, wherever they are on the field."

Perhaps Mayhew and Williams are different than most because they are good friends. Both are fifth-year seniors who met as freshmen.

"Eric and I just hit it off," Mayhew says. "When we were freshmen, we were on the offensive scout team together. We used to go and do things when we finished with practice."

When Mayhew and Williams arrived on campus five years ago, they arrived with a recruiting class that featured seven defensive backs, all of whom were taller, bigger and more heralded than the 5-10 that Mayhew and Williams are listed as.

After graduation and attrition took its toll, only one other player, Greg Newell, has made a significant contribution to the Seminole program.

"It's funny," says Mayhew, who at 176 pounds weighs seven pounds less than Williams. "I don't look at myself as short. When I look across the field I say, 'gosh Eric is the one who's short.'"

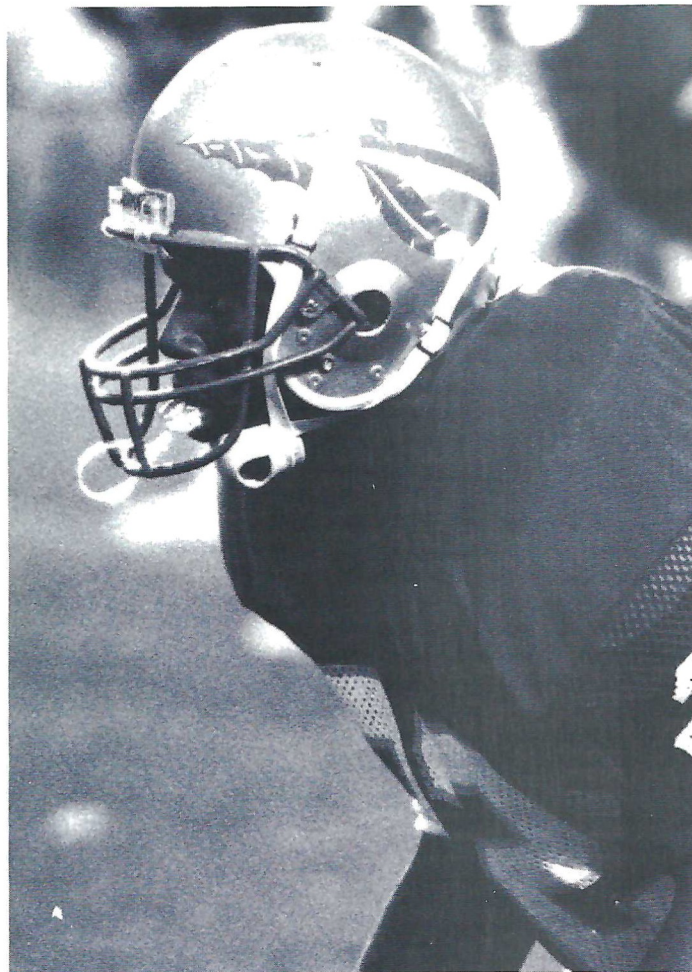

Mayhew and Williams have overcome their size difference with blazing speed and quickness. Although both players have been timed in the 4.5 range in the 40 yard dash, Mayhew has received all the attention with his success on the FSU track team. Running in the open 100 and 200 meter dashes, Mayhew qualified for the NCAA Championships as a member of Florida State 400 meter relay team that also featured Seminole running back Sammie Smith. In fact at the Williams is seventh on FSU's career interception list.

Mayhew started FSU's first four games in 1987.

Metro Conference Championships, Mayhew handed the baton to fellow cornerback Deion Sanders on the exchange to help the Seminoles to a second place 400 meter relay finish.

Last spring was only Mayhew's second attempt at track as he was able to miss spring practice to run. "I surprised a lot of people, including Coach Bowden," Mayhew says of his success in track. "It has really helped me on the field as well. The other day we were doing starts on the punt block team. When I have to run fast, I think in my mind that I'm starting from the blocks in the 100 meter dash."

"We couldn't have done without him," FSU track coach Dick Roberts says. "He would run against sprinters who would make it to the finals of the 100 meter dash. He would go out and run even with them and even beat them out of the blocks on the leadoff leg." Mayhew is currently appealing his eligibility in track so he can run one more year.

Ironically, Mayhew and Williams got their first starts in the same game—Tulane—four years ago as redshirt freshmen. The FSU coaching staff's decision to go with the pair paid off, as the two combined for six interceptions and 54 tackles during the season. Williams keyed Florida State's upset of Miami, intercepting two Bernie Kosar passes, including a diving pickoff in the endzone.

"I'm pretty happy with the way my career has gone," says Williams who ranks seventh on the FSU career interception list with 11. "Playing against some of the best receivers like Eddie Brown (Miami), Herb Gainer, Weegie Thompson and Hassan Jones has given me confidence."

In 1985, it was Mayhew's turn to shine. The coaches named him the most improved defensive player on the team after a season where he had a career-high 41 tackles and three interceptions, two of which came in the North Carolina game. Besides the interception return for a touchdown, he also killed North Carolina's drive into Seminole territory late in the game to preserve the FSU win on the road. "The North Carolina game was a big game for me," Mayhew says. "I think I played real well during the 1985 season." Several others agreed. Mayhew was selected to the A.P. honorable mention All-America team and was a second team Academic All-American.

Last year, Mayhew had a disappointing season as injuries took a toll on his playing time. He did not intercept a pass all year and sustained a knee injury that required arthroscopic surgery, forcing him to miss the All-American Bowl game.

