

Womens basketball opens up Monday

Florida State women's intercollegiate basketball team sets out in trek of the state title this coming Monday when a group of 14 girls take on Florida A & M in a game at FAMU High School Gym at 7 p.m.

FSU entered the 1971 season with five returning players from the squad last year. These five will make up the core of the starting team this season. They are Monia Wright, Terry Brown, Linda Crutchfield, Jan Middleton and Joan Gray.

Other than the FAMU meet, the girls will be competing in at least four more games. They take on Flagler College twice on a home-and-home series, play in a tournament at Satellite Beach, and then on March 12 go to Orlando to take part in the Rollins State Women's Basketball Tournament.

There is also a possibility that, if the women do well in the state meet, national competition may be in the offing.

FSU may take part in a tournament in Gulfport, Miss. if it is invited.

Other girls who are actively taking part on the 1972 team include Ann Owens, Sue Seaman, Joanne Abraham, Candi Houston, Vickie Sparling, Emma Colquitt, Pat Sargeant, Charlene Law, Chiquita Sanford and Debbie Allen.

Florida State will have only one game at the homefront, that being of Feb. 26 against Flagler College.