"When I've been healthy, I've played up to my expectations and have even surprised myself at times," he says. "My goal this year is to stay healthy and improve on my year, on my 1985 season."

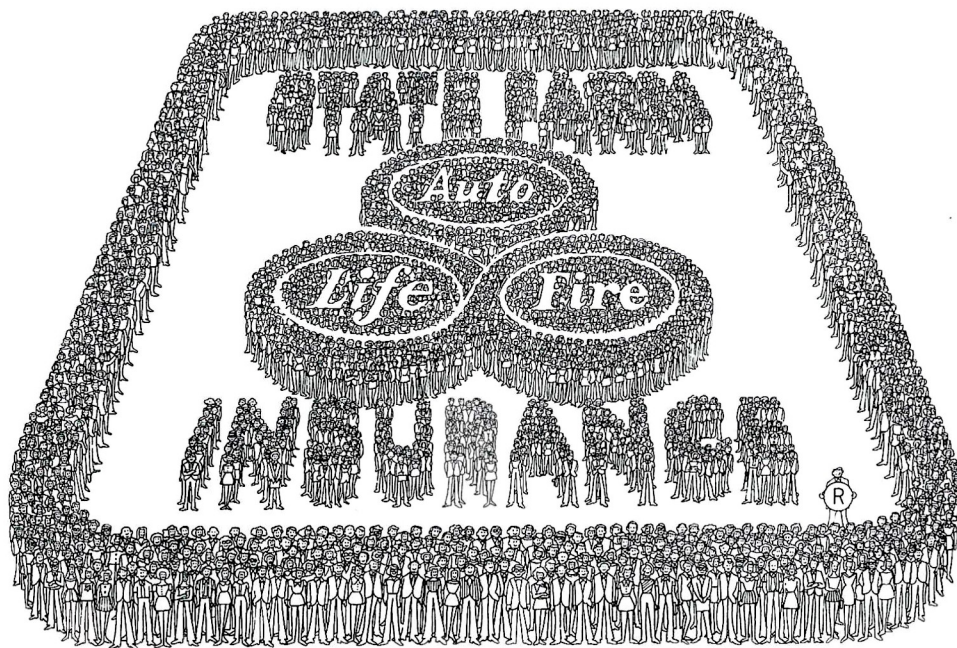

Mayhew started quickly in 1987 while Williams was on the mend from a sprained ankle. Mayhew started the home opener vs. Texas Tech and was one of four FSU defensemen to receive winning grades in the game. He had seven tackles, one for loss, and broke up a pass.

It was Williams' turn to shine vs. East Carolina, earning winning grades with a tackle for loss, a caused fumble and a pass breakup. Mayhew earned the squad's "kicking game" player of the week honor and also made the winning grade list for Memphis State. Both players made the honor roll for Michigan State, with Mayhew setting nine tackles.

Mayhew's sub-par 1986 season may have been a contributing factor in his decision to

FSU's Boys of Miami

By Nick Gandy, Tribe Staff Writer

For many inhabitants of the United States unfamiliar with the geography of the state of Florida, it is not uncommon for tourists visiting the areas around Tallahassee to say, "Oh, we'll just hop in the car and take a drive to Miami!"

These folks soon find out that Miami is not just down the road from Florida's capital city.

For one reason or another, six natives (Keith Carter, Scott DiMare, Mike Goodman, Paul Moore, Mike Morris and Anthony Moss) of the city on Florida's east coast drifted north to the sleepy town of Tallahassee . . . far from the bright lights and sandy beaches depicted on a popular Friday night television show.

In fact, the vast difference between the two cities is one of the most voiced complaints around the FSU campus by students of the bustling south Florida area.

In the past, a big-city urban image was projected by Seminoles from the Miami area. It seems now with the likes of Fred Jones, Ed Clark and John Eaford gone from the FSU active roster, there is a more subdued and conservative bunch from the southern part of the state.

"Some of the guys playing for Florida State are just naturally quiet," says Norland High product John Eaford, who was injured in an automobile accident prior to the season. "They have adapted to the Tallahassee way of life. I tend to be very outgoing and used to the fast times and rough life of Miami."

"The biggest difference between the two cities," says freshman guard Mike Morris, a product of Miami Beach High School, "is that it becomes dead quiet after a certain hour. Around Miami, there's always something going on at all hours."

Teammate Scott DiMare agrees with Morris but thinks Tallahassee is just what is needed for his academic and athletic goals. "It's more of an enclosed atmosphere," says the sophomore from Columbus High School. "More of a college town, one that makes you want to study. Plus, football takes up most of my time."

To get these six onto the field for the Seminoles was an accomplishment itself. Miami, a hotbed of high school football, is frequently visited by coaches from around the country. Currently on college rosters from the Miami area are Michigan State's Heisman hopeful Lorenzo White, as well as quarterback Bobby McAllister. Penn State was able to lure receiver Michael Timpson to northern regions. Demetrius Brown of Miami Beach is now the starting quarterback of the Michigan Wolverines.

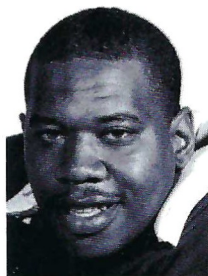

Throw in the fact that the two other schools of Florida's big three are keeping a close eye on high school talent. "I saw more college coaches in Miami the week of spring high school jamborees than I have in my life," says FSU assistant head coach Chuck Amato, who recruits the Miami area for FSU. "I'd be willing to bet there were more coaches in Miami that week than in the rest of the United States."

Linebacker Keith Carter, highly touted out of high school also had a wide variety of offers, picking Florida State over Oklahoma, Southern Cal, Ohio State and Mississippi.

"You've got to give Miami a look," says red-shirt freshman defensive tackle Mike Goodman, who played his high school ball at Palmetto High. "They are the hometown team that you always follow. But it's nice to get away?"

For the six players listed from the Miami area from Florida State and the 18 on the Miami roster, this may not be their first encounter on the football field. Although it may not happen in this game, freshman guard Mike Morris may or may not want to run into freshman Hurricane linebacker Matt Britton. "He was one of two people to ever beat me," recalls Morris, a former USA Today honorable mention All-American at Miami Beach High. "He played for one of our biggest rivals, Columbus. I went after him and hit him with everything I had and my knees gave out. I sure would like another shot at him."

DiMare probably has the closest ties with the Hurricanes. "My dad at one time was a big Miami booster and I know quite a few people on the team," says DiMare. His connections don't end there. "Alonzo Highsmith (former UM back) is a good friend of our family and he and I worked out together this summer at the UM weight room. I'd run into a few of the defensive backs working out. Tolbert Bain and Darrell Fullington used to talk a lot and we would go back and forth about the FSU/Miami game."

"Yes, we're good friends, myself and the FSU guys," says Miami defensive back Tolbert Bain. "We work out and have some soda pops. But we all know what's in the back of each other's minds. But it's accepted and when we hit the field, it's business as usual."

For Carter and freshman linebacker Anthony Moss, there could be a case of mixed emotions for tonight's game. Carter is married to the former Iris Smith, a one-time Lady Hurricane basketball player and graduate of Miami. "When she was still in school at Miami, she would want me to play a good game but would want Miami to win," says Carter.

For Moss' family is cheering for FSU tonight with the departure of brother Winston, who now plays for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. "The family is now on my side since Winston is finished at Miami," Anthony says. "Last year they leaned more for Miami since he was a senior and I was a redshirt freshman."

Of all the players from Miami on the Seminole squad, freshman Morris has the highest hopes of returning to Miami victorious. "First, I want to win big against Miami. Then I want for us to win the rest of our games and go to the biggest bowl game possible. I want to be able to go back to Miami and have people say 'Check out Mike! Then I want to be able to tell them, Florida State is #1!'"

Hurricanes Storming Into Tallahassee

By Tom Piero

The Miami Hurricanes enter Doak Campbell Stadium this afternoon ranked third in this week's national polls, with a potent passing attack and a revitalized running game to take on the Florida State Seminoles in what a local columnist called "A Little Orange Bowl."

With Jimmy Johnson at the helm, the Hurricanes have started 1987 with two victories. In Week 1, Miami defeated Heisman Trophy Candidate Kerwin Bell and the Florida Gators 31-4 in the Orange Bowl. After a two week layoff, the Hurricanes traveled to Little Rock and routed the then-#10 ranked Arkansas Razorbacks 51-7.

Miami currently holds the nation's longest regular season winning streak at 23 and a streak of 16 consecutive road wins.

Today's game will be the 31st renewal of the Miami-Florida State rivalry. Miami leads the series 17-13 and has not lost in Tallahassee since the Seminoles defeated Hurricanes 40-23 on September 22, 1979.

Miami is led offensively by sophomore quarterback Steve Walsh. In two outings, the third-year player has shown the promise of skills like his predecessors Testaverde, Kosar and Kelly. Against Florida and Arkansas, Walsh has completed 67% of his passes to eight different receivers for 449 yards.

Walsh has spread the wealth around to a receiving corp that is one of the nation's best. He has completed eight passes each to Michael Irvin (177 yards) and Warren Williams (50 yards). Melvin Bratton (85 yards), tight end Charles Henry (82 yards) and Brian Blades (80 yards) have caught seven each. Irvin and Blades have had field days vs. Florida State in previous outings; Irvin has caught 11 passes for 185 yards and a touchdown while Blades has seven catches for 172 yards and three scores.

In the rushing department, the 'Canes

"Miami just crushes you . . ."

—Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden

muscled the Razorbacks for 256 yards on 45 attempts. Senior Warren Williams, in that game, became the first Miami running back in over a year to run for over 100 yards in a regular season game with 108 on 11 carries. Bratton, a pre-season All-American candidate, is second on the ground with 20 carries for 71 yards.

Place kicker Greg Cox has accounted for 26 of Miami's 82 points thus far in 1987. The Fort Lauderdale native has connected on his last eight field goal attempts, a UM school record, including six this season. Three of the six field goals have been from 44 yards or better.

Defensively, the Miami defense has held opponent ball carriers to 1.9 yards an attempt. The Hurricanes held a potent Arkansas wishbone attack to 113 yards rushing. "Miami just crushes you," said FSU head coach Bobby Bowden after looking at the Arkansas and Florida game films. "They just crushed the wishbone. They also crushed Florida and no one else has been able to do that."

The Miami defense is led by senior consensus All-American Daniel Stubbs. Stubbs, a defensive end, holds the UM career record for sacks with 32½. He has 2½ in Miami's first two games with another three tackles behind the line of scrimmage.

Linebackers George Mira, Jr. and Rod Carter will hold down the fort for the Hurricanes in the middle against the Seminoles. Mira leads the team in tackles with 27 and Carter is second at 26. Mira currently is second on the list in career tackles with 370 behind alumnus Scott Nicolas.

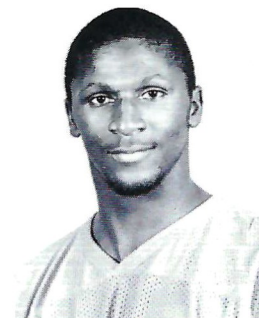

Free safety Bennie Blades, a pre-season All-American in the defensive backfield (joining State's Deion Sanders), heads what may be the best secondary in the country. That secondary held UF's Bell to just 168 passing yards and then limited Arkansas to 106 through the air. Blades is joined back there by strong safety Selwyn Brown, the 'Canes leader with two interceptions, and corners Don Ellis and Tolbert Bain.

Next for Miami after Florida State is a matchup with the Maryland Terrapins on October 10.

EMINENT SCHOLAR CHAIR

In an attempt to promote greater scholastic interest in state assisted universities, the Florida Legislature created the Eminent Scholar Chair Program in 1979 to add distinguished professors to university faculties and to stimulate private contributions to public university programs.

A private contribution of $600,000, either as a single gift or a number of gifts in combination, is matched by the State of Florida with $400,000 to create a $1 million Eminent Scholar Endowed Fund. The income from that fund is used to support, in perpetuity, the scholarship activities of an Eminent Scholar.

Those fully funded chairs at Florida State University include:

New Attitude a Big Gain for #3

By Anne Bunker, Tribe Staff Writer

Herb Gainer casually walked into Moore Athletic Center two weeks ago boasting his new prize—an East Carolina baseball hat. Collecting hats from opponents is not a sign of unloyalty; Herb simply likes to keep souvenirs of his “victims.”

His collection must be fairly large by now. The senior receiver is in his fifth year at Florida State, including a redshirt freshman year, where his team has faced at least 26 different opponents.

Herb Gainer likes to do more than collect hats from his opponents. He also likes to outrun, outmaneuver, and outsmart them on the football field. Since his career began at FSU, Gainer has outrun a few, outmaneuvered even more, and outsmarted a lot of unsuspecting defensive backs. He has 49 career receptions, including eight in 1987, and he's looking to add more.

The 6-3, 198 pound receiver is often likened to former FSU receiver Hassan Jones, who now enjoys a position on the Minnesota Vikings football team. Seminole receiver coach John Eason considers the two receivers to be on the same level. “Hassan and Herb compare favorably with each other in that they both possess the same type of abilities,” says Eason. “He (Gainer) and Hassan both have good knowledge of the game.”

Gainer does not mind being compared to FSU's former receivers; after all, the reputation of producing great receivers is one of the main reasons that convinced him Florida State was the school he wanted to attend.

During his first year at FSU, Gainer was redshirted while Weegie Thompson and Jessie Hester dominated the receiving duties. In 1984, Gainer played in 10 games behind Hester and Hassan Jones. That year began promising careers for all three receivers—Hester with the Los Angeles Raiders; Jones at FSU and later at Minnesota; and Gainer, who now assumes the role that the other receivers left behind.

Gainer appreciates his one-time role as an apprentice under Thompson, Hester and Jones. He attributes his playing style to a blending of Hester and Jones, who both rank among Florida State's top seven receivers in career receptions, yardage and touchdowns. “I use the little things each player did well—take that aspect and use it to my advantage,” says Gainer. Perhaps more important than the valuable tips he gained are the inspiring attitudes Jones and Hester instilled in Gainer.

For the last two years, Gainer has developed his attitude into a more positive, but realistic, outlook of his past performances and toward his remaining opportunities.

“When I played behind Hassan and Jessie, I may have looked up to them too much,” says Gainer. “I knew that they would be playing a great majority of time and sometimes felt unchallenged.”

At one time he fretted over dropped passes, but learned from Hester that worrying about past failure is not a confidence builder. “I used to worry about dropping passes,” he admits. “Now, I let my performance be my guide. I don't worry about what other people think.” This way of thinking has allowed Gainer to regain his confidence and think more about running good patterns and getting open for the pass than about catching the ball.

Learning to play through pain was another challenge for Gainer. Throughout his career, he has been hampered by numerous injuries. Some have been major, but Gainer feels that if he had the same injuries today, his recovery would be much quicker. “A lot of my injuries were mental injuries,” he says. “If I had them now, I would be able to push through them.” Gainer admits that in the past, he might have taken the easier routes to recovery because of all the talent in front of him; now, he feels an obligation to teach the younger players to work hard, even through the years that they must sit and wait for their chance.

Gainer's rededication to the game has also helped him realize his future with the sport. He likes to toy with the idea of playing pro football, but does not let himself get carried away with boyish dreams. “If the opportunity arises, I'd be cheating myself if I didn't give it 100%,” he says, “but I see the heartbreak in what has happened to other players.”

Gainer says that playing pro football not only would be a satisfying experience for him, but also for his number one fan. “It would satisfy me the most to see my mother happy,” Gainer says. “By playing pro ball, I will know I have done something to make my mother proud.” Herb's mother must already be very proud of her favorite football player; she has not missed a game since he arrived at FSU.

Today's game will be a special one for Herb Gainer. Of course his mother will be here watching, but he'll also be playing against some good friends. Last spring, Gainer spent spring break with Miami cornerback Tolbert Bain. He remains in contact with Bain and safety Selwyn Brown and has been waiting for today's meeting for quite some time. “I thrive on the reputation of the other team,” says Gainer. “I'm anxious to see how I measure up against those guys.”

Gainer hopes to walk out of Doak Campbell Stadium today with more than the satisfaction of a well-played game. He plans on carrying away a Hurricane hat from his latest victim.

Gainer grabs one of his 27 team-leading receptions in 1986.

The Home Field Advantage.

In business, as in football, the home field advantage means a great deal. That's why more and more area business and professional people are establishing financial relationships with the home owned and operated Capital City Bank Group. Prompt decisions, based on local market and economic conditions, give customers a distinct advantage.

Tallahassee Professional Fire Fighters Local 2339

Remind You:

Install smoke detectors: Smoke is responsible for three out of four fire deaths. The loud siren will give your family those extra minutes to escape safely. Test it once a month. Change batteries once a year.

Establish an escape plan: Have frequent family meetings to establish escape routes from your dwelling. Every room should have two means of escape, rope ladders for upper floor windows. Have practice drills every three months.

Place fire extinguishers throughout your home: For extinguishing all three types of fire, use an A B C fire extinguisher. Fire extinguishers should only be used in the case of small fires; if there is a large fire, get out of your home immediately.

As winter approaches: It's highly recommended to have heating systems, fireplaces and wood burning stoves checked, serviced and cleaned by a professional.

NOT JUST A JOB, A COMMITMENT

For a free home fire safety inspection, please call the Tallahassee Fire Department Fire Prevention Department at 222-9277.

SEMINOLE ATHLETIC DORMITORY

The Seminole Boosters, through Florida State University, has constructed a stunning new athletic dormitory that ranks among the best in the country.

In the near future, a recreation hall will be added to the complex.

Seminole Boosters, and Seminole Booster clubs, who have sponsored individual rooms are recognized by an appropriately engraved brass plate on the door of each room.

The Marching Chiefs

The Marching Chiefs, some 350 members strong, are the band behind the Florida State fight song. They are as much a part of college football in Tallahassee as the game itself.

Since 1951, the Chiefs have provided football fans with the best in upbeat musical entertainment in their pregame and halftime shows.

The Chiefs' entourage includes feature twirlers, majorettes and flag girls representing every school and college in the university. In addition to home game performances, the Chiefs have traveled to many out of town games to cheer on the Seminoles. FSU's regional and national TV appearances have also put them in the living rooms of millions of viewers, including thousands of Seminole alumni across the country.

Under the direction of Bentley Shellhammer, director of the Chiefs; Charles Carter, associate director and arranger; graduate assistant John Carmichael; graduate staff assistants David Legette, Roger Duncan, Steve Grugin, Michael Friedman, Bill Faucett, Lisa Crews, Rick Greenwood and Jim Bye; and drum major Rodney Dorsey, the 1987 Marching Chiefs will once again greet Seminole fans with the familiar style that has entertained millions over the past four decades.

Seminole Songs

ALMA MATER

High o'er the towering pines our voices swell,
Praising those Gothic spires we love so well,
Here sons and daughters stand, faithful and true.
Hailing our ALMA MATER, FSU.

FIGHT SONG

©Music by Thomas Wright
Words by Doug Alley
You've got to fight, fight, fight, for FSU.
You've got to scalp 'em Seminoles.
You've got to win, win, win, this game and roll on down to make those goals.
For FSU is on the warpath now and at the battle's end, she's great
So fight, fight, fight to victory, our Seminoles from Florida State.

off the Seminole bench to spark a 17-point second quarter that began with a 27-yard scoring pass to Ron Sellers.

What is unique about the connection to the future is with the score standing at 13-7 Miami, Florida State's Bill Moreman took the ensuing kickoff to the 17 before throwing cross-field to T.K. Wetherell who raced for a score. Seminole fans will remember one of Florida State's most exciting plays of 1986, a Keith Ross to Dexter Carter lateral pass for a TD on a Miami kickoff.

In 1969 a see-saw battle on Miami's home turf, which saw FSU quarterback Bill Cappleman complete 24 of 38 passes, included a TD strike to Kent Gaydos as the half ended. The Seminoles mounted a drive at their own 10-yard line with just under nine minutes to play and with 1:55 left in the game, Grant Guthrie came in to hit his third field goal and give the Seminoles a 16-14 win.

Florida State used a ferocious fourth-quarter effort before coming up short in 1975. Trailing 21-6, the Seminoles' Rudy Thomas scored from the one and Larry Key raced to paydirt from 31 yards out but it was too late as the Hurricanes held on for the 24-22 win.

In one of the most unbelievable games in recent memory, FSU and Miami battled to a one-point decision in 1980. The Seminoles entered the Orange Bowl 9th-ranked and undefeated with a string of 18 regular-season victories. Miami's defense was outstanding, holding the Seminoles to just three points in the first 59 minutes. With only 39 seconds showing on the game clock, Seminole quarterback Rick Stockstill culminated a 55-yard back-to-the-wall drive with a touchdown pass to a wide-open Sam Childers. With the game on the line, FSU head coach Bobby Bowden elected to go for the win. FSU's hopes for a 19th consecutive win faded when middle guard Jim Burt batted away Stockstill's 2-point conversion pass to preserve the win. The loss was FSU's only one prior to dropping another one-pointer (18-17), this for a possible national championship against Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

Florida State's last win over Miami came in 1984 when FSU traveled south to take on the defending national champions. Derek Schmidt's three field goals and FSU's tenacious defense held the score to 9-0 until Jessie Hester took a reverse 77 yards for a touchdown and broke open the game. The Seminoles rushed for 284 yards, led by Greg Allen's 65, while Miami gained just 10 yards all afternoon and submitted to a 38-3 win by FSU.

So many great matchups need to be mentioned. Miami's 17-16 field goal kick on the last play of the 1983 game . . . Florida State's 20-17 win in 1971, the Seminoles' sixth in a row. So many.

"Whenever we play Miami its going to be a battle," says FSU head coach Bobby Bowden. "We have had so many great games. They have really spoiled some things for us and we have done the same for them.

"The thing is, we emphasize to our players that we need to win the state of Florida championship. You know if you win that you're gonna be right up there nationally" Case in point: A Florida team has played for the national championship (although Florida was on probation in '84 when it would have been in contention) for the past three seasons.

"People talk about the Big 8 and the Big 10; I'll stack the Big Florida against any of those," Bowden says.

Florida State versus Miami is simply one of college football's biggest games. Today once again the national powers will go head-to-head to see who will be the front runner in 1987's race for number one.

delay his graduation until December, so he could use his final year of eligibility.

"I had to take a lot into consideration," Mayhew says. "The longer I procrastinated, the easier the decision became. I put it off until April and everyone was talking about how great a team we were going to have. I wanted to be a part of it. I want to go to the Orange Bowl!"

Williams also decided to return for his final season, because of the high expectations for the year. "We thought about it and all the fifth-year seniors decided to come back," he says. "We knew if we came back we were going to compete for the national championship!"

Mayhew says one of the reasons he decided to attend Florida State out of nearby Florida High was to some day go to the Orange Bowl while staying close to home. He also wanted to receive a degree from the school's respected business program. When he graduates in December with a degree in management, Mayhew hopes to land a job as a commercial banker.

When Mayhew does walk across the Civic Center stage to receive his diploma, Williams won't be far behind as he will graduate with a degree in criminology. The Safety Harbor native will then work to reach his goal in becoming an F.B.I. agent. But before he works toward his goal, Williams will work as a different type of agent—a late round draft pick or a free agent. "I'm going to give pro football a try," Williams says. "I just have to get it out of my system."

One thing Mayhew won't attempt is a career in professional football. "Some of the scouts have talked to me about it," Mayhew says. "I don't see myself sitting around waiting until the draft in April and not getting drafted. I also don't want to work out with a team for a few weeks as a free agent and then get cut. I like security more than I want to chase a dream."

Mayhew's choice fits his personality. "I'm a laid-back person," he says. "I've really mellowed. When I first came here I was an intense person. I was hot-headed. Now I don't let things bother me."

Mayhew's attitudes carry over in his personal life. "I don't collect snakes," Mayhew jokes. "I like to read books and magazines and keep up with current events."

Over the years, Mayhew and Williams have shared lockers, hotel rooms on the road and the starting cornerback job. The one thing they haven't shared is jealousy towards one another.

"We go out there on the field and help each other out," Williams says. "We're real good friends away from the field. It works out perfectly!"

Mayhew agrees. "Both of us have different styles, but we get the job done," Mayhew says. "There's not a person that I would rather share my playing time with than Eric."

The Higher Education-Corporation Link

By Rod Wenzel, FSU Media Relations

"Higher education and business are basically interdependent. One needs money to produce educated people, and the other needs educated people to produce money."

—Milton Eisenhower, former president of Johns Hopkins University

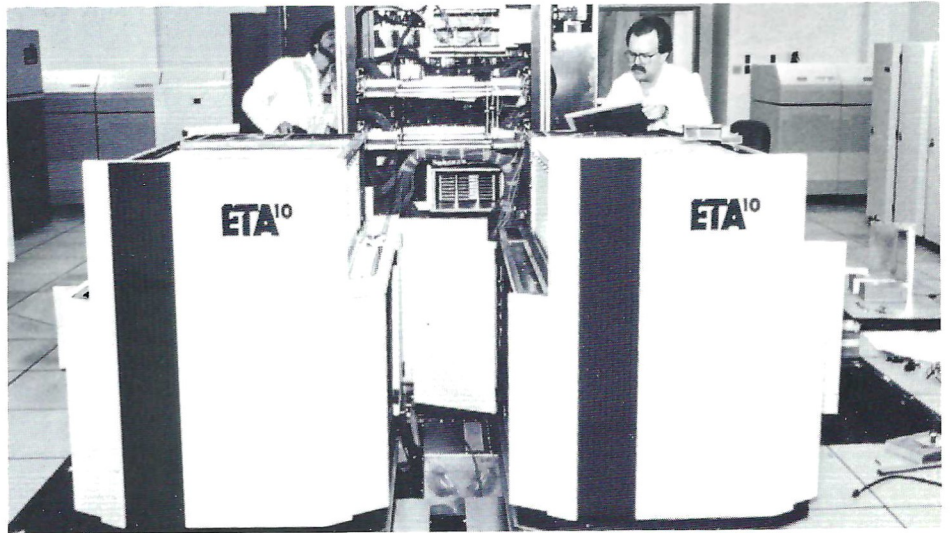

This weekend Florida State University welcomes to campus representatives of major corporations in Florida and the nation. A view from the inside of the University is being shown during this special Corporate Week-end. Florida State is serious about doing business with business.

The unique qualities of American higher education and corporations have stepped to the forefront—perhaps, hand in hand—as the United States has evolved from an agrarian society to one with a service-oriented, global economy.

The bonds between the campus and the corporation are reaping mutual benefits. As Florida State transfers technology, manpower and mindpower to corporations, it receives sponsorships of its programs and attractive placements for its students. The proof is in the need, as Milton Eisenhower said.

And, as FSU President Bernard F. Sliger states: "We, our University and the corporations with whom we have the opportunity to interact, have a need to preserve the well-being of the other, not only for our own motives and profits, but for those of Florida and the nation. This joint effort is for the betterment of many arenas—the industrial, the educational, the political, the economic and even the social and cultural—in which we, the campus and the corporation, exist."

Florida State's offerings to corporate Florida and America are diverse, ranging from the research applications of its most powerful supercomputer in the world, the ETA-10, to a recent graduate employed by Frito Lay to develop nutritious snack foods for fitness-conscious consumers.

Specialists monitored the installation of the ETA-10 this year at the FSU Supercomputer Computations Research Institute.

Likewise, corporations make valuable returns, such as the arrangement with ETA Systems, Inc. to house its record-setting supercomputer, and pledges from "Big Eight" firms to sponsor professorships and scholarships in accounting.

"We can offer students universal knowledge, but it is when we establish productive, progressive and reciprocal bonds with employers that we offer our students placement for their talents and the opportunity to apply that knowledge," Sliger said.

Perhaps the merging of campus-corporate activity is nowhere more evident than at the FSU-supported Innovation Park, located near the FSU Supercomputer Computations Research Institute (SCRI) and the accredited, fast-growing FAMU/FSU School of Engineering, whose complex is scheduled for completion in November.

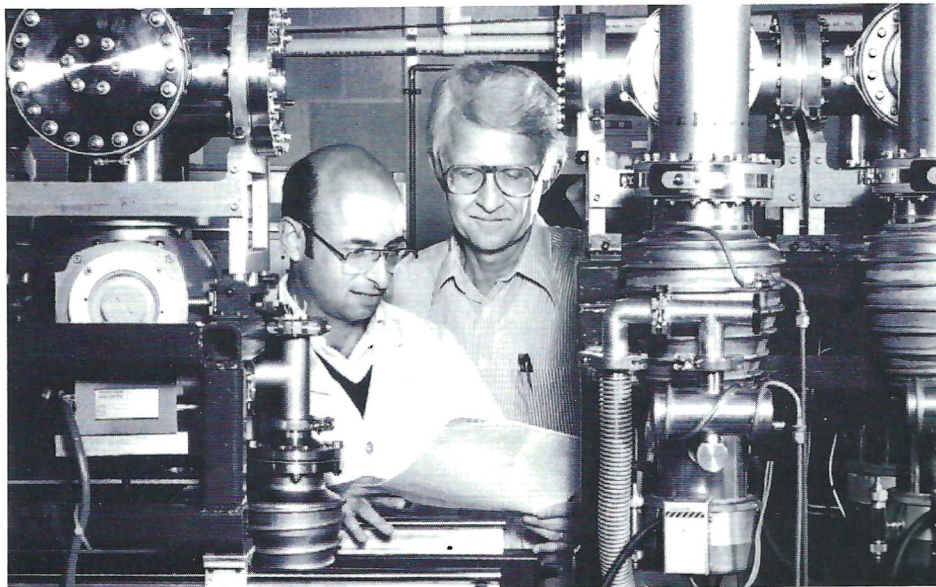

SCRI is a group of more than 50 scientists, specialists and administrators working to optimize supercomputer software for education, corporate and governmental use. Its potential for transfers of technology to businesses in high-energy physics, chemistry, oceanography, meteorology and pollution control, among other fields, is enormous. Its supercomputer is capable of testing "what if" assumptions and calculating the consequences without the expense of test models and before going to real world experiments, saving time and costs for theorists and technicians.

Another technology-transfer operation at FSU is the Center for Materials Research and Technology (MARTECH). If Florida is to develop a high-speed, levitated train connecting its major cities, MARTECH's experiments in superconductivity could be vital. For Florida's growing population, superconductivity will be the breakthrough for transmitting large amounts of power at reduced costs and with less loss. MARTECH is developing cost-effective materials capable of being superconductors at higher temperatures. This could benefit corporations involved with electrical power motors, generators, circuitry and any electronic measurement device.

Other technological and informational transfers from campus to corporation are evident in engineering, business and the physical, biological and social sciences. However, a corporation's future may depend more heavily on the transfer of manpower and mindpower. FSU made almost 5,000 such transfers during 1987-88 by graduating students with varied degrees from a wide variety of academic areas.

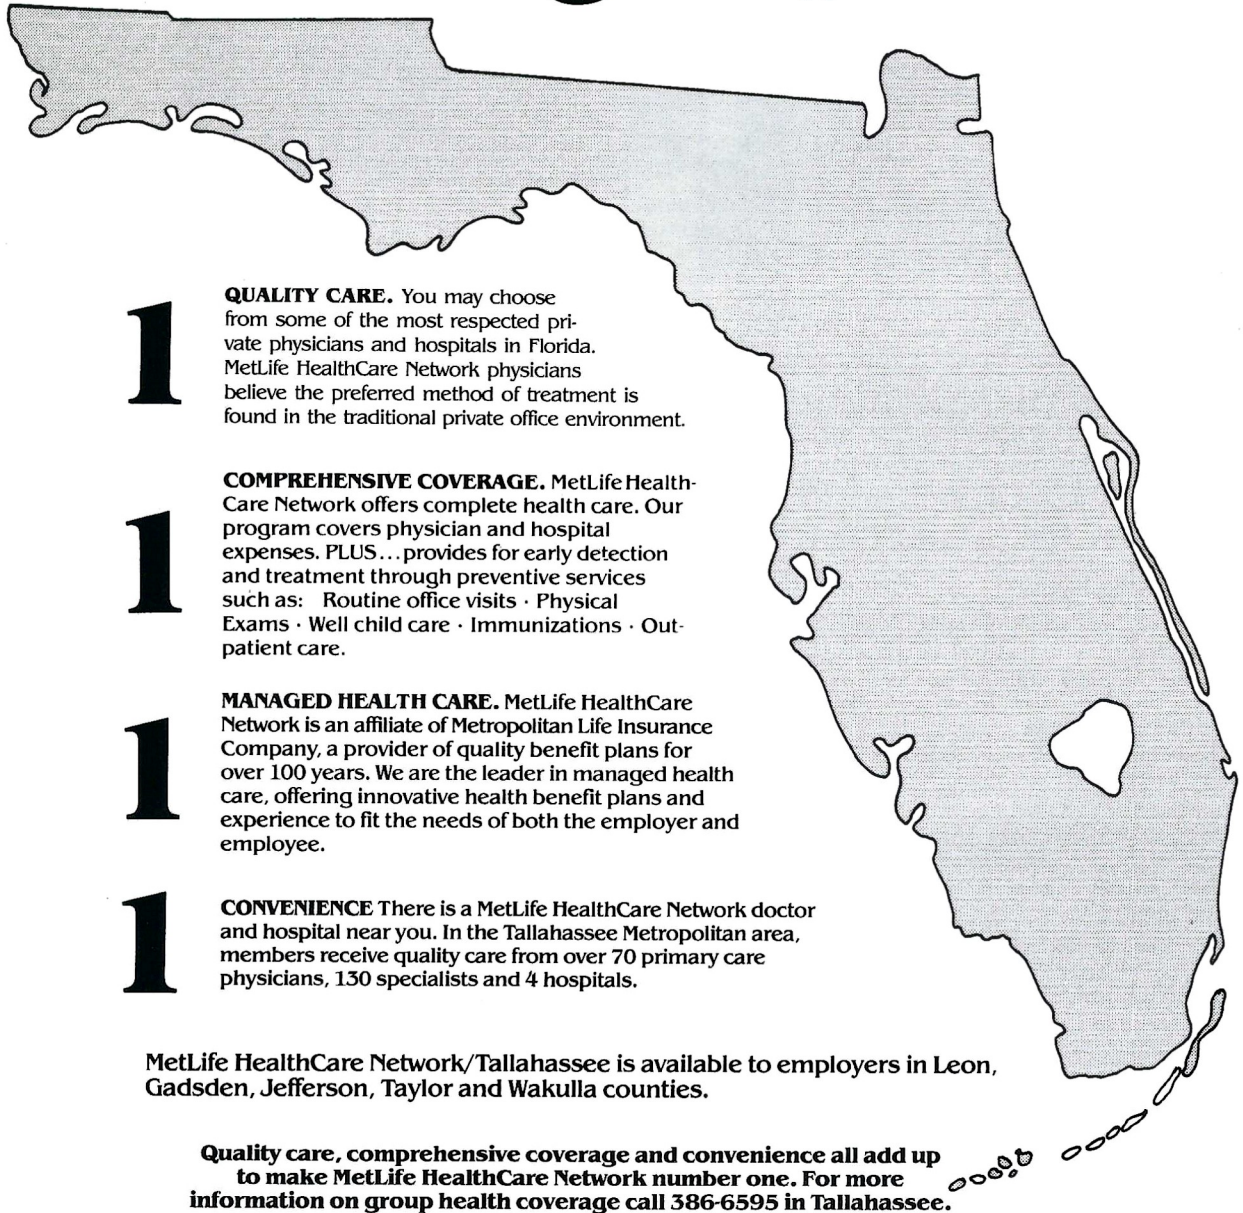

Campus-corporate exchanges of "graduates turned employees" can be highlighted throughout the University's 15 schools and colleges. The clothing, textile and fashion merchandising program in the College of Home Economics supplies more graduates to corporations than any in the Southeast. It supplies more fashion merchandising graduates to Florida retail stores for executive training than any other. And, the program's requests for interns exceeds its supply.

The college's fitness and food science programs have graduates employed in administration, marketing, research and development with firms ranging from Coca-Cola and Proctor and Gamble to Ross Laboratories and Southern Living magazine. Increasing concerns for improved "employee wellness" among corporations have brought new opportunities for graduates of the college's fitness program as well as those from the School of Nursing and the School of Social Work. The demand for physical and mental health counselors in corporate positions is expected to exceed the supply during the 1990s.

The hospitality administration program in the College of Business also is one whose demand exceeds the supply. The program's support and popularity have grown as the food industry expands to prepare for a nation that will eat two out of three meals away from home by the year 2000.

Increased interaction with corporations springs from the college's programs in accounting, finance, management, marketing and risk management (insurance). Almost 50 percent of FSU accounting graduates are recruited by "Big Eight" firms, three of those firms have funded professorships; and all have given support for scholarships and faculty research and development. Recently, the college's second annual Seminole Futures Weekend attracted more than 100 recruiters to interview majors in business and related fields.

And yet, the liberal arts background provided graduates of the FSU College of Arts and Sciences, the largest on campus, continues to be a chosen commodity for most corporations seeking employees with a well-rounded education. Many corporations have more senior executives from the liberal arts spectrum than from any specialized area.

Campus to corporation: making the transfers and meeting the needs.

"When the annals of our time are recorded, it will most likely be found that the two greatest contributions of our time have been the U.S. university and the U.S. corporation: both mighty forces, both uniquely American. If these two forces can go forward together in understanding and cooperation, there is perhaps no problem beyond their joint power for resolution."

—Alfred P. Sloan Jr. (1875-1966),
American industrialist and 21-year
Chairman of the Board of
